KING'S U. S. VISIT MAY SPELL FATE OF CHAMBERLAIN

If It Fails Premier Falls, London Told.

Quints to Visit King

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., March 6.—The Dionne quintuplets will be brought by special train to Toronto from their Callander home on May 22 to be presented to King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain. Harry Nixon, provincial secretary, today requested the quints to make an appearance on that day. It will be the first trip away from home for the five sisters.

An invitation to visit Toronto also was sent to Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the physician of the quintuplets; Judge J. A. Valin and Percy D. Wilson, official guardians, and Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, the parents of the quintuplets. Mr. and Mrs. Dionne will occupy seats in the legislature chamber during the official reception to the king and queen and will attend the royal luncheon.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—[Tuesday.]—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, disturbed and anxious about American reaction to the trans-Atlantic tour of King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain in May and June, was warned bluntly today that his whole political future as chief of the British government hangs on the success or failure of the royal visit to the United States.

Chamberlain was put on the spot in a two column article in Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express. The result was the worst case of jitters in Britain over the affairs of royalty since the abdication of King Edward VIII., now the duke of Windsor.

Recalls Eden's Ouster.

The writer, Peter Howard, saddled Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to London, with responsibility for arranging the royal tour—an implication that it should be called off. Howard warned, however, that Chamberlain will have to take the rap and that the wrathful British public will oust him from office if the American tour is a failure.

Recalling Chamberlain's ruthless dismissal of Anthony Eden, Alfred Duff Cooper, Sir Thomas Inskip, Viscount Swinton, and other ministers from the cabinet as political punishment, the Express article said:

"Now the royal visit puts Chamberlain himself on trial. If it succeeds Chamberlain goes up. If it fails he goes down."

The article voiced British anxiety about what it called a "sustained savage onslaught" on royalty in the American press, speeches, and on the stage. It asserted that Americans opposed to the visit are convinced the king and queen are making a begging expedition in an attempt to pull America into the European cauldron.

Insists Attacks Not Personal.

At the same time it insisted there is nothing personal about the attacks.

Americans of the Kennedy school of thought declare, the article said, that "in a very short space of time the royal visitors will win for themselves the boundless affection of the citizens of America."

Everybody in Britain, the writer added, hopes this opinion is right, as "every one trusts that the judgment of Kennedy and his friends is sound and well founded."

Yet the present trend of events, the writer concluded, must be causing trouble and anxiety to Chamberlain, "for he has to shoulder the burden of responsibility for the visit.

Churchill Drops Suit.

An announcement today said the king and queen would leave for Canada on the battle cruiser Repulse on May 6 instead of May 8 to allow more time to cross the Atlantic in case of bad weather. They are to be in the United States June 8 to 11, inclusive.

Coincident with the Express article, an echo of the drama of Edward's abdication was heard tonight with the announcement Winston Churchill had dropped a libel suit which he instituted against Geoffrey Dennis, author of the book "Coronation Commentary" and the publishers, William Heinemann, Ltd. The defendants, it is disclosed, disclaimed any intention to attack Churchill for his part in the abdication, and agreed to pay his law costs and other expenses.

Death in Chair for Killer of Friend

FORGET AMLIE AND SAVE FACE, PRESIDENT TOLD

Leaders Warn Him Defeat Is Sure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has been informed that Thomas R. Amlie Wisconsin left wing extremist, will not be confirmed by the senate for a place on the interstate commerce commission.

Thomas R. Amlie. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Amlie is regarded as a communist in everything but name. At the committee hearings on his nomination, he admitted that he advocates a program of collectivism that differs from communism only as to the means by which it would be attained. He has expressed the opinion in speeches and articles that capitalism cannot and should not be saved.

An influential Democratic senator who is in a position to block Amlie's confirmation disclosed today that word had been sent to President Roosevelt, through Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins, that the senate would reject the nomination overwhelmingly if it should come to a vote.

Urged to Save Face.

Mr. Roosevelt was urged to withdraw the nomination as a gesture of friendliness toward business and to avoid the humiliation of another senate defeat. The President refused to withdraw the nomination of Floyd H. Roberts for a Virginia federal judgeship in the face of certain defeat, and the nomination was rejected by a vote of 72 to 9.

Senate Democratic leaders also disclosed today that Amlie is being urged by friends of the administration to request Mr. Roosevelt to withdraw the nomination. Amlie is being told that such a course would spare both him and the President the embarrassment of senate repudiation.

While some influential Democrats believe that Mr. Roosevelt will withdraw the nomination, they are by no means certain. If he does not agree to do so, they declare, the nomination will be reported adversely and brought to a certain adverse vote.

3 to 2 Against Confirmation.

The five man interstate commerce subcommittee considering Amlie's nomination stands 3 to 2 against him.

It was learned today that the opposition to Amlie in the senate has been organized for action if the nomination comes to a vote.

A member of the LaFollette Progressive party, Amlie served three terms in the house. He was defeated for the senate nomination by Herman L. Ekern, who in turn was defeated in the election by Alexander Wiley, Republican.

3 'BLIND' MEN! SEE HOW THEY RUN TO TAVERNS! COPS DO—AND NAB 'EM

Tap! Tap! Tap! The three men with the canes and dark glasses picked their way slowly down South Damen avenue. And when a dime clinked in the tin cup the little man carried all three veered unerringly for the nearest tavern.

Policemen Arthur Madzinski and Joseph Wolfe saw it happen several times then seized them at Damen avenue and Hastings street. All three confessed their eyesight is perfect.

"Why didn't you wait until you had more money collected before you went to the taverns?" police asked. "That would have made it too long between drinks," explained one of the ex-blind men. "Three can have a lot of fun with one glass of beer."

They are Thomas Karner of 1310 South Ashland avenue, Ray Lechner of 1628 Adams street, and George Devine of 949 Madison street.

SHERIF AND 5 TRAVEL 3,600 MILES ON BAIL MONEY TO GET A THIEF

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Five sombreroed Texans, headed by a gun toting sherif, started for home tonight with a Negro chicken thief they had come 1,800 miles to get.

They said their prisoner, Jerome Dixon, had stolen six chickens in Van Zandt county, Tex. Then he jumped a $2,000 bond and fled across the country. Under the Texas law forfeited bail money can be used to pursue and recapture a prisoner. So Sherif Cecil D. Johnson and his home county prosecutor sent out inquiries and traced Dixon here. At District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office they were told they would have to produce affidavits to show that Dixon was a bail jumper.

"We don't need to bother with affidavits," the sherif said. "We'll just bring some witnesses up here from Texas. There is plenty of the $2,000 bail money to bring them here."

The officer telephoned to Texas and told four men to get in their car and hurry up here. Meantime the county attorney had some business at home, so he returned to Van Zandt county, still traveling on the bail bond money.

The four witnesses arrived today, lifting their ten gallon hats off their eyes to see the buildings. When they went to court the judge decided their testimony wasn't necessary. So they looked at the world's fair a bit and then started the long trip back, hopeful that the bail money would hold out.

Gov. Salstonstall Lights Up and Fire Smokes Him Out

Boston, Mass., March 6.—(AP)—Attemping to create a more homey atmosphere, Gov. Leverett Saltonstall today touched a match to kindling in the Massachusetts state house executive chamber fireplace, unused for 100 years—and the smoke drove him out. Explaining the draft wasn't so good, the governor gave up the idea.

One Man War on Crime Fizzles Out in His Sleep

Philadelphia, Pa., March 6.—(AP)—Lawrence A. Schweringer vowed the "robbery wave" he'd heard about wasn't going to engulf him. He got ready with a pistol and plenty of ammunition. Last night, while Schweringer slept, thieves looted the home of jewelry—and the pistol.

Deadly Secret Bared After 21 Years of Fear

On the night of Nov. 17, 1917, a brilliant audience filled the Auditorium theater. The thrill of war was in the air. Chicago's business and social leaders were attending a benefit performance of "Faust" by the Chicago Grand Opera company. The proceeds were to go for patriotic purposes.

It was midway of the performance. On the stage Mephistopheles laughed his sardonic laugh. In the audience a man in seat K-27 slipped something from beneath his coat. He lighted a fuse. An instant later a bomb was sputtering in the aile.

Fireman Tears Out Fuse.

A fireman grabbed it and hurried outside, tearing out the fuse as he went. Police seized the man who had lit the fuse. At the central police station he gave his name as Reinhold A. Faust and confessed that he had intended the bomb as a warning to Chicago not to support America's war against his native Germany.

He confessed also that he was the author of extortion letters demanding $100,000 from Frank O. Wetmore and James B. Forgan, then chairman and president of the First National bank. The letters threatened to blow up the bank. On the extortion charge Faust was sentenced to serve from 1 to 20 years in Joliet penitentiary.

But on the night of the bombing, as Faust was being taken to jail, he managed to toss something away unobserved. It was the key to a box at the Milwaukee Avenue National Safe Deposit company. In that box were four more bombs made of gas pipe and filled with black powder.

Serves Fourteen Months in Prison.

In the box they stayed while Faust served fourteen months in the penitentiary. The secret weighed upon his mind. Every time he was summoned before prison officials he feared he was to be told he had been found out.

When he was released on March 19, 1919, he wanted to withdraw the bombs and destroy them. But he had no key. He didn't dare ask the company to drill open the box.

Eventually he decided upon a course. He would pay the $10 a year rental the remainder of his life. The secret would die with him. Every year since 1919 Reinhold A. Faust has sent his check for $10 to the company.

Then, two weeks ago, he received a letter that stunned him. The vault company was moving to 1200 North Ashland avenue. All boxholders would have to remove their possessions; otherwise they would be forced open.

So great did his dread and fear become that it was almost with relief that he saw Lieut. Andrew Aitken and the bomb squad close in on him Saturday near his home at 2517 North Richmond street.

At the Criminal Courts building yesterday he faced Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers. On Meyers' desk stood the four bombs. Faust, 75 years old, gaunt and haggard, told how he had made them, planning to launch a campaign of pro-German terrorism.

Suffers Night and Day.

"I was wrong," he said. "I am sorry now. I love this country and I am glad I didn't hurt any one. I have paid my debt. For more than 20 years I have suffered night and day over this thing."

He denied steadfastly, however, that he had tossed the bomb in the Auditorium. Although the facts of his confession in 1917 were printed repeatedly, he clung to his denial yesterday. He is charged with possessing and storing explosives in a business district. He will be arraigned in the Felony court today.

There remains only one other thing to tell—the identity of the fireman who prevented the first bomb from exploding. His name is Michael J. Corrigan and he is Chicago's fire commissioner. He was awarded the Lambert Tree medal for the act of heroism he performed on the night of Nov. 17, 1917.

LIFE IS MADE SOFTER FOR HENS; NESTS PUT ON SHOCK ABSORBERS

Disney, Okla., March 6.—(AP)—When residents at the Grand river dam site found dynamite blasts were preventing eggs from hatching, Justice of the Peace C. S. Bivens began to study the problem. Today he came up with a solution—nests with shock absorbers. Hereafter, his hens' nests will rest on bed springs.

Mercy Denied Despite Guilty Plea of Slayer

Morris, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—Elvin Wood was sentenced late today to die in the electric chair for slaying his lifelong friend and lodge brother, Abner Nelson, wealthy bachelor farmer, in a plot to obtain money.

Defense attorneys asked that the killer, who confessed the crime and pleaded guilty, be sentenced to prison and removed forever from society, but Circuit Judge Frank H. Hayes refused leniency.

"I have looked through my law books and found no crime comparable to yours," Judge Hayes said to Wood. "Then I turned to literature. I found just one. It was Shakespeare's story of Macbeth."

Judge Refers to Prayer.

"Mr. Wood," Judge Hayes continued, "I trust the dying prayer of Abner Nelson, your friend, was for your good. I hope the Great Judge will have more mercy on you than I can. The penalty for your crime is death. You will be electrocuted in the Joliet penitentiary on April 14."

Wood stood speechless as he heard the death sentence. Asked by the judge if he had anything to say, he replied in a loud voice: "No, sir." He did not testify at his trial, which was conducted without a jury.

Victim Forgives Him.

The pathetic prayer Nelson gasped as he lay dying from three bullets fired into his body by Wood was told in Wood's confession.

"I forgive you," Nelson told him, looking up at his false friend who stood over him with his revolver still smoking.

Wood said Nelson asked him three times to call some one to come to his aid, but instead, the killer said, he pressed his gun against the wounded man's head and fired another bullet.

Wood said he called at Nelson's home the day of the slaying. He explained that they talked, but that he gave no hint to his lifelong friend of his intention to kill him. "Ab changed his clothes and said he would go downtown with me for a bite to eat," Wood said. "When we started out the door I shot him."

Kills Friend for Money.

Wood confessed he killed his friend with the expectation of disposing of his body and then extorting money from his relatives who would believe he had been kidnaped.

Throughout the entire case, the killing and the trial, was interwoven the incongruous pattern of friendship that involved all the principals. In addition to the Damon and Pythias friendship that existed between the killer [Wood] and his victim [Nelson], State's Attorney S. J. Holderman, police officials, and witnesses at the trial were long time friends.

The hearing was a dramatic repetition of a play in which Wood and Holderman were boyhood actors years ago in the Morris High school. They occupied the same rôles then—Wood was the defendant and Holderman was the prosecutor. The stark reenactment was almost the same today, but Holderman wasn't acting when he asked for the life of his friend.

Calls It Double Crime.

"He is guilty of premeditated murder," Holderman said, "and should be sent to the electric chair."

Seldom has the death sentence been imposed in Illinois after a plea of guilty, even in the most aggravated cases. For instance, Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold got life sentences in Chicago when they pleaded guilty of the wanton murder of a small boy. A rare case in which a defendant was executed after pleading guilty was the hanging of Thomas R. Fitzgerald for slaying a young Chicago girl twenty years ago.

PRESIDENT MIAJA ASKS FRANCO TO MAKE PEACE

Loyalist Fleet Seeks French Haven.

PARIS, March 6.—(AP)—An anti-communist national defense council, with Gen. José Miaja as president, held Madrid and most of republican [loyalist] Spain in a tight military grip tonight trying to bring the war to an end by a surrender to the Nationalists.

Shortly after Miaja became head of the council, which becomes the new republican government of Spain, he broadcast a declaration that "we want peace, but a worthy peace."

As Generalissimo Franco's powerful Nationalist armies awaited developments, poised for an attack, the new government which overthrew the régime of Premier Juan Negrin in a peaceful week-end coup, fought down opposition of the communists.

The council's own communiques, broadcast on the Madrid radio, reported communist attempts to "disturb public order" in Madrid were being met with "strong measures."

Close Red Headquarters.

Madid dispatches, however, reported that all the central zone beyond Madrid, with the exception of Cartagena, where the republican navy escaped to the Mediterranean in a week-end revolt, was quiet and orderly. The situation at Cartagena, republican naval base, was described in Madrid dispatches as "uncertain."

Troops backing Gen. Miaja, "savior of Madrid" and commander-in-chief of republican Spain's land, air and sea forces until he became head of the government at the overthrow of Negrin, formed lines about communist headquarters in Madrid.

The headquarters of the party had been ordered closed by Gen. Segismundo Casado, who had headed the new national defense council until Miaja succeeded him.

Machine Guns at Corners.

Troops surrounded principal buildings of Madrid. Squads of police and soldiers patroled the streets enforcing the order for citizens to keep moving. Machine guns were mounted at strategic street corners.

As if warning that the Nationalist armies were only awaiting an order from Gen. Franco, Nationalist guns bombarded the capital twice during the morning. But the Nationalist troops stayed in their trenches.

The communists, whom the government communiques accused of fostering disorder, had formed the main support of Premier Negrin, who apperently had planned further resistance against Gen. Franco up to the time of his overthrow. Miaja was known to have advised Negrin to surrender to Franco.

Socialists on Defense Junta.

No communists are included in the new national defense council which was formally constituted today with Gen. Miaja as president. Gen. Casado became minister of national defense, and Julian Besteiro, a moderate Socialist who is known to have favored making peace with Franco, became foreign minister.

Other members include Wenceslao Carillo, Socialist Workers' union, interior; Miguel San Andres, Left Republican, justice and propaganda; Eduardo Val, Socialist, communications and public works; Manuel Gonzalez Marin, anarchist-syndicalist, finance and economy, and José del Rio, education and health.

Negrin and his displaced ministers fled to France. With his former foreign minister, Julio Alvarez del Vayo, and eight other ministers, Negrin arrived by Spanish commercial plane at Toulouse. Worn looking, they refused to comment on their flight from Spain, and boarded a late train for Paris.

Estimate 500 in Flight.

Other former ministers who accompanied Negrin included Tomas Bilbao Hospitalet, minister without portfolio; Ramon Gonzales Pena, justice; Velos Anate, public works; Paolino Gomez, interior; Bernardo Giner de los Rios, transport; Segundo Blanco Gonzalez, public construction; Sanchez Arque, undersecretary of state for propaganda, and Puce Alvarez Joseph, undersecretary of state for public health.

Diplomatic sources heard that 500 other republican leaders of Spain were fleeing by air and sea. French and British authorities were reported to have been asked to issue hundreds of visas.

Among the fugitives, a dispatch from Oran, Algeria, said, was Dolores Ibarruri, woman communist leader

PASTOR PUTS PARABLE TO A TEST; HANDS OUT $111; GETS BACK $511

Shamokin, Pa., March 6.—(AP)—Dollar bills the Rev. Waldeman Rutan distributed to his congregation a month ago after preaching on the parable of the talents have returned almost fivefold. The rector asked the 111 persons who received the bills to "put them to work" in the interests of their church, the Trinity Episcopal. He gave them the month to increase the money as much as possible and to send it back in sealed envelopes. He told his congregation yesterday $511 had been returned.

known as "La Pasionaria," who landed in a plane at Oran with other fugitives. Two war planes arrived there today and five yesterday with loyalist air officials and civilians.

Meanwhile French semaphores on the North African coast signaled that thirteen warships of the Spanish republican fleet, which fled Cartagena Sunday, were on their way to Bizerte in Tunisia. The warships were expected to enter that port to be disarmed early tomorrow.

Two Conditions Sought.

Tunisia's status as a semi-independent protectorate of France makes the port of Bizerte free for entry for the disarming of foreign warships.

Dispatches from Madrid said the Cartagena naval revolt was mostly directed against Negrin and that a few Franco sympathizers had mixed in.

Madrid's new rulers were said in diplomatic reports to have demanded only two conditions of Franco for the surrender of that besieged capital:

1. Safe conduct for republican leaders to Spain's borders.

2. Guarantees that no Italian troops would be permitted to march triumphantly into Madrid as they did after the fall of Barcelona.

The new junta waved the olive branch from the beginning by declaring itself anti-communist, and its leaders even cried, "Spain for the Spanish!" — the cry with which Franco recently concluded one of his speeches.

Appeals to "Other Side."

Casado directed a broadcast manifesto to "Spaniards in the trenches" on both sides of the civil war front.

He appealed to those "on the other side" to join the new republican rulers to help eject "invaders"—foreign fighters—and proclaimed.

"Spain wants peace: it is up to you to help her obtain it. If you offer us real peace, an independent peace, we shall be glad to meet you. Otherwise we shall fight on. The question is either peace or fight until death."

He concluded his manifesto:

"Spaniards! Choose between fruitful liberty and lawless slavery, between peace for Spain's profit or war in the service of imperialistic folly."

Believes Miaja Is Right Man.

Diego Martinez Barrio, president of the Spanish cortes [parliament], declared in Paris that the cortes' agreement with the Madrid defense council was "absolute" and that "from this moment we expect peace for all Spaniards."

He declared that Gen. Miaja was "the man who can come to an understanding" with Gen. Franco to "bring peace back to Spain."

Martinez Barrio broke completely with Negrin. Barrio, who has been in France since the Nationalist conquest of Catalonia, explained that his refusal to succeed resigned President Manuel Azana arose from his disagreement with Negrin. As cortes president he was first in line for presidency of the republic.

Stand on Franco's Terms.

BURGOS, March 6.—(AP)—The Nationalist War Chronicle, commenting on Madrid peace pleas, tonight declared an end to the war could come only on the terms of Generalissimo Franco.

The new Madrid defense council, the Chronicle said, was composed of men "too well known during tragic Red rule" to leave any doubts about what was meant by an "honorable peace."

The Chronicle article, signed as usual by "Spectator," said the plea for a "so-called 'honorable peace'" came very late, and added, "the Franco cause will triumph with the defense council and without, with resistance and despite it."

The paper predicted an imminent "glorious liquidation of the war." The news from Madrid failed to deter Nationalists' preparations for a final offensive.

Hitler Takes a Fancy to U. S. Acrobatic Dancers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 6.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler, whose love for music and the opera is legendary here, now apparently has taken a fancy to acrobatic dancing. Two American girls have been the first to appear before him. Last Feb. 22 Marian Daniels, who has appeared in Chicago, performed in Munich. Hitler had seen her earlier in the year in Berlin and was so impressed with her dancing that he sent a plane to Cannes, France, to bring her to Munich. She was rewarded with money and flowers. The second girl was Miriam Verne, who performed before Hitler Saturday night in Berlin. She also received flowers and money.

ROBS AUNT OF $3,800; JAILED.

William Dohney, 23 years old, was arrested yesterday, charged with the theft of $3,800 in insurance money belonging to his aunt, Mrs. Hannah Fitzgerald, 5021 Hutchinson street. Police said he confessed spending most of the money in gambling and on women.

POLICE SEIZE 98 TO INSURE PEACE AT BUND SESSION

Under efficient police protection 400 members of the German-American bund met last night in a hall at 3855 North Western avenue. Police took into technical custody ninety-eight men loitering outside the hall. All but one were later released.

Fritz Kuhn, national leader of the bund, addressed the meeting. He said that while America had sent an army into Germany, Germany has not sent an army into America. In response to a question from a woman concerning the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin's attitude toward Hitler, Kuhn quoted a friend as saying that Coughlin considered Hitler one of the most Christian men in the world.

The arrest of the ninety-eight loiterers was made as a precautionary measure by fifty police under the command of Supervising Captain John Prendergast, Capt. Daniel Lynch, and Lieut. Al Hoffman. The man held was Morton Portnoy, 28 years old, 1247 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn. He was carrying a gun and had a Berwyn police star which he said had been given to him several years ago.

STOUT FELLOW, BUSHMAN; SO HE GETS NEW HOME

Bushman, who is 1½ years old and weighs 450 pounds, is considered the best specimen of gorilla in America—and that's why he will have a new cage this spring in the Lincoln Park zoo.

"Bushman doesn't know his own strength," Benjamin Shapiro, zoo construction engineer, said yesterday. "If he did, he'd break the bars of his cage. He has bent a couple of them already, just by accident."

The present cage is 10 by 16 feet and has seven-eighths inch bars. The new one will be 16 by 35 feet and will have one inch bars of special steel. For the amazement of visitors, Bushman's steel chair in his new cage will be bolted to the top of a scale that will register his weight outside the cage whenever he sits down. Floyd S. Young, his keeper, says that sitting down is one of Bushman's favorite activities.

Nazis Test New Balloon and Kite Traps for Planes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 6.—Balloon and kite traps as defense against enemy planes have been undergoing extensive tests throughout Germany. Troops have been practicing maneuvering the small blimps and flying the kites with cables attached when weather would not permit use of the balloons. Enough of the traps have been constructed, it is said, to surround all of Germany's vital industrial regions.

12 SAILORS SHOOT EX-SHIPMATE AS FRENCH TRAITOR

Ensign Who Sold Military Secrets Executed.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOULON, France, March 6. — A volunteer execution squad of twelve sailors dealt a traitor's death at dawn today to Ensign Marc Aubert. He was their former shipmate who was convicted of selling naval secrets to a foreign power in order to buy presents for his mistress.

Ensign Aubert, who was 25 years old, was the first member of the French armed forces to die for treason since the world war and the second since the turn of the century. The supreme penalty for espionage in peacetime recently was restored in France, as in most other European countires as a result of a wave of spying over the continent during the last few years. Aubert's plea for mercy was refused by President Albert Lebrun and his mother was not allowed to see him before the execution.

Sailors Offer to Shoot Officer.

The naval ensign was said to have given enough secret information to foreign agents to have enabled an enemy to lure the French Mediterranean fleet into a death trap in the event of war.

It was this which led his fellow sailors to offer themselves for the duty of carrying out the death sentence. A large group of reporters was allowed to witness the execution and it was given big coverage by French newspapers and agencies.

Despite the cowardice he showed when brought before the military tribunal last January, Aubert met the rifles of his shipmates with courage.

Play Military March.

After the prison chaplain said last prayers, the body was carried away in a waiting ambulance and the execution squad marched back to quarters while a band from the fleet played a military march.

Aubert's mother had been persuaded to leave Toulon last night when it was certain there was no chance her son would be reprieved. His mistress, a young Breton named Jeanne Marie Morel, was transferred a few days ago to the women's prison, where she is serving a three year sentence for assisting Aubert in his espionage.

Italian Spy Executed.

ROME, March 6.—(AP)—Antonio Scarpa, an Italian naval employé, was executed at dawn today in the courtyard of Port Bravetta, near Rome, for military espionage.

Scarpa, a former Austrian naval officer of Trieste, was shot in the back after having been degraded. He was convicted by a special court for the defense of the state, but details of the charges were withheld.

An announcement of the execution said that two of Scarpa's accomplices, unidentified, had been sentenced to life imprisonment and two others to thirty years.

Helped in Suicide

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

MRS. MARIE BURCKHALTER.

White Plains, N. Y., March 6.—[Special.] — Mrs. Marie Burckhalter, 43 years old, the housewife who helped her husband, Eugene, commit suicide last November, pleaded guilty to a charge of first degree manslaughter in County court today. Her plea makes her subject to a maximum term of twenty years in prison.

Mrs. Burckhalter, who insisted throughout weeks of questioning that her husband's death was by his own wish, because "he was washed up physically and financially," entered her plea before County Judge Frank H. Coyne over the protests of her own counsel, Mortimer C. O'Brien, who told the court:

"I want it thoroughly understood that her plea is contrary to my advice and best judgment. I feel confident that if she went to trial she would be acquitted."

Burckhalter was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in his auto in a three-car garage at Hastings-on-Hudson last Nov. 19. His wife said she helped him adjust the exhaust pipe and attach a rubber tube to accomplish the suicide.

VILLAGE OFFICIAL OFFERS BATTLE; ENGULFED IN WAR

August J. Calcagno, commissioner of finance in Forest Park, protested at the village board meeting last night. His protest concerned the recent dismissal of Theodore Dannenberg as collector of the village water department. Dannenberg was ousted by Mayor Charles R. Hussey "for spreading propaganda against the administration." In the recent primary Dannenberg was nominated for commissioner. He ran as an independent.

Calcagno argued that he, as commissioner of finance, would not sign the village's March 15 pay roll unless the village board restored Dannenberg to his job.

This was a serious challenge, but the village board met it. A special ordinance was passed. It removed Calcagno from the finance commissionership, made him head of public property, and put a man in his place who will sign the March 15 pay roll with or without Dannenberg on it.

JAPAN WARNED TO BEWARE U. S., BRITISH FLEETS

Growing Pacific Power Is Menace, Tokio Told.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 6.—Fear that the extension of American naval power to the western Pacific, combined with a gigantic British replenishment program, may jeopardize Japan's safety was voiced in the lower house of parliament today by Tuyu Miyazawa of the Minseito [majority] party.

Mitsumasa Yonai, navy minister, said that the Japanese navy's defense plans were not based on contending with a joint Anglo-American naval attack but on defending the country against any nation which happens to possess the most powerful navy.

Navy May Plan Anew.

He assented the new Vinson [American naval expansion] plan as well as the British four year expansion plan have been taken into consideration in the demand for a Japanese appropriation of $47,042,000 for naval expansion. A bill for this sum was introduced in parliament yesterday.

Yonai explained that the new building program will be spread over six years, but said that if friction arises the navy may make new plans.

He indicated that he had reference to such friction as might arise in Japan's diplomatic relations with other countries over its efforts to create a "new order" in east Asia.

Parliament was told by Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita that Japan's position is not necessarily "anti-pathetic" to the United States, France, and Great Britain.

Warn of New Drive.

SHANGHAI, March 6.—(AP)—Japanese authorities tonight warned third powers of a coming intensified military offensive in northern Kiangsu province, where there are numerous Americans.

The Japanese consul general in Shanghai requested the consuls general of third powers to advise their respective nationals of the drive. He asked that foreign properties in the area be plainly marked "so that they will not be bombed mistakenly by airplanes."

More than twenty American missionaries live in the region, which lies north of the Yangtze river along China's east coast.

[In London it was reported Prime Minister Chamberlain had decided to introduce legislation in parliament within the next two weeks to expedite a loan of $25,000,000 to China.]

SLAYER OF 'BLACK BUTTERFLY' GETS DEATH SENTENCE

LONDON, March 6.—(AP)—Arthur James Mahoney, 26 years old, slayer of Georgina Hoffman, a playgirl known to Mayfair as the Black Butterfly, was sentenced today to be hanged.

Mahoney, an Irish ship's steward, was arrested Feb. 13, one day after Miss Hoffman was found stabbed to death in her luxurious Mayfair apartment.

Mahoney confessed he killed Miss Hoffman "because she tricked me out of all my money." Miss Hoffman, who was 26 years old, was known as the Black Butterfly because of her carefree gayety and her raven hair.

IL DUCE ORDERS ERECTION OF NEW AVIATION CENTER

ROME, March 6. — (AP) — Premier Mussolini today ordered a new aviation center, with a plane factory, testing laboratory, and flying field built in southern Italy about fifteen miles east of Naples.

Italy's further rearmament was attributed yesterday by Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, to so-called preparations by the great democracies for a war of destruction against the totalitarian states.

Mussolini had a fresh report on Italy's Libyan defenses facing French controled Tunisia in North Africa. Marshal Pietro Badoglio just returned from a visit there. Tunisia figures largely in Italian "aspirations."

REDS, NAZIS AND FASCISTS BARRED FROM AUTO UNION

Constitution Changed by Martin Faction.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., March 6.—[Special.]—Homer Martin's followers in the United Automobile Workers today amended their constitution to bar communists and any other advocates of a totalitarian state from union offices and future membership in the union.

The convention also voted to expel from the union the twenty members of the executive board who have set up an anti-Martin union headquarters backed by John L. Lewis and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

All the acts of the anti-Martin board were disavowed and repudiated. These include the suspension of Martin from the presidency and the calling of another union convention to meet in Cleveland March 27.

Claim 104,500 Members.

A final report of the credentials committee gave delegates to the convention a total of 1,045 votes. Under the union's rules on convention votes, this would indicate that Martin is supported by 104,500 dues paying members.

He has explained that the slump in dues payments during the depression last year had reduced the membership of the union from 370,000 members to less than 200,000, thus giving him a majority of the U. A. W. membership. His claim to the support of a majority of the members represented here is, however disputed.

The bar to communists and other totalitarians was embodied in an amended constitutional provision which forbids local unions to take in members who belong to organizations which support authoritarianism or totalarianism. This would ban communists, Nazis, and Fascists from future membership. The amendment also bars persons of these beliefs from holding union offices. It does not, however, provide for the expulsion of communists who are now members.

Martin's Helpers Attacked.

A faction from which Martin has drawn many of his advisers, including William Munger, union educational director, was attacked during debate on a resolution condemning all isms opposed to democratic government.

The faction is made up of radical followers of Jay Lovestone, former head of the communist party in the United States, who disagreed with Moscow leaders and quit. Martin defends their presence in the U. A. W. as anti-communists and experts in counter-espionage to offset communists' attempts to get control.

Martin eventually won adoption of the resolution when he explained that it was intended to show the union's opposition to all theories opposed to democratic government without specifying any section of any movement.

Proposes Direct Elections.

There were several other important changes in the constitution. A resolution was passed directing the executive board to submit within ten months to a referendum a constitutional amendment providing for direct election and recall of international officers by the rank and file, and for referendums on important points of union policy.

The size of the executive board was reduced by cutting from five to one the number of vice presidents and from seventeen to thirteen the executive board members representing various union districts. The present twenty-four man board, twenty of whose members are now in the anti-Martin camp, was established at the 1937 convention at the suggestion of Lewis to accommodate both factions after a communist purge Martin started had been balked, according to Martin, by Lewis.

The constitution also reasserted jurisdiction over workers in farm implement factories. The auto workers originally had such jurisdiction, but Wyndham Mortimer, one of the anti-Martin vice presidents, is charged by Martin with having turned organization of such workers in Chicago and elsewhere over to Lewis' steel workers' organizing committee.

Martin explained to the convention today that the voting strength on which delegates are seated here is based on the average dues payments of their locals over the last eighteen months, not on their present strength. This is in accord with the union constitution.

The Martin claim of strength was boosted to its peak today by seating delegates representing rank and file movements, called rump movements by the opposition, in twenty-six local unions. All of these locals, anti-Martin forces say, have voted officially to ignore the Martin convention and send delegates to Cleveland.

The credentials committee reported, however, that after interviewing the rank and file delegates it was satisfied that they represented an overwhelming majority of the membership of the unions. Of the anti-Martin actions at meetings the committee said:

"The committee further finds that the local union meetings which formerly adopted resolutions to attend the dual convention at Cleveland, O., were undemocratically and unconstitutionally conducted, and did not and do not represent the will of the majority of the local unions."

Following this report the convention gave the rank and file groups 119 delegates with 504 votes, representing about 50,400 members. It likewise claims to represent about half of the membership in the 124 locals represented by regularly elected delegates. These delegates, on the latest tabulation, number 237, with 539 votes.

Martin has put the total voting strength of the union, on the basis he explained today, at 200,000 or less.

The other side claims support of 334,000 members, but its allotment of convention votes on the basis of per capita tax payments, used in the convention here, will not be published until its convention meets at Cleveland.

ELLEN HOLMSEN.

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ellen Tilton Holmsen of Flushing, Long Island, is going to ask the department of state, or the department of justice, or some one at Washington to give her official permission to wear what she wants to wear.

Just now she wants to wear tight fitting trousers of deep lavender and a jacket of the same shade. Five years ago, while she was getting a divorce from Nicholas Holmsen, Paris perfume agent, at Reno, Nev., she wanted t. wear shorts and she didn't want to wear shoes and stockings.

She was ordered out of a Reno courtroom and a Reno restaurant for that getup. Last Thursday she was held by police in Closter, N. Y., when she appeared in her lavender creation and the next day Harrington Park, N. J., authorities "deported" her across the George Washington bridge.

"I have written to Washington," she announced today, "to get a little badge so I won't be picked up all the time. Just a little badge saying "Leave this girl alone, she's all right."

GANDHI REACHES AN ACCORD WITH BRITISH VICEROY

Dispute Settled on Fourth Day of Fasting.

BULLETIN.

RAJKOT, India, March 7 (Tuesday). — (AP) — The dispute between Mohandas K. Gandhi and the native ruler of Rajkot—a quarrel which caused the former mahatma to start a "fast unto death"—was settled today. Intervention by the British viceroy of India, the marquess of Linlithgow, brought an accord between the 69 year old Nationalist leader and the 29 year old Thakore Saheb Shri Dharmendrasinhji, whom Gandhi called "my son." Gandhi's secretary saw the viceroy at Delhi early today shortly before the accord was reached.

RAJKOT, India, March 6.—(AP)—An exchange of messages between the marquess of Linlithgow, British viceroy of India, and Mohandas K. Gandhi brought hopes tonight for solution of an impending political crisis growing out of the nationalist leader's "fast unto death."

As Gandhi ended the fourth day without food physicians described him as decidedly weaker. They said his heart condition would not permit him to stand the strain much longer.

Marquess of Linlithgow.

Contents of the messages he exchanged with the viceroy were not disclosed, but informed circles viewed the correspondence with optimism. They hoped this discussion of viewpoints might bring a successful end to the fast which Gandhi began in an effort to secure a greater popular voice in the government of the native state of Rajkot.

Viceroy Ends Tour.

It was felt, however, that much would depend on whether Gandhi's health would permit him to carry on communications with the viceroy.

The viceroy cut short a tour of the Rajputana states and hurried back to New Delhi today, after receiving numerous appeals from leaders of Gandhi's Congress [national] party. The nationalists asked the viceroy to intervene to prevent "disastrous consequences."

The leader's wife, Kasturibhai Gandhi, was released unconditionally from the Rajkot jail, despite rejection of a previous offer of freedom and went to his bedside.

130 Hurt in Riot.

CALCUTTA, India, March 6.—(AP)—Police took 130 persons to a hospital and arrested seventeen today after Moslem-Hindu rioting in the Kamarhati jute mill area near Calcutta. A Hindu procession there was attacked by crowds of spectators.

FINDS POWER IN MEEKNESS

Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi believes that the meek shall inherit the earth and that the 360,000,000 natives of India can gain control of their part of it by passive resistance.

Gandhi is on his sixth hunger strike to win concessions from the British and native rulers of India. The others have been successful, in a measure. They got him out of jail, for instance, when he wanted to get out and continue his work.

Gandhi is a fiery little man whose attire is a dhoti, or loin cloth, and a pair of spectacles. He is wizened, sunbaked, and bald. He doesn't smoke, and once refused to autograph a cigaret case until the owner promised to use it only for calling cards in the future. He doesn't drink, either. For years he has led a prohibition movement throughout India.

Weighs But 100 Pounds.

Undersized, seldom weighing more than 100 pounds—he has lost two pounds during the present fast—Gandhi has lived chiefly on goat's milk in recent years. His worldly possessions are scant. When Doris Duke Cromwell, an American heiress, had an audience with him in 1935 he owned a dollar watch, a few dhotis, seven books, and a spinning wheel.

Gandhi adopted the spinning wheel as the symbol of the nationalist movement in 1920, when he promulgated a boycott of English cloth and other foreign made goods and urged his followers all wear homespun.

There is nothing of the superstitious, uneducated peasant about Gandhi. His English is exemplary, for he was educated for the law in London and admitted to the Englisn bar. His followers' loyalty has the quality of devotion. They have stood for hours in broiling heat to see him, and struggled to touch his feet. A reticent and modest figure, he made unavailing protests against this attitude.

Given Title Mahatma.

His followers gave him the Hindu title mahatma [meaning great souled] twenty years ago. He disclaimed such honor, and finally gave up the title formally, but the faithful only added to it by calling him "mahatmaji," signifying even more respect.

Gandhi was born Oct. 2, 1869. His father was prime minister of the native state of Porbandar. The family was of the Vaishya caste, third among the four recognized castes above the untouchables. There are more than 50,000,000 of the miserable rigidly circumscribed untouchables, and Gandhi later became one of them by adopting an untouchable as his daughter.

Gandhi was betrothed when 8 years old and was married when 13 to his present wife, Kasturibhai. She was a stubborn girl his own age. They quarreled almost constantly. After the birth of their fourth son they decided, at the mahatma's suggestion, that their future relationship be that of brother and sister.

Takes Dancing Lessons.

When he went to England to study, Gandhi sought to do as English gentlemen did. He even took dancing lessons but gave up after three months and settled down to his law books. He went to South Africa on business in 1893, and remained because he found 66,000 of his countrymen there, half of them in virtual slavery. It was there that he first put his theory of passive resistance into use. He was imprisoned three times before 1914 when the "Indian relief bill" was passed and he considered his work in Africa ended.

He was loyal to Great Britain during the world war, but when, in 1919, the British passed two measures giving them wider powers in dealing with revolutionary crimes and conspiracies in India, Gandhi launched a campaign of resistance to British rule.

The spinning wheel boycott was among his passive weapons. Millions massed behind him.

In recent years Gandhi's influence waned. The congress [nationalist] party was swayed by other leaders. Jawaharlal Nehru was elected head of the nationalist congress. "Our members must fight, not spin," said Jawaharlal Nehru and his cohorts. Though they are saying it still, Gandhi continues with his passive resistance.

Princess Is Mother

PRINCESS MARIA.

ROME, March 6.—A daughter was born today to Princess Maria of the Austurias and Prince Juan, the youngest son and apparent heir of former King Alfonso XIII. of Spain. Alfonso and former Queen Victoria were present at the Anglo-American nursing home. The child is the third born to the young couple. A girl was born in 1936 and a son in January, 1938.

Princess Maria Mercedes of Bourbon-Sicily is 28. She married Juan in Rome on Oct. 12, 1935. He often has been mentioned for the throne of Spain in the event of a restoration.

Japanese Empress Is 36; Thousands Pay Her Honor

TOKIO, March 6.—(AP)—Empress Nagako of Japan observed her thirty-sixth birthday anniversary today. Several thousand women paraded to the gates of the palace to pay their respects, but because of the war in China there were no special celebrations. The empress gave birth to a daughter, her seventh child, last Thursday.

HIGH COURT REFUSES TO REVIEW ORDER OF NLRB TO REHIRE 147

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—The Supreme court today refused to review an attack by the Carlisle Lumber company of Onalaska, Wash., on a labor relations board order requiring reinstatement of 147 discharged employés with $185,000 back pay. The tribunal refused to pass on a decision by the Ninth Federal Circuit court upholding the order.

The board found that the Carlisle company had discharged employés who were members of the lumber and sawmill workers' union and had dominated a labor organization known as the Associated Employés of Onalaska, Inc.

ROUTS STRIKERS AFTER ELEVATOR MAN IS BEATEN

Minneapolis, Minn., March 6.—(AP)—Two hundred strike demonstrants invaded the Medical Arts building today, bowled over a policeman, mauled an elevator operator, and then were driven off by a patrolman with a drawn gun. The strike was called five days ago by an A. F. of L. union of elevator employés and other service men against thirty-four downtown office buildings. Thousands of office employés in the affected buildings have been climbing as many as twenty-five flights of stairs. The strikers are seeking higher wages and shorter hours.

TRY EX-CONVICT TOMORROW AS SEX OFFENDER

Arraignment in the Court of Domestic Relations tomorrow was ordered yesterday for James Reed, 34 years old, of 10412 Maryland avenue, a barber, on charges of taking indecent liberties and disorderly conduct. He was beaten and captured Saturday by John Prystalski Jr., of 11317 Forest avenue, son of Judge Prystalski, after Reed had seized Miss Betty McBroom, 20 years old, on the street near her home at 11237 South Park avenue.

Prystalski, a friend of Miss McBroom, ran in the direction taken by Reed, recognized him from the girl's description, and after subduing him turned him over to the Kensington police. Reed's record disclosed that he was sent to the Ohio reformatory in 1931 for attempted rape, that he has been paroled three times and has twice been sent back for violation of parole.

BRITAIN'S HOUSE O. K.'S 2 BILLION ARMS DEBT RAISE

LONDON, March 6.—(AP)—The house of commons adopted today the government's bill to increase defense borrowing powers from 2 billion to 4 billion dollars.

The measure now goes to the house of lords, which was not expected to put any obstacles in the way of the royal assent necessary to make it law.

Laborites attacked the government's policy, which they said made defense loans necessary, but they did not vote against the bill.

JUDGE DEMANDS EIGHT REFORMS TO STOP CRIME

Wants Punishment to Fit the Offense.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington, former chief justice of the Criminal court, yesterday recommended an eight point anti-crime program for Chicago and the state. Judge Harrington, who is now hearing civil cases in the Circuit court, is considered an authority on criminal court affairs because of his long experience in that field.

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

His suggestions aim not only at insuring that the punishment shall fit the crime and the person, but at preventing crime. Every scandal in the administration of law and the conduct of the prisons serve to bring these institutions in to disrepute with the criminal or potential criminal element, he said.

Urges Two Boys' Schools.

Judge Harrington's recommendations are:

1. Divide the St. Charles school for boys into two institutions, one to be used for truants and dependents, the other, a walled institution for criminally inclined young men.

2. Create a reformatory where young offenders who might be rehabilitated can be incarcerated and subjected to a strict military and vocational training program, away from the influences of crime repeaters.

3. Create a full time parole board, removed from political influences, members' terms to be of sufficient length so that no governor could appoint the entire board.

4. Change the habitual criminal law to provide a more effective use of this weapon against crime repeaters from other states by requiring only prima facie evidence of their convictions outside of Illinois.

5. Give criminal court judges the power to fix a minimum as well as a maximum term in sentencing criminals so that the judges could make the punishment fit the crime and the person.

Proposals to Prevent Crime.

6. Promote the plan already started under which policemen take an interest in children in their districts and promote coöperation with the police and respect for law and order.

7. Continue and expand the youth movements now at work, such as the Catholic Youth organization, the Chicago Area projects and the countless neighborhood organizations sponsored by business men and clubs.

8. Teach school children law enforcement, including the rudiments of laws governing property rights. The more education a youth has, the greater his responsibilities as a citizen, and, statistics show, the less likely he is to commit crime.

Elaborating on these recommendations, Judge Harrington said:

"The place to start revamping our institutions is at St. Charles. The original intention for this institution was the care of truants and dependents. The unwalled place should be kept for such youths.

What to Do with Youths.

"St. Charles is the only intermediate place between complete liberty and the penitentiary. As a result many young criminals go into St. Charles to mix with truants and dependents. This in a great measure has changed the character of the institution.

"We judges are constantly confronted with the problem of what to do with youths who should get some punishment but still do not belong in the penitentiary with older and hardened criminals. The Cook county judges fear to send the criminal type youth to St. Charles because this type contaminates the trunants and dependents and also because of the possibility of escape.

"The institution should be divided and placed under two heads. No one man can handle mixed groups. Those with criminal tendencies should be placed in a walled institution under a strict vocational and military training. They should get the same corrective influences they would receive under proper parental guidance. Their hours should be so planned and regulated they would have no time for mischief."

Hits Parole Board Mistakes.

Judge Harrington said he believes in parole with proper limitations. However, he decried the system that makes possible "parole board mistakes" such as those recently exposed by police and prosecutors.

"I believe the state should have a full time parole board with assured tenure of office," he said. "This is essential to a proper parole system. Such a board should be composed of men who would make it a career instead of a sideline. The administration of parole is a function just as sacred as that of the judiciary. Under the existing parole law, the board has supplemental judicial functions insofar as the board determines the exact period of incarceration of a convict."

Strengthening the habitual criminal law would be a boon to the police, prosecutors, and courts in disposing of incorrigible offenders, the judge declared.

"When a criminal serves one term," he continued, "and is not taught a lesson, then he sets himself up as a confirmed enemy of society and is deserving of no more consideration. He has forfeited forever his right to association with society. When a criminal is being punished as an example to others, it should be a real example.

Habitual Criminal Law.

"The habitual criminal law should be amended so that an authenticated copy of a previous conviction accompanied by finger prints would be prima facie evidence of a prior conviction in another state or community. This would serve notice on criminals from other states that they cannot use Chicago and Illinois as a hunting ground unless they are prepared to be dealt with as they would be in their own states.

"Under the present law the repeater often escaped the habitual criminal act because of the expense of bringing witnesses from other states or because such witnesses are not readily obtainable to prove his record. The law should be further amended to make it compulsory on prosecutors to use the habitual criminal act, not merely discretionary."

Judge Harrington said that the passage of the definite sentence act—requiring minimum as well as maximum terms to be set—would allow the courts to use discretion as in a case where a man commits a double crime like kidnaping and robbing a motorist. This, he pointed out, deserves a more severe punishment than just plain robbery. At present the law imposes the same punishment for both crimes and leaves the parole board to decide the exact time of incarceration.

Building for the Future.

The judge, who is the father of three sons, said the police and courts should build for a better future generation by education and intelligent police preventive measures. He pointed to the success of Capt. Thomas Duffy of the Sheffield avenue station with his neighborhood children's club.

"The police department today is made up in a large measure of young educated men," the judge said. "They are closer to the youth of today than were the older policemen of years ago. The police can and should promote a friendly feeling between themselves and the neighborhood children.

"They should direct the children's energies to the better things in life rather than the evil things. They should encourage friendliness instead of chasing the youths and creating a feeling of antagonism.

"Education is the greatest deterrent to crime. A recent survey showed that the more education a youth absorbs the less likely he is to commit a crime. The high school graduate seldom appears as a defendent in the Criminal court. The schools should teach children that to break lamps, school windows, or other acts of vandalism is a violation of the property rights of others and is a crime for which both they and their parents must pay."

WIFE TELLS HER VAIN BATTLE ON CHAMPAIGN VICE

Pleas Ignored, Her Home Wrecked, She Says.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—A housewife who said her home was wrecked by her husband's gambling accused public officials today of scorning her appeals to close the gambling house in which he was squandering his weekly pay.

They advised her, she said, to get a divorce. When she threatened to dynamite the gambling den, she said, they persuaded her to go there instead to get evidence. But the gambling mysteriously ceased for that night only.

The housewife told her story as the grand jury prepared to resume its investigation of vice and gambling resorts which cater to University of Illinois students.

Slaying Starts Inquiry.

The investigation began after William Spurrier, one of the university students, was shot to death Feb. 17 by Mrs. Margaret Strothers, operator of a colored resort to which Spurrier and five other students were seeking admittance.

The accusations against the officials were made by Mrs. Martha Shaw in her home at 204½ East Park. She has just been reunited with her husband, Avery, and their three children. Mrs. Shaw said that she had been compelled to place her three children in other homes, rent out half of her home, and go to work because of her husband's gambling.

The Shaws are both 38 years old. Mrs. Shaw told her story in the presence of her husband and youngest child, Avery Jr., 7 years old. The other children, Ruth Louise, 16, and Robert, 15, were in school.

Tells of Complaints.

"We bought our little home on payments three years ago," Mrs. Shaw said in the interview. "A year ago my husband gambled away the money I gave him to pay the taxes. He had a good job with the university, but he lost it because of his gambling." [Shaw, now a taxicab driver, did not agree with this.]

"I mortgaged our furniture to help my husband pay for his car," Mrs. Shaw went on. "He mortgaged it and lost the money. I made numerous complaints to the public officials. I told one of them I would dynamite the gambling house if he didn't do something. That official said:

"'No, you shouldn't do that. There is too much heat on the town now because of the white slave investigation.'

"He called in another official. The second official said to go to the gambling house that night and see gambling in operation. Then I could get a warant and he would raid the place.

Place Found Empty.

"I went there that night and found the place empty. No one but those two officials had known I would be there. The next night and every night afterward gambling was going on there and the place was wide open.

"I went back to the officials again. One recommended an attorney whom I afterward found to be his son-in-law. The attorney didn't do anything.

"Then I took the case to another high official. He advised me to get a divorce on the ground that my husband wasn't supporting me."

Mrs. Shaw's assertion that public officials ignored complaints about vice and gambling are similar to those of university officials. It was the charges of laxity which caused Acting Governor John Stelle and Attorney General John E. Cassidy to take charge of the investigation.

PROUD FATHER-TO-BE SETS BIRTH DATE AND SAYS: 'IT'LL BE A BOY'

Newark, N. J., March 6.—[Special.]—Some may think Sidney A. Fortel is rushing things a bit, but Fortel is a man of confidence. Today he issued a formal anouncement that on June 17 or 18 "a son will be born to Mrs. Sidney A. Fortel." Many a prospective father has predicted the birth of a son—more in hope than in confidence—but Fortel says he has studied predetermination of sex for twenty years and has "absolutely found the secret."

POLICE HAVEN'T EYES ENOUGH TO COPE WITH EDDIE

Country Boy Cuts a Wide Swath in Evanston.

When Edward P. Bristol, 19 years old, moved to Evanston a few months ago police in Neillsville, Wis., his home town, advised Evanston police to keep an eye on him. Edward, they said, once stole a phonograph from a schoolhouse and sold it to their state's attorney.

It was easy for the Evanston police to watch Bristol, because he got a part time job as a waiter in a café next door to the police station. But Edward, it developed yesterday, got himself into considerable trouble in spite of his proximity to his watchers.

Nothing Like a Car, or Two.

Police records charge that:

1. Last Thursday he called the Packard agency in Evanston and said he was the son of George I. Haight, prominent Chicago attorney. He had a demonstration Friday and said he would be back Saturday for the car. Saturday he drove it out alone for another trial spin and didn't return.

2. A Chevrolet dealer also wanted to see Bristol. He said Bristol made a $5 down payment on a used car, tendering a bad check for $12.75 and pocketing the change.

3. A department store complained about a dapper young man, with a mustache like Bristol's, who proffered a $47 check for a $20 overcoat and got the coat and $27 in change. A real estate concern at 6170 Broadway in Chicago was angry because of a bouncing $10 check under somewhat similar circumstances. An Evanston bookstore cashed a $10 check.

The descriptions led the Evanston police to suspect Bristol. But they didn't have his address. He hadn't worked at the café for several days and the café operators didn't know his address, either.

Girl Searching, Too.

Policeman Henry Engstrom was in the café Sunday when an attractive girl sat down beside him.

"Where's Eddie?" she asked the counter man. He couldn't help her. Across the room Detectives Edward Bussean and Otto Brey were signaling frantically to Engstrom. He encouraged the girl to talk.

"If you know where he lives I'll walk over with you," said Engstrom. They left and the detectives followed to 1003 Grove street. Emerging a short time later Engstrom signaled to the detectives and they went in and arrested Bristol.

Yesterday he admitted all five charges were true. The Packard people wouldn't prosecute because Bristol had telephoned later Saturday to tell them where to find their automobile. The other four charges stood.

Here's official proof of Studebaker gas saving..

Studebaker wins America's greatest economy run!

Heading for the finish line and a record for gas economy! The car is a stock Studebaker Commander, photographed on one of the ice-coated mountain trails over which this year's Gilmore-Yosemite Run was contested. The Commander covered the 314 miles on less gas than any 6 or 8 regardless of price.

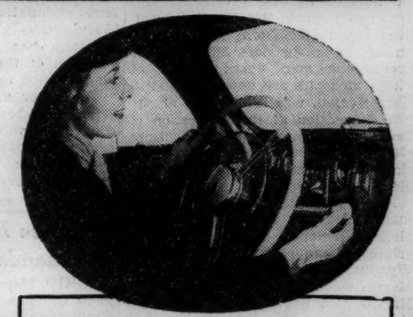
Studebaker Commander wins sweepstakes trophy . . . Studebaker President 1st in class! A scene at the finish of the Gilmore Run with a Studebaker representative and a Yosemite park official holding one of the two gas economy trophies that Studebaker won under official A. A. A. supervision.

Here's why Studebaker cars stand up! They're built by the greatest group of long-time craftsmen in the automobile business, men averaging 40 years of age who have been on their Studebaker jobs 10 years or more. Many Studebaker craftsmen, like the Neilsens pictured above, are fathers and sons.

YOU show the world that you know value as well as beauty, when you pick this stunningly styled new 1939 Studebaker for your car.

Every day you drive it, you realize why Studebaker won the great American economy contest—the Gilmore-Yosemite Sweepstakes—conducted under strict American Automobile Association supervision. You find that you're dollars ahead because Studebaker's great engineering enables you to wring so much money-saving extra mileage out of every gallon of gasoline.

Go for a half hour's drive and see for yourself why thousands of America's smartest car buyers are putting their money into Studebakers this year. Studebaker's planar suspension, automatic hill holder, non-slam rotary door latches, and steering wheel gear shift lever are all included in the low price. Your present car may cover part, perhaps all the down payment, on easy terms.



World's easiest handling car! That's what women drivers call this year's Studebaker. Not only its steering wheel gear shifter, but all its driving controls, respond smoothly, surely and without effort. There's no obstructing shift rod in the floor—driver may enter or leave the car through the curb side door.

CALLS ON G. O. P. TO UNSCRAMBLE NEW DEAL ACTS

Martin Wants Party to Keep U. S. 'Out' of War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—The Republican party has a mandate from the voters to unscramble the hit-or-miss economic measures of the New Deal the last six years, House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts declared tonight in a radio address.

The minority party also has a great responsibility to keep the United States out of war, Martin said.

"Our defenses must be strong, but they must not be pledged in any military alliance abroad," he asserted. "Our task is at home. Our first line of defense is that Saturday line which edges up to the pay windows in our mills and shops. Unless these lines stand, impregnable democracy will be lost.

Opposes European Alliance.

"We cannot protect this first line of defense by plunging into an offensive and defensive military alliance with half of Europe."

Martin pledged the minority to lend every aid to the administration in a program to bring about solid and sustained business recovery.

"We express an earnest hope that before another month has passed, the President will send to congress at least one specific recommendation calculated to give substance to the growing promises made by Secretary Hopkins at Des Moines," he said.

"Meanwhile, we shall continue our daily fight for a beginning toward real government economy. The people voted last November for a curtailment of federation extravagance and for a beginning on policies which would tend to relieve the country of the present crippling burden of taxation.

Sees Taxes Hinder Prosperity.

"No working population ever can hope to prosper permanently under prevailing policies of taxation. No farming population can ever prosper so long as 27 cents of every income dollar must go for taxes. The government is spending entirely too much money. Our people demand a restoration of common sense, prudence, thrift, and ordinary good management in the handling of the federal business."

Elimination of costly overlapping in the Washington burocracy is needed urgently, Martin said.

"Our great federal burocracy today carries a total of 917,999 employés on the civil pay roll as compared with 565,000 six years ago," he declared. "This increase has been accompanied by a tremendous increase in the number of boards, bureaus, commissions, authorities, divisions, and administrative sections throughout the government.

Work at Cross Purposes.

"Many of these new agencies are stumbling over each other, working at cross purposes, are even arrayed in open conflict over policies and programs, all at the expense of the people."

Martin pointed out that the "Economy Act" of 1933 gave the President authority for two years to consolidate and reorganize the government departments. However, in this two year interval, the President effected only seventeen regroupings by executive order, mostly relating to secondary agencies. In the same time, thirty-four agencies of government were created. These new agencies alone now employ more than 150,000 persons, he asserted.

FIND 54 CARRIERS OF DIPHTHERIA IN JUVENILE HOME

One section of the juvenile home has been placed in quarantine, it was made known yesterday, because fifty-four diphtheria carriers have been discovered. They were found when an examination was made of all the inmates after several juveniles had been stricken during the last month.

Charles Reading, assistant superintendent of the home, said all of the carriers were boys. The quarantined youths are permitted to talk to their parents through a glass window.

Gets 4 Years in Prison for Civil Service Course Fraud

St. Louis, Mo., March 6.—(AP)—John A. Rosenfeld, who pleaded no defense to a charge of using the mail to defraud as a salesman of fake civil service courses for the defunct General Institute, Inc., here, was sentenced to four years imprisonment today by Federal District Judge J. C. Collet. After he failed to appear for sentencing a month ago Rosenfeld was traced to Chicago by his bondsmen and was arrested there last week. Fourteen other defendants, also connected with the correspondence school, previously were sentenced.

Correct Constipation Before—Not After!

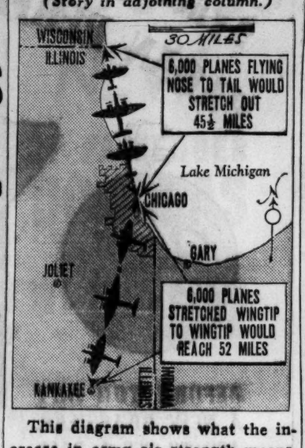
An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of emergency relief. Why let yourself suffer those dull lifeless days because of constipation, why bring on the need for emergency medicines, when there may be a far better way? That way is to KEEP regular by getting at the cause of the trouble.

If it's common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, a pleasant, nutritious, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—goes straight to the cause by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Increase in Planes

(Story in adjoining column.)



This diagram shows what the increase in army air strength means. If the 6,000 planes were flying wingtip to wingtip (using average dimensions) the line of planes would reach from the loop to Kankakee. If they were flying nose to tail they would reach to the Wisconsin line.

WHEN HEAD RINGS IT MAY BE WAY YOU HOLD A PIPE

New York, March 6.—(AP)—If you have ringing noises in your head it may be that you are holding your pipe wrong.

Dr. Edmund Prince Fowler, past president of the American Otological society, said tonight that pipe smokers who bite into the stems of their pipes may be affacted with "smokers' vertigo," deafness, and ringing head noises.

For pipe smokers who want to eliminate the possibility of these developments Dr. Fowler suggested that the old clay pipe was advantageous because "you can't bite too hard into it without cracking it."

Suicide Verdict Returned in Death of Union Agent

A coroner's jury found yesterday that Joseph Lauder, business agent and recording secretary of Journeyman Barbers' union, No. 548, committed suicide while despondent. Lauder, who was 59 years old, was found dead of motor exhaust gas poisoning yesterday morning in his car in the garage he rented at the rear of 6618 Greenwood avenue. He lived at 1015 East Marquette road.

SENATORS VOTE TO BOOST PLANE QUOTA TO 6,000

Add 500 to House Bill Authorization.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—The senate today approved an amendment to the army's emergency rearmament program authorizing an increase in army air corps strength to 6,000 airplanes. This is 500 more than the number approved by the house last month when the $358,000,000 national defense measure was passed.

The vote by which the amendment was approved today was 58 to 28. The increase was recommended by the senate military affairs committee and was brought to a vote only after a heated debate over the costs of the airplane building program. During this debate Senator George W. Norris [Ind., Neb.] proposed a revival of the senate munition's committee to investigate profits in airplane manufacturing.

Present Limit 2,300.

The law at the present time limits the army air corps at 2,300 airplanes, although the air forces at present number something under 2,000 machines including training, and transport as well as fighting planes. In the house last month several air corps officers testified that 5,500 airplanes were ample for the defense of continental United States.

Today's debate was turned to the cost of airplanes by Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.]. Senator Clark protested against the proposed increase in authorization, saying that the change in the law would indirectly "provide for expenditures of an unlimited sum of money."

Urges U. S. Make Planes.

It might be wise, said Senator Norris, for the government to manufacture at least a part of the new airplanes to give it a basis for estimating the justice of prices charged by independent manufacturers.

Earlier in the day Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, told the senate naval affairs committee that no enemy would attempt to cross the Pacific if an impregnable defense base were built at Guam, the little island 1,300 miles from Japan. Admiral Leahy urged the committee to put a $5,000,000 appropriation for Guam harbor improvements back into a $65,000,000 naval base bill.

PLANES WILL PICK UP AND DROP MAIL IN 4 STATES WHILE FLYING

Coatesville, Pa., March 6.—[Special.]—Beginning May 12, some fifty-five communities in Pennsylvania, Delaware, West Virginia, and Ohio will receive air mail service although there is not an airport at any of them. The mail will be picked up and delivered by ships that fly over without stopping. An automatic grappling device enables the pilot to drop incoming mail bags and pick up outgoing mail sacks that are strung on a cable between two standards. The service is rendered by All-American Aviation, Inc., on a contract basis with the postoffice department. A test flight was made here today to test the grapple.

Representative E. E. Waller Is Ill from Pneumonia

Duquoin, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—State Representative Elbert E. Waller, Republican, of Tamaroa, is ill in a Duquoin hospital from a severe case of pneumonia. He was found in a delirious condition in his home by a neighbor. His condition tonight was reported slightly improved.

GOVERNOR CALLS MICHIGAN PASTOR GAMBLING DUPE

Fitzgerald Orders State Enforcement Drive.

Lansing, Mich., March 6.—[Special.]—Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald today ordered state police to enforce anti-gambling laws wherever they find city and county officers are derelict. The governor's order was his answer to charges that his administration is linked with organized gambling.

The accusation against the governor, who took office in January after the Republican party swept the election last November, was made by the Rev. Amos B. Bogart, a Battle Creek Methodist Episcopal minister. Today the governor said the pastor was the unwitting dupe of an agent for slot machine interests.

Campaign for Legalization.

Gov. Fitzgerald said he had learned the Rev. Mr. Bogart had no realization of the motive behind the movement he was induced to sponsor. The real purpose of the slot machine interests, the governor charges, is to promote sentiment for a law legalizing slot machine operation under license.

When the governor received a letter from the pastor last Friday and was threatened with a recall movement unless he enforced state anti-gambling laws, he demanded that Bogart produce proof or retract his charges.

Gov. Fitzgerald sent a state policeman to Bogart's home today with an invitation for him to come to Lansing to discuss his charges. Bogart refused, saying he would see the governor after he has talked with an attorney.

Admits Charges Unsupported.

Bogart admitted to the policeman that his organization had little concrete evidence to support his charges. He said a committee was gathering more. Bogart refused to name the interests he represents, but it was learned today he is speaking for the Citizens' League of Law Enforcement.

Gov. Fitzgerald today discussed his plan to enforce anti-gambling laws with Attorney General Thomas Read and Oscar Olander, commissioner of state police. Later he indicated raids by state troopers may be expected at once in various parts of the state.

PLAN TO REMAKE U. S. BUROCRACY STIRS DISTRUST

Fear Grant of Power to President.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Distrust of President Roosevelt's motives in seeking power to reorganize the government was voiced in both houses of congress today. Consideration of the Cochran bill, meeting the chief executive's demands in limited fashion, was begun in the house. A substitute measure was introduced in the senate.

John J. Taber opposes reorganization bill.

The Cochran bill, designed to reduce the 500 bureaus which have sprung up under the New Deal, was violently debated. Even the Republican minority found itself divided in opinion on the measure which was drafted to meet the objections which caused defeat of the "dictatorship" bill at the last session.

Byrd Introduces Measure.

The senate measure was introduced by Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], chairman of the select committee on investigation of executive agencies. The bill was placed on the calendar. It goes much farther than the emasculated house bill in restricting the President's powers to reorganize and abolish agencies.

Senator Byrd even struck out a provision giving Mr. Roosevelt six $10,000 a year secretaries. In legislation having economy and retrenchment as an objective, Byrd said, creation of six $10,000 "assistant presidents" was scarcely consistent.

The Byrd bill will be offered as a substitute for the Cochran bill in the house tomorrow, Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] announced. A caucus of the Republican minority tonight showed a majority in favor of the Byrd measure. Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. said he favored the substitute measure.

Calls House Bill Complicated.

Byrd's bill provides that affirmative action should be taken by both houses before any reorganization proposal by Mr. Roosevelt could go into effect. The house bill provides a negative action in that it permits a presidential program to go into effect within sixty days unless both houses pass a resolution condemning it.

Byrd termed the house bill's procedure complicated and unusual and involving drastic regulation of debate. His bill provides that congress must vote on a reorganization program within twenty days during which time there would be free debate. This was in substance, he explained, the Wheeler amendment to the previous dictator bill, which was defeated by only six votes.

The discussion in the house reached a high point when Representative Lindsay C. Warren [D., N. C.] defended the measure. It met all previous objections, he declared, and its opponents "were drunk with prejudice and bias" in opposing it.

"Some people would be against the ten commandments," he told the Republican side of the house, "if they were proposed by this administration."

"I'd vote against the ten commandments," retorted Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.], "if they were to be interpreted by the national labor relations board and enforced by Mr. Roosevelt!"

Warren said that many important agencies were specifically exempted from presidential interference in the Cochran measure. The provision for a separate department of welfare, opposed by many members of both parties at the last session, has been eliminated, he said. The civil service commission is not to be tampered with, he declared.

Taber Leads Opposition.

Leader of the opposition to the bill was Representative John Taber [R., N. Y.]. He announced he would offer an amendment providing for affirmative instead of negative action on any reorganization program, the same provision set up in Byrd's senate bill.

Taber criticized the haste with which the bill was brought before the house. It was introduced on Feb. 23, he pointed out, approved by committee after a single and secret hearing on March 2, and brought before the house today, four days later. Extensive hearings, open to the public, should have been held, he asserted.

"We have learned in the last few years to fear the objectives of President Roosevelt whenever he is given new powers," he said. "There is a threat here that the President will be able to create two large propaganda departments in charge of public works and welfare by moving units of the government around into two departments which the congress itself would not stand for if put forward on their own merits."

WIFE'S LEAP TO DEATH FROM HOTEL BLAMED ON EXCESSIVE DRINKING

Ralph Shurley.

Mrs. Frances Shurley leaped to her death early Sunday because she had been drinking to excess, a coroner's jury reported yesterday. Mrs. Shurley, 26 years old, committed suicide after attending a wedding party in the Jackson Park Plaza hotel, 1540 East 65th street, where she lived.

Her husband, Ralph, 29, said they quarreled after the party when his wife wanted more to drink. He said Mrs. Shurley then packed her bag, said she was going to her mother's home, and left. Shurley fall asleep. Her body was discovered in the areaway of their fourth floor apartment several hours later.

CHOPS TREES AS PROTEST 'AGAINST RULE BY HAGUE

Plainfield, N. J., March 6.—(AP)—Rain today interrupted plans of Samuel Rushmore, 67 years old, a wealthy inventor, to fell more of the 1,000 trees on his $220,000 estate in furtherance of his decision to quit New Jersey "because Hague [Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City] is the law."

Twenty trees were cut down Saturday. Rushmore said the work will be resumed tomorrow.

Signs announcing "Because Hague is the law—For Sale" have appeared on the estate for six months. The inventor said his house costs him $4,300 annually in taxes, and he was considering turning it into a maternity hospital open to Negroes.

The inventor battled in New Jersey courts for five years to win a divorce, which he said cost him $85,000. He was recently restrained by court from suing his former wife and her attorney for $200,000 damages on conspiracy charges.

ROOSEVELT JARS ECONOMY DRIVE BY WPA DEMAND

Serves Notice He'll Insist on 150 Million More.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt challenged the congressional economy and business recovery drive today by serving notice on the Democratic leadership that he would send up another message within a week demanding a deficiency appropriation of $150,000,000 to finance the WPA relief organization until July 1.

Bernard M. Baruch, senators' adviser.

Mr. Roosevelt made his original request for the extra $150,000,000 last month, when he signed a deficiency relief appropriation bill which congress had cut from $875,000,000 to $725,000,000. The President had demanded the $875,000,000.

The President's insistence on the additional relief appropriation convinced leaders of the congressional economy movement that the administration's vaunted business recovery drive is all words and no action.

Challenge Accepted.

The economy minded Democrats, however, immediately accepted the President's challenge and continued their plans for a drastic curtailment in federal expenditures and elimination or revision of business stifling taxes.

Senator James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.] was host at a luncheon today attended by Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier and influential adviser to such powerful Democratic senators as Byrnes and Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], chairman of the senate finance committee.

Baruch's ideas for business tax relief were incorporated in a bill passed by the senate last year. It abolished cutright the punitive tax on undistributed corporation profits and drastically modified the capital gains levy. As finally compromised with the house, however, it retained a 2½ per cent vestige of the undistributed profits tax and preserved in part the Roosevelt principle of taxing capital gains as ordinary income.

Vice President Present.

Other guests at Byrnes' luncheon were Vice President John N. Garner and Senators Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.], Walter F. George [D., Ga.], Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.], Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.], Carl M. Hatch [D., N. M.], and Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.]. All are advocates of economy and business relief except Barkley, who presumably was invited because of his position as Democratic leader.

Although the senators who attended the luncheon did little talking, they expressed determination to go ahead with their plans without the coöperation of the Roosevelt administration. Their program includes outright repeal of the undistributed profits tax remnant, further liberalization of the capital gains levy, reduction in the 1935 soak the rich surtaxes, and some form of business incentive tax legislation. They also will back Senator Harrison's proposal for a 10 per cent slash in federal appropriations.

Repeal Resolutions Offered.

In the senate today Senator William H. King [D., Utah], a member of the finance committee, introduced a resolution calling for repeal of the undistributed profits tax. Senator Clyde L. Herring [D., Ia.], chairman of a special committee on business incentive taxation, said his group would submit a report in full harmony with the recovery plans of Senator Harrison and others.

Leaders of the economy movement said they were certain of defeating any proposal from the administration to increase the statutory debt limit from 45 billion dollars to 50 billion dollars. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. hinted early this year that such legislation would be necessary, but the treasury department has abandoned the plan subject to a personal demand by President Roosevelt.

If the statutory debt limit is not increased the administration in 1940 will be confronted with four alternatives, according to the conservative Democrats. These are [1] a drastic reduction in expenditures; [2] a drastic increase in taxation; [3] further devaluation of the dollar, and [4] inflation.

Hope to Check President.

The conservative Democrats do not believe the President would propose a curtailment of expenditures or an increase in taxation in a presidential election year. They hope to prevent extension of the President's authority to decrease the gold content of the dollar by another 10 per cent.

They hope to repeal the President's authority to issue up to 3 billion dollars in greenbacks, contained in the Thomas amendment to the 1934 agricultural adjustment act.

The congressional economy leaders learned after today's White House conference that the administration's program is solely one of words intended to reassure business. The administration promises that there will be no more reform legislation and no new taxes. Business is expected to do the rest. If business doesn't, there is where the blame will be fixed, according to the administration attitude.

ORDER MIND TEST FOR BUTCHER IN KOSHER DISPUTE

Two charges of assault with intent to kill against Hyman Goldberg, a butcher, were continued to March 20 by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court yesterday. Goldberg was ordered to undergo a mental examination.

He was arrested Feb. 27 on a charge of selling nonkosher meat to orthodox Jews. He was freed on bond but was rearrested and accused of throwing a meat cleaver when the holder of a chattel mortgage appeared to seize the fixtures in Goldberg's shop at 4746 North Kedzie avenue.

While held on this charge he ripped the plumbing from his cell in the Albany Park station, blacked a police-sergeant's eye, and threw debris at other prisoners and policemen. He will be back in court Friday for a hearing on the charge of selling nonkosher meat and on a charge of malicious mischief.

PRESIDENT PICKS COL. WATSON AS NEW SECRETARY

Military Aid to Get Post Held by Son James.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today announced that he will reward Col. Edwin M. Watson, U. S. A., his chief military aid, with the position of secretary to the President, effective April 1. He succeeds James Roosevelt, who resigned as his father's secretary to become associated with the movie industry.

Col. Edwin M. Watson.

On March 31 Watson, who is 56 years old, will be nominated by the President to the advanced rank of brigadier general. He will retire immediately and assume his new duties.

Salary $10,000 a Year.

The secretariat job pays $10,000 a year, but the White House said Watson will receive the difference between that and his retired army pay, which is $4,500 a year.

In his new position Watson will serve as liason officer between the White House and the Capitol. He will also greet official callers and assist in their entertainment. He may be put on active duty as military aid again when the king and queen of England visit here next summer.

Col. Watson's military experience began in 1904, when he was appointed to West Point from Virginia by Representative Claude Swanson, now secretary of the navy.

Receives Medals and Citations.

In addition to being stationed in the Philippines, Col. Watson has seen active duty in France. During the war he commanded the 1st battalion, 12th field artillery. He saw service in the Verdun section, the Aisne offensive northwest of Chateau Thierry, in the Aisne-Marne offensive south of Soissons, and in the St. Mihiel offensive. He received numerous medals and citations.

IDEAS FOR AIDING RECOVERY ASKED BY MORGENTHAU

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., called on all officials of the treasury today to suggest means of helping business.

He dramatized the intention to encourage business by posting behind his desk a placard saying, "Does It Contribute to Recovery?"

The secretary explained that the placard served warning to all callers that unless their conversation would help business men he did not want to talk to them. The placard was printed with heavy black ink on a pale blue background.

LET'S BE CHICAGOANS

By CALEB

ASK the chance-met man on the street what he knows about this city in which he lives, and his answers will be luminous as a London fog. So, we fear, would be the answers of most of us, if interrogated on any but the very obvious rudiments, such as population, sightseeing landmarks, or some locally familiar address.

Reasons for this "civic inertia" on the everyday citizen's part are not far to seek. We say we are busy. We are short on time. The tempo of our tasks is faster than that of our hands and brains. We take our daily background "for granted." Chicago dates, places and persons are for researchers; historic facts are for historians. Libraries, museums and schools can tell us what we seek to know—but we never seem to want to know! And so, about all that we have to offer the stranger within our gates is a pauper's minimum of information.

Yet nowhere in the world is there a city of more intrinsic interest than Chicago. Her momentous past and prophecy-baffling future are such as to be worthy of more than perfunctory citizenship. Think of a cluster of prairie cabins springing into the ninth metropolis in size among world cities—in scarcely more than a century! Is not that a destiny which, in crude commercial terms alone, electrifies routine thinking? As for the significance of Chicago's present-day leadership in manufacturing, printing, meat-packing, transportation, art, music, education, recreation facilities, aviation, trade-volume, urban beautification, and merchandising—the simplest rummaging of statistics warrants any Chicagoan in thinking, feeling and saying: "Here, if anywhere, is the world's veritable City of Destiny!"

Never can casual attitudes or indifferent lip-service take the place of true civic spirit. The real Chicagoan insists on being posted and informed; on losing no opportunity to promote, by word or deed, the environment from which he derives his livelihood, his friends, his social status, his cultural opportunities, and personal advantages. Instead of lukewarmness, there should be a distinct militancy in our interpretation of Chicago to outsiders . . . a pronounced gleam in the eye, a superior ring in the voice.

"Show me the man who wouldn't brag about Chicago," exclaimed a recent visitor to our establishment, "and I will show you a citizen who belongs in some other city!" While the gentleman in question hailed from thousands of miles away—we would have been glad, in the civic sense, to claim him as one of our own.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts
The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach often pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.
Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in no time and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

SHRINE RECALLS AWAKENING OF SCIENTIFIC ERA

Early America Symbolized Mind's New Freedom.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Yorktown, Va., March 6.—[Special.]—The Colonial National Historical park, embracing Jamestown, Williamsburg, and Yorktown, symbolizes the beginnings of America, not only in its military and physical aspect but in the sense of the human mind freed of old limitations. For America today, despite all its hesitations, is on the high evolutionary road that may be traveled only through individual development.

The key to much that happened in the last half of the eighteenth century on this little peninsula, along these old waters and forests that had been waiting for millions of years for the right touch, is found in Thomas Jefferson's autobiography, in which he speaks of the influence of Dr. William Small, his professor of natural philosophy at William and Mary college.

Something New Exists in America.

"He fixed my destiny," wrote Jefferson. "From him I got my first views of the expansion of science and the system of things in which we are placed."

Many in Europe had reached this point of view also, but on these new shores there was something new favorable for development. This had back of it the American eagle, symbolizing liberty and freedom of thought. This may be found on the silver mace of William and Mary college, rising above a sphere symbolizing unity.

It also may be found in the symbol of the birth of freedom that rises on the $100,000 Yorktown monument, above the war drum and the thirteen female figures circling in a solemn dance. Below are the shining river and the quiet fields where colonial soldiers once locked in a death struggle wtih the British redcoats.

"One Country, One Destiny."

"One Country, One Constitution, One Destiny," is written beneath the feet of these stone maidens. It took one hundred and fifty years for the infant colony at Jamestown to develop the strength to go its own way. It was another hundred years after Yorktown that this monument was built.

Perhaps the nation at last is on its way. Driving on the new highway through the old pine woods of this section, touching within a few miles of the early struggle at Jamestown, the rich development at Williamsburg, the culmination at Yorktown, one gets a new view of the forces of destiny.

In the beginning there was a single ladder of light that reached down from the clouds. This was the ladder of applied science. The climbing of its steps is coincidental with the struggle for independence, the growth of nationhood.

Fathers Study of Resources.

It was Jefferson, Dr. Austin H. Clark, curator of Smithsonian institute, has pointed out, who initiated the era of intensive investigation of the resources and natural products of the country, first in Virginia and later on a nation-wide basis. The Lewis and Clarke expedition was one result of this policy, and shows the connection between the new scientific impulse and its political and economic results.

The scientific method of curing tobacco perfected by John Rolfe in 1612 had many important results in the history of this country. It built the great plantations of the tidewater country, formed the basis of income even for the parish ministers, and stimulated the trade in slaves with its tragic after effects.

Science did not have much to do with early educational motives, for the charter of William and Mary college, granted in 1693, stated that King William and Queen Mary had in mind for their faithful subjects that the "Church of Virginia may be furnished with a seminary of ministers of the gospel, and that the youth may be piously educated in good letters and menners, and that the Christian faith may be propagated amongst the western Indians, to the glory of Almighty God."

Asks for Free School.

It was the Rev. James Blair who knelt before the king and said: "Please, your majesty, here is a humble supplication from the government of Virginia for your majesty's charter to erect a free school and college for the education of their youth."

"Sir," said the king, "I am glad the colony is upon so good a design," thereby assenting to the establishment of the school and, all unknowingly, sealing the doom of English rule in America.

Attorney General Seymour of England was not so enthusiastic. Upon the Rev. Mr. Blair's plea for education and ministering to the souls of Virginians, who, he said, had souls the same as the English, Seymour said: "Souls! Damn your souls—make tobacco."

It was over the question of the ministers' fees in tobacco that Patrick Henry in good time was to raise the issue of the king's right to make any sort of tax laws for these colonies, and to start the ball of revolution rolling.

Become Interested in Science.

Modern science, Dr. Clark writes, may be said to have begun after the restoration in 1660, when Charles II. in effect decreed that there is nothing irreligious in reporting facts.

"By the middle of the eighteenth century," he says, "interest in science was very general among the gentlemen of Virginia, and efforts were begun to form associations which had for their object bringing those with scientific interests into closer contact and stimulating the development of applied science. So the Society for the Promotion of Manufactures was formed at Williamsburg in 1759, followed by the Virginia Society for the Promotion of Useful Knowledge in 1773.

In 1769 the American Philosophical society for promoting useful knowledge was organized in Philadelphia. Papers on "The Fly Weevil That Destroys Wheat" and on the ground sloth were presented.

Advance Like an Avalanche.

The advance of science was like an avalanche, driving business and politics before it. The young men in college and those who had imbibed of the new scientific spirit were the leaders in the revolutionary movement, the molders of the new statecraft, the founders of the republic, not only in Virginia, but in all the colonies.

In another half century the American Association for the Advancement of Science was to be founded at a meeting presided over by Prof. William Barton Rogers of the University of Virginia, former student at William and Mary and a great geologist. The recent meeting of his association in Richmond, charting the future of science in all directions, emphasized the trend of things today, which sees America on the threshold of a door of opportunity opened by science.

It is significant that one of the chief drawbacks to this advance is the rise in the totalitarian states of a closed door attitude toward the same freedom of the mind which was the issue when monarchs reigned by so-called divine right. The temper of the scientists in this country is the same as that of the colonists of the eighteenth century—never again to submit to tyranny over thought.

Science Leads to Wealth.

Science led to business and business led to wealth and this led to the struggle over taxes which brought on the war for independence. With this was mingled the question of religious freedom, which was never seriously questioned here, and the question of civil liberties involving the removal of colonists to England for trial in criminal cases.

So, as migration to this country had mixed motives, the independence movement grew out of a tangled skein, the common tangled human skein. Under it all, however, and over it all the thought of liberty took shape until it became externalized. It had to speak first through the rifles perfected by the gunmakers of the mountains of Virginia and Pennsylvania and across the Alleghanies.

The strange picture of political alliances enters into this scene. In 1753 George Washington set out from Williamsburg to warn the French not to build forts along the Ohio river frontier. He made his way on foot, through snow and sleet, across creeks and rivers, gun in hand and pack on back. His Indian guide misled him and sought to kill him, but here and at other times Washington was preserved miraculously.

French Beat Him to Fort.

Washington, then under British orders, was told to raise a force of 200 men, drill them, and build a fort at the future site of Pittsburgh. The French beat him there, however, as at Fort Necessity, where he was besieged by a superior force. This was the beginning of the seven year French and Indian war which ended with British control.

"Believe me, there was something charming in the sound of bullets," Washington wrote after one of these engagements in which he had marched through a pitch black rainy night to surprise and capture a French contingent.

On Oct. 19, 1781, Washington was to accept the surrender of the British army at Yorktown—a surrender brought about by the aid of the French not only in the trenches, but in the fleet that blocked the entrance to the bay at the Virginia capes and left Cornwallis stranded.

The national government and the CCC have rebuilt the old earthworks, and one can play golf now along the redoubts which Alexander Hamilton and others captured in night assaults just before the surrender.

American Flag Replaces British.

"At noon on Oct. 19," writes John J. Buchser, "the British colors on the redoubt were replaced by an American flag. Two hours later the allied armies took up a position extending for more than a mile along the Yorktown-Hampton road. As if on parade, the Americans in double rank, lined the road on the west side facing the single line of the French on the east.

"Dressed in their best uniforms, the Continentals, a phalanxed mass of fighters, stood in the front rank. Their tanned faces beamed with anticipation; the scourge of the south was about to pass in front of them and lay down his arms. Behind the veterans of many battles stood the militia, very sons of fire. They were the men who had scorned to wear the red royalist ribbons in their hats and had left their hearthstones to fight for their country.

British Troops Surrender.

"Across the road, in a solid line, stood the élite of the French army. Dressed in spotless white uniforms, trimmed with colored lapels, they presented a brilliant spectacle. Their regimental colors of white silk embroidered with golden fleur-de-lis, fluttered in the autumn breeze. They were the men who had come for more than a thousand miles in answer to the distress call of a fettered nation.

"With a funeral pace the dejected garrison, led by Gen. O'Hara, marched out of Yorktown to surrender their arms to the allied conquerors. Their muskets were shouldered, their colors cased, and their fifes played an appropriate tune, 'The World Turned Upside Down.'

"The presentation of the flags and the laying down of arms completed the ceremony of surrender."

Gets Polish Cross

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Consul General Waclaw Gawronski pinning Gold Cross of Merit, awarded by Poland, on Miss Elma Pratt.

The gold cross of merit of the Polish government was awarded last night to Miss Elma Pratt of Sandusky, O., by Dr. Waclaw Gawronski, consul general of Poland, at the Polish Arts club, 410 South Michigan avenue.

The award was made in recognition of her efforts in bringing Polish art to the attention of the United States. Miss Pratt became interested in Polish art in 1925 during a tour of Europe. Since then she has helped sponsor many major exhibits.

Miss Pratt is the founder and president of the International School of Art in Sandusky.

DISBARRED ATTORNEY WHO DUPED MORAN'S PROSECUTORS IS FREED

A disbarred lawyer, who persuaded the state's attorney to keep him in comfort at a hotel by promises of help that he never delivered, yesterday defeated the county's attempt to send him to prison as an embezzler. He is James W. Casey, who was disbarred in 1934 on charges of swindling a client.

James W. Casey.

Seized last June in connection with an embezzlement case filed 6 months earlier, he offered to get the state evidence in the $500,000 American Express money order forgery case in which George [Bugs] Moran was accused. The state's attorney's staf accepted Casey's offer and sent him to a hotel, where he was kept until Moran's trial in January. Casey refused to testify. The embezzlement charge was then revived.

Yesterday he successfully argued that he could not be prosecuted because the state had allowed four terms of court to pass without bringing him to trial. Judge Robert J. Dunne freed him.

GETS YEAR FOR BOGUS CHECKS.

Robert Weller, 38 years old, who has obtained $300 by cashing bogus checks since his arrival two months ago from Toledo, O., was sentenced yesterday to a year in the Bridewell by Municipal Judge George B. Weiss.

MONTEVIDEO CITY OF FINE BEACHES; OCEAN ON 3 SIDES

Colonies of Cabins Dot Long Water Front.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 20. — [By Air Mail.] — Montevideo, the capital of Uruguay, is a swimmers' paradise. The city is built on a promontory that juts out into the blue Atlantic ocean, far away from the Plata estuary's muddy waters. There is an endless chain of beaches along the east, south, and west sides of the city.

Arrow Locates Montevideo.

Little cabana towns dot the beaches. Many of the cabanas are frame structures just large enough to dress in. They are built on wheels for easy movement. Other beaches have hundreds of small conical tents put up in rows. Many large fashionable hotels face the waterfront. Their prices are surprisingly reasonable, but perhaps their roulette wheels help pay the overhead.

Skyscraper of 26 Stories.

The city is clean and inviting. The most conspicuous landmark is the Palacio Salvo with a main building of twelve stories and a tower of fourteen. A bulge midway up the tower gives the building a peculiar appearance. The cathedral, with a large dome and two side turrets, is even higher than the Palacio Salvo.

Another building that attracts attention is the national capitol, the meeting place of the senate and the chamber of representatives. The building is of Uruguayan marble and is a glorious display of color. The senate chamber, though small, is the picture of luxury. Judging from the looks of the overstuffed chairs, one may easily indulge in sleep. One great hall of the capitol is done in deep purple; smaller halls are in light browns and blues.

A Model Penitentiary.

On a tour of the city one of the striking sights is the penitentiary. Its architecture is attractive and flowers, trees, and well kept grass beautify the grounds. The inmates have hot and cold baths—some of the best hotels down here have only cold water.

Montevideo has a big concrete football stadium seating 100,000 persons. As in Argentina, a moat prevents unruly spectators leaving the stands and entering the field. Also, the field has a judges' tower twelve stories high.

Streets of the main part of the city are straight and of average width, but there are many big boulevards flanked by rows of beautiful trees, many monuments and statues. The monument that stirs the most pride among the citizens would have been suitable for Cleveland's pioneer days celebration last year. The piece is a life size bronze of six oxen hauling a covered cart in which are women of the family. Two cowboys ride alongside the cart and two cows trail along.

Heavily Wooded Parks.

The city's main plaza is about 200 by 300 yards. Facing the plaza are all kinds of buildings from a French sidewalk café to an old colonial homestead. In the plaza are monuments, antique artillery, trees, and flowers. There are many parks and most of them are heavily wooded, like the Bois de Bologne in Paris. From the city limits gently rolling farm lands extend away to the north.

Montevideo has a population of nearly 700,000. It was founded in 1726. The city dominates the commerce of the country and appears prosperous.

Much of the transportation is by draft animals — good, old-fashioned, long eared mules are much in evidence. American automobiles predominate among the cars.

YOU'RE NOT SAFE—not even if there's a shiny 1939 model in your garage right now.

For if you ever get your hands on this long silver streak of a Nash, your present car is going to feel as out-of-date as the old horse and carriage.

First, you don't walk to get into a Nash...you almost run to catch it before it really sails away. (At least, it looks as if it would!)

You step inside . . . only the control dials on the instrument panel tell you the engine is already running.

You start out...no whirring of gears, but three tiny clicks of a lever* on the steering post, and you're swooping down the road.

No fooling—here is HORSEPOWER!

Not that draggy, plow-horse sort you're used to, but 99 black devils of polo ponies pulling you out of the saddle.

But you haven't felt anything yet... for a *Fourth Speed Forward suddenly cuts in, and you feel a giant hand grasp the car and scoot it down the highway, like Junior does his toy truck.

No laboring from the engine...no roar from beneath...it's so quiet you catch the awed whisper from your wife's lips.

Clouds of dust ahead! But you come through spotless! The "Weather Eye"* gives you fresh air without dust, dirt, insects, or the discomfort of chilling drafts. (On rainy days, you stay dry.)

You come into a line of traffic. But your Nash breaks away like a half-pint half-back running wild on a dry field.

In sober truth, you've never felt a car stop, start, pivot, change pace, top a hill, or smooth a bump, with such fleet, lazy ease.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

24,083 VOTERS REGISTER; RUSH SWAMPS BOARD

Last Day Turnout Credited to Kelly Message.

"It is your duty to see to it that the people in your precinct are brought—or sent—to room 308, city hall, to be registered."

To this sentence, the closing words in a telegram sent last Thursday by Mayor Kelly to each of the 3,648 precinct captains of the regular Democratic organization, was attributed the turmoil into which the board of election commissioners was thrown yesterday.

Before 10 a.m. an estimated 3,000 persons had appeared seeking to register or change their addresses. At 10:30 a branch office with 100 extra clerks was opened in the county treasurer's office. By 9 p.m., closing time, a total of 24,083 had registered during the final day, an all-time record.

Registration's Total Is 1,875,383.

Altogether 48,021 have registered since the final registration period opened on March 3. This brings Chicago's total of registered voters to 1,875,383. A total of 1,827,362 were registered before the primary.

Election clerks, footsore and weary, said they didn't know why or whence the voters were coming. All they knew was that many of them wore Kelly buttons. Many of the voters, however, admitted cheerfully that they were there because their precinct captain told them to be.

"My precinct worker told me to shake a leg and get down here," a Negro woman from the 3d ward confided. "My party? Well, now, I'm under no obligation to say, but I will say I'm with the majority."

"Well," said another, "I was asked to come down here and register for a certain election." And, with a wide grin, she sidled off.

From All Walks of Life.

Those registering were from all walks of life. Many nuns were seen. Many housewives were there, as were many men in ragged, ill-fitting clothes. Usually they came in surges, large groups of six or ten.

"I can't see how all these people could be in precincts without being registered," said Jack Hagopian of 2151 North Parkside avenue, a clerk.

Democratic party workers smiled. Ward committeemen, they said, issued orders that each precinct captain bring in at least ten new Kelly voters. That way, they said, they hope to reach their goal of 1,000,000 votes for Kelly.

But no one was able to explain the action of the woman who hurried in, registered, and then, stopping beside a clerk at the exit, asked what day the election was.

"April 4, madam," he told her.

"Well," she said with asperity. "I'm not going to vote anyway!"

6,115 ALIENS FIRED FROM WPA; HALF ARE CHICAGOANS

Charles E. Miner, state WPA administrator, announced last night that 6,115 aliens had been discharged from Illinois WPA rolls. The last WPA appropriation bill provided that all aliens be discharged by last midnight. Miner said 3,755 of those fired were in Chicago. All discharged workers had first citizenship papers, he said, but had not obtained their final papers. Under the former WPA regulations aliens with first papers were allowed to hold jobs.

2 Party System Safeguard of Democracy, Forum Told

The American two party system is the only thing that can preserve democracy in this country, the City Club forum was told yesterday by Prof. Earl H. DeLong of the political science department, Northwestern university. He warned against reorganization of the parties on a conservative-liberal basis, declaring that a so-called liberal party would collapse within six months through internal strife.

Courtney's Gone; Reported on His Way to Palm Beach

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney was reported yesterday to be en route to Palm Beach, Fla., to rest after his unsuccessful primary campaign for the Democratic mayoral nomination. Last week, when asked whether he would leave town after the primary, Mr. Courtney said: "If I'm here, I'm here. If I'm gone, I'm gone." Yesterday he was gone. It also was reported that he might visit Cuba.

MRS. RUBY BOULTON.

William Boulton is great on the reconciliations, but once they are accomplished he just hauls off and socks her again. That is what Judge Philip Finnegan was told yesterday by Mrs. Ruby Boulton, 24 years old, of 7522 Champlain avenue as she sought temporary alimony. The husband, who is an electrician and lives at 8251 Ellis avenue, said he would gladly pay her any amount she might want, but that he preferred she give him another chance.

"It's no use, judge," she said. "We have separated and have become reconciled a dozen times. His promises are wonderful, but every time we start living together again he hauls off and socks me. Our ideas on marriage don't seem to agree."

"They certainly don't," said Judge Finnegan, and he granted her $15 a week pending trial of her divorce.

ILLINOIS RELIEF LOAD INCREASES; TOTALS 1,385,681

The number of persons supported by the various relief programs in Illinois increased from 1,373,395 in December to 1,385,681 in January, according to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission's monthly bulletin issued yesterday. The total includes those supported by direct relief, WPA, old age assistance, and blind and mothers' pensions. Although the number of persons supported by WPA dropped from 769,071 to 745,870, direct relief beneficiaries rose from 545,447 to 579,528 persons.

DEDICATE MIAMI PLAQUE IN HONOR OF SLAIN CERMAK

Chicagoans at Ceremony on Death Anniversary.

Miama, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—A plaque in honor of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago was dedicated here today on the sixth anniversary of his death. Many Chicagoans were in Miami for the ceremony.

The tablet was placed on the spot where Cermak was shot by Giuseppe Zangara in an attempt to assassinate the President-Elect, Franklin D. Roosevelt, on Feb. 15, 1933. The plaque erected by members of the Czechoslovakian society and widely known Chicagoans, bear the words spoken by the mayor immediately after the shooting. He told Mr. Roosevelt: "I'm glad it was me instead of you."

Judge Otto Kerner of Chicago, who gave the presentation address, praised Cermak's career and told of his heroic death.

"He gave his life and he gave it philosophically," Judge Kerner said. "His words spoke volumes when he said to the President-Elect: 'I'm glad it was me instead of you.' His understanding, his unselfish reasoning, his consideration of the public welfare was in his heart to the very last."

Kelly Praises Foresight.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago also spoke at the ceremony. A close associate of the former mayor, he remained at Cermak's bedside in the hospital until his death, and since has filled the slain man's post.

"Anton Cermak built a new foundation for the spirit of the great city of Chicago," Mr. Kelly said. "He started it on its way to a new era of sound financial progress and redeemed its good name."

A message sent by President Roosevelt stated that "as long as heroism and self-sacrifice are held in honor, the name of Anton J. Cermak will be kept in everlasting remembrance."

Horner Unable to Attend.

James M. Slattery, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, represented Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, who is at Miami Beach recovering from a long illness. He said the governor regretted his inability to attend in person to pay tribute to Cermak, "who not only was his great friend, but who has been an inspiration to him."

Mayor Kelly visited the governor, who is reported to be making marked progress in his fight for health. He is so much better that his return to Illinois next month is expected by his aids. He has been suffering from a weakened heart since last November.

"The governor is feeling much better and has made such progress that he should be back in Illinois, weather permitting, by April 1—certainly not later than April 15," said John Casey, who has been with Mr. Horner in his long stay in Florida.

GREEN RENEWS WARD ATTACK UPON KELLY; BIG RALLY IS TONIGHT

Dwight H. Green, Republican nominee for mayor, last night began the long grind of ward meetings that will continue throughout the four weeks before the election on April 4.

"Kelly's machine got only one-third of the votes in Chicago on primary day," he told a 3d ward meeting at 4711 South Park way. "That was the peak of its power. A popular uprising has started. The machine will be destroyed in April. Its leaders realize this. They are desperate."

Green also spoke at an 8th ward meeting in Carpenters' hall, 7427 South Chicago avenue. He is already booked for several meetings a night for the next two weeks except tonight when the Republicans will converge on the Auditorium theater in a city-wide pilgrimage. There Green and other leaders will formally open the election campaign by outlining the issues against Mayor Kelly and the Democratic party.

U. S. JURORS TURN BACKS ON JUDGE; HE APPROVES IT

Trenton, N. J., March 6.—(AP)—Jurors turned backs on Federal Judge Phillip Forman today, witnesses took the stand in the center of the courtroom facing judge and jury, and Judge Forman said "everything worked out very nicely."

It was the beginning of an experiment, he explained, "scrapping the traditional courtroom arrangement for utilitarian purposes."

The reason: to enable the court and jury to hear more easily the answers from witnesses who, the judge said, often were "put off-side" by turning their heads from the jury to reply to a query from the court.

RUBBISH BLAST INJURES THREE.

Three colored WPA workers were injured slightly yesterday by an explosion in a rubbish heap they were burning at 51st and La Salle streets. Police believe that a dynamite percussion cap was in the pile.

SENTENCE 2 VOTE JUDGES TO YEAR; FINE WOMAN $500

Two men and a women—election officials in the 33d precinct of the 24th ward—were held in contempt yesterday by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki for frauds and irregularities in the precinct during the primary of last April. The men, who were sentenced to a year in jail, are Eugene Steiner, Republican judge, and Paul Lidovsky, Democratic judge. The woman is Mrs. Rose Fishman, a Republican judge. She was fined $500. Estelle Litwin, Republican clerk, and Albert Brooks, Democratic clerk, were found not guilty. Handwriting experts testified that eighty-one ballots cast in the precinct had been marked by the same person. Forty-two ballots showed erasures.

Forest Preserve Budget of $4,694,482 Adopted

The forest preserve budget of $4,694,482 was passed yesterday by the county board. The budget included $1,073,353 for the maintenance of the Brookfield zoo. Other divisions include $1,008,967 for operating expenses, $1,399,380 for the bond and interest fund, $242,793 for the improvement fund, and $52,297 for the employés' annuity and benefit fund.

$3,254,908 Spent by CRA for January Aid to Families

The Chicago Relief administration spent $3,254,908 during January to support the 103,612 families on its rolls, according to the monthly bulletin of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission issued yesterday. The CRA obtained $2,619,908 of its funds from the state and $635,000 from local tax funds.

THE RULES

1. This offer is open FREE to everyone everywhere, excepting employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families.

2. A new crossword puzzle containing the name and nickname of a famous American will be printed in the Chicago Daily Tribune each week day until 42 have appeared. You are invited to solve these puzzles and find the names and nicknames.

3. Puzzles are to be submitted only in complete sets. DO NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold until you have the entire set of 42. Then send to: "Nicknames," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1589, Chicago, Illinois. Entries must be in by midnight one week after Puzzle No. 42 has been printed. Send by First Class Mail, postage prepaid.

4. The Chicago Tribune will pay 430 cash prizes, totaling $5,000.00 for the most nearly correctly solved complete sets of puzzles submitted in accordance with these rules. (See Prize List.) You do not have to solve ALL puzzles correctly to win. Prizes will be paid to those whose entries rank highest. No person may submit more than one entry and no one shall be entitled to more than one prize.

5. Each entry will be checked for accuracy and rated accordingly. Your entry must be accompanied by a letter giving your name and address and completing, in 25 words or less, a statement telling which Nickname you like best and why. Such statements will be considered only if two or more persons submit equally correct solutions to the puzzles, in which event, further judgment will be based on the originality and sincerity of the thought expressed. Answers must be the original thought of the contestant. The judges shall have the right to disqualify any entry which, in their sole judgment, appears to be the thought of another person.

6. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles. The Tribune may be examined free at its offices or Public Libraries. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune and their decisions will be final and binding. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be paid to tying contestants.

DEATH PROOFING HIGHWAYS GOAL OF ROAD MAKERS

Experts Discuss Major Program.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 6.—[Special.]—The American Road Builders association will open its thirty-sixth annual convention here tomorrow. The main objective of the four days meeting is the promotion of death proof highway construction such as advocated for Chicago and for Illinois in the second plank of THE TRIBUNE'S editorial platform.

"This promotion," said Murray D. Van Wagoner, Michigan highway commissioner, and president of the national association, "will not be limited to analysis of the advisability and feasibility of building elevated highways and other safety roads. We expect to formulate a definite program for enactment of enabling legislation by the current session of congress and by the current general assemblies of the states."

Federal Subsidy Included.

Mr. Van Wagoner's proposals include a plan for federal subsidy of death proof road building, rural as well as urban. He will present this plan to the convention tomorrow.

"This national promotion of federal aid for death proof road building," said Herbert R. Anderson, president of the Illinois Road Builders association, "is of particular concern to Chicago. It will help Mayor Kelly realize his plan for 100 million dollars worth of super highways.

"The national program will also help Illinois modernize its more heavily traveled highways of antiquated design which account for a large portion of the state death toll."

Influential Organization.

THE TRIBUNE a week ago published a map in color showing 1,800 miles of killer roads in Illinois. Charles M. Upham, engineer and director of the American Road Builders association, said here today that modernization of a typical old highway can reduce its fatality risk 75 per cent.

This American Road Builders association is powerful and it might be effective in petitioning congress for a safety road program. The 20,000 delegates assembled here represent an industry that spent more than 2 billion dollars in street and highway work last year and gave at least part time employment to 2,133,000 men.

"Our aims," said Mr. Van Wagoner, "are in keeping with the best interests of the public. Sound economics as well as the saving of lives will guide our advocacy of expenditures. Unemployment relief will be merely an incidental consideration."

PEDESTRIAN, 60, KILLED BY AUTO; DRIVER JAILED

Max Polk, 60 years old, 2907 Logan boulevard, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile at Logan boulevard and Francisco avenue. He died in St. Elizabeth's hospital. The driver, Maurice Johnson, 2838 Cambridge avenue, was held by the Shakespeare avenue police.

Gustave Isabell, 55, was killed yesterday at 159th street, east of Cicero avenue, in Bremen township, by an automobile driven by Frederick Kure, 27, 1804 South 61st court, Cicero. Isabell, an inmate of the Oak Forest infirmary, was out walking.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 156 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 123 were killed in Chicago where 3,206 were injured in the same period.

N. Y. MILLIONAIRE WINS CUSTODY FIGHT IN CANADA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., March 6.—Dr. Henry Ward Williams, millionaire brain specialist of Rochester, N. Y., today won custody of his two sons for ten months each year after abduction charges against his former wife, Mrs. Drummond Code, were withdrawn by order of the court. Charges of abetting Mrs. Code, brought against her present husband, also were withdrawn.

The terms of the custody order were the same as those of a divorce granted Dr. Williams in New York in 1936. The boys, 7 and 9 years old, have $25,000 each in their own right and are possible heirs to their father's $1,600,000 fortune.

Mrs. Code, who lives in Montreal, was arrested Saturday night at the border, where she sought to leave the jurisdiction of the local Superior court by crossing to Detroit, Mich. The boys were with her. Mrs. Code was brought back to Montreal today. Dr. Williams and his sons left tonight for Rochester.

$4,558,000 ROAD JOB BIDS TO BE ASKED BY COUNTY

State O. K.'s New Projects to Cost $2,958,000.

Cook county highway improvements to cost $2,958,000 were approved yesterday by the state division of highways. Bids for this work and additional projects to cost another $1,600,000, a total of $4,558,000, will be sought next week, according to County Commissioner Dan Ryan.

The program will be financed from the county's one-third of the gasoline tax revenue, Ryan said. In recent years most road projects received federal aid.

"All of the work is designed to make driving and walking safer," Ryan said.

Alter Lawrence Avenue Plans.

Lawrence avenue will be improved by construction of 15½ foot concrete auto lanes on each side of the car tracks from Ashland avenue to Broadway. From Broadway to the Outer drive, where there are no car tracks, there will be a 40 foot concrete pavement. This will cost $150,000.

Widening of Lawrence avenue from the Chicago river to Central avenue, a distance of three and a half miles, has been approved by the state, but will not be carried out. Property owners objected, claiming a wider street would endanger pedestrians, Ryan said. The $500,000 provided for this purpose will be diverted to other projects, he said.

Many Other Projects Listed.

Other major improvements in the list are as follows:

Pulaski road (formerly Crawford avenue)—Ten foot concrete lanes on each side of pavement from 74th to 87th street, $100,000. Fifteen and one-half foot concrete lanes on each side of pavement from Argyle street to Bryn Mawr avenue, $100,000.

Harlem avenue — From Shermer road to Glenview road, 1.8 miles of 22 foot concrete, $125,000.

Torrence avenue—Widening existing pavement with two 10 foot concrete strips from 140th street to Calumet river, and constructing 40 foot concrete pavement from the river to 134th street, $75,000.

Avenue "C"—Two 10 foot strips to widen pavement from 106th street to Brainard avenue, 4.25 miles, $300,000.

Burr Oak avenue, Blue Island—Steel deck girder viaduct with 44 foot roadbed and two sidewalks at crossing of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, $500,000.

47th street—Concrete pavement 42 feet wide from Kedzie to Kostner avenues, 1.5 miles, $200,000.

South Park avenue—Concrete pavement 42 feet wide from 68th to 79th street, $150,000.

Brainard avenue—Two 10 foot concrete strips to widen highway from Torrence avenue to the state line, $150,000.

Among numerous smaller projects is one for installation of electric gates and flashing signals at grade crossings of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad at Gross Point road and Howard street.

OAK PARK TRUSTEES SOLVE THEIR TERMS IN OFFICE MUDDLE

Oak Park's village trustee problem apparently was settled last night. A statute passed recently required that the terms of the village's six trustees be staggered so that three would be elected every two years for regular four year terms.

It happened that the present six trustees were elected before the statute staggering terms became law. All have two more years to round out their terms. Judge Harry M. Fisher was called upon to settle the problem. He ruled that the six should draw lots to see which three should remain in office for two more years and which three should run at a special election in April for new four year terms.

At the board meeting last night Trustees Dorothy C. Kerr, Noel M. Maxson, and Raymond F. Clark agreed not to run for reëlection. This means that they will finish out the two years remaining on their terms, at which time another election will be necessary. It also means that the three other trustees, Robert F. Glaesel, Jay F. Hepler, and Willis C. Wilcox will run for new four year terms in April. Thus the terms will be staggered every two years.

SUBMIT OFFERS FOR NEW SITE OF AIRPORT TRACKS

Action to obtain a new right of way for the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad so that its tracks can be moved from the Chicago airport was renewed yesterday by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes. He wrote to eighty owners of property needed for new right of way and asked them to sell their tracts to the city as agent for the railroad.

In each instance a definite price for the land was offered. The prices, Hodes said, were set by an impartial board of appraisers. The property owners were asked to notify Hodes by March 17 whether they will accept the city's offer.

Hodes told the owners that condemnation suits will be filed to gain possession of the land of those who do not accept by the St. Patrick's day deadline. The new right of way is to be north of 55th street.

16 Army Planes Destroyed by Fire Near Bucharest

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

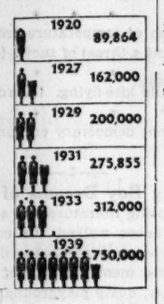
BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 6.—Sixteen army airplanes were destroyed in a fire at a military airfield near Bucharest tonight. A government statement hinted that a short circuit was responsible, but police are investigating the possibility of sabotage.

CHICAGO'S GIRL SCOUTS JOIN IN FOUNDER'S FETE

Mark 27th Anniversary of Organization.

Girl Scouts—8,900 of them in Chicago alone—are celebrating the 27th anniversary of their organization this week. More than 500 of their leaders will meet Thursday in the Palmer House to honor the memory of the organization's founder, Mrs. Juliette Low.

Mrs. Low, who died Jan. 17, 1927, was a great-granddaughter of John Kinzie, first permanent white resident of Chicago. He came here in 1804. His home was on the north bank of the Chicago river, near the site of Tribune Tower.



Increase in membership of Girl Scouts in United States. Each figure represents 100,000 girls.

Girls Sent to Summer Camp.

At the meeting Thursday the girls will give pennies collected from their troops for the Juliette Low fund for international understanding. This money finances the international camp of the Girl Scouts at Adelboden, Switzerland.

Girls from each of the thirty-two countries affiliated with the scouts are sent there each summer. The international camp was held here two years ago. Mrs. John B. Bremner is chairman of the Juliette Low day here.

"Girls today live in a world that has known war, depression, and widespread turmoil," Mrs. Morton Bassett, executive director of the Girl Scouts of Chicago, said yesterday.

"Nothing is quite so simple as it was on March 12, 1912, when Juliette Low held a tea party in Savannah, Ga., after a visit in England, and introduced scouting to this country.

"The Girl Scout program still is fresh and varied, however. Girls have a selection of ten badges they may seek or ten programs of scout work."

Outdoor Study Offered.

These include outdoors, homemaking, and international friendship activities, arts and crafts, community life, sports and games, and nature study. Or the girls may study health and safety, literature, and drama, or music and drawing.

"In the old days Girl Scouts drilled and organized drum and bugle corps," said Mrs. Bassett. "Now the educational features are stressed. If a girl wants a 'wide world badge' she studies the contributions to our culture which peoples from other nations have made. She learns the things which make for friendly and for unfriendly relations between nations.

"If she wants to study community life she joins a group which studies current affairs in Chicago. She learns how to become a useful member of her community and her country."

Impanel New Grand Jury; Insurance Man Foreman

Austin E. Walsh, 8229 Calumet avenue, a life insurance salesman, was appointed foreman of the March grand jury which was impaneled yesterday by Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Criminal court. The jury was given the usual routine instructions by the judge.

Did she get ALL of your letters out yesterday? Then why ASK her to do them TWICE?

When there's a new and better way isn't it rather silly to ask your secretary to do your letters TWICE? If she didn't get all of your dictation typed yesterday . . . she CAN tomorrow . . . if you'll give her an EDIPHONE. Then she won't waste time sitting at your desk while you think and dictate. She will use that time to type and do a myriad of other things. Ask for one on trial. We'll teach you to use it in probably one minute.

NAB 7 IN SERIES OF BURGLARIES ON SOUTH SIDE

Four youths were held as alleged burglars and three men as alleged receivers of stolen goods by South Chicago police last night. Police said the arrests clear up a series of burglaries in which $700 worth of loot was taken.

The young suspects are Walter Micheles, 17 years old, 8835 Exchange avenue, said to have served a term in the St. Charles school; Felix Lewandowski, 14, of 8749 Houston avenue; Daniel Mishler, 16, of 8836 Exchange avenue, and Edward Skibinsky, also 16, of 8846 Exchange avenue.

Held as receivers are Martin Payrl, 20, of 8833 Exchange avenue; Van Kierzek, 22, of 8809 Escanaba avenue, and Anthony Kwapich, 35, of 9013 Houston avenue. Policemen Martin Keenan, James McMahon, and Vincent Lewandowski made the arrests.

EX-GOV. CURLEY IN SPEEDING CAR HALTED BY LAW

Boston, Mass., March 6.—[Special.]—Former Governor James M. Curley, attempting in a speeding auto to overtake a New York express train, was halted today by Rhode Island state police. He posted $200 surety for his chauffeur on a speeding charge. The police said the auto hit between 80 and 85 miles an hour. The governor explained he was going to New York and missed the train at Boston. Then he tried to overtake it at Providence, but also had been too late there. He was trying to catch it at Westerly when he was stopped.

COLDS

Help Throw Them Off This Winter with the "COLD-FIGHTING" VITAMIN A

New HIGH-VITAMIN Yeast now Gives You 6200 Units of this Vitamin Daily

If winter makes you an easy prey to severe colds that "hang on," you very likely need more of the important "COLD-FIGHTING" Vitamin A.

Start now to make sure of a good extra supply every day by eating the new Fleischmann's HIGH-VITAMIN Yeast.

Just 2 cakes of this new, improved yeast eaten daily give 6200 units of "COLD-FIGHTING" Vitamin A—all the average person needs (plus meals)—as well as Vitamin B and D, and a rich supply of the "VITALITY" Vitamin G.

You also get the helpful "BOOSTER ACTION" of fresh yeast. The yeast helps stimulate slow digestion. This better digestion helps your body take up the vitamins you eat more fully—gives more complete results than just vitamins alone.

Eat one cake of Fleischmann's HIGH-VITAMIN Yeast ½ hour before breakfast and one ½ hour before supper. Begin today!

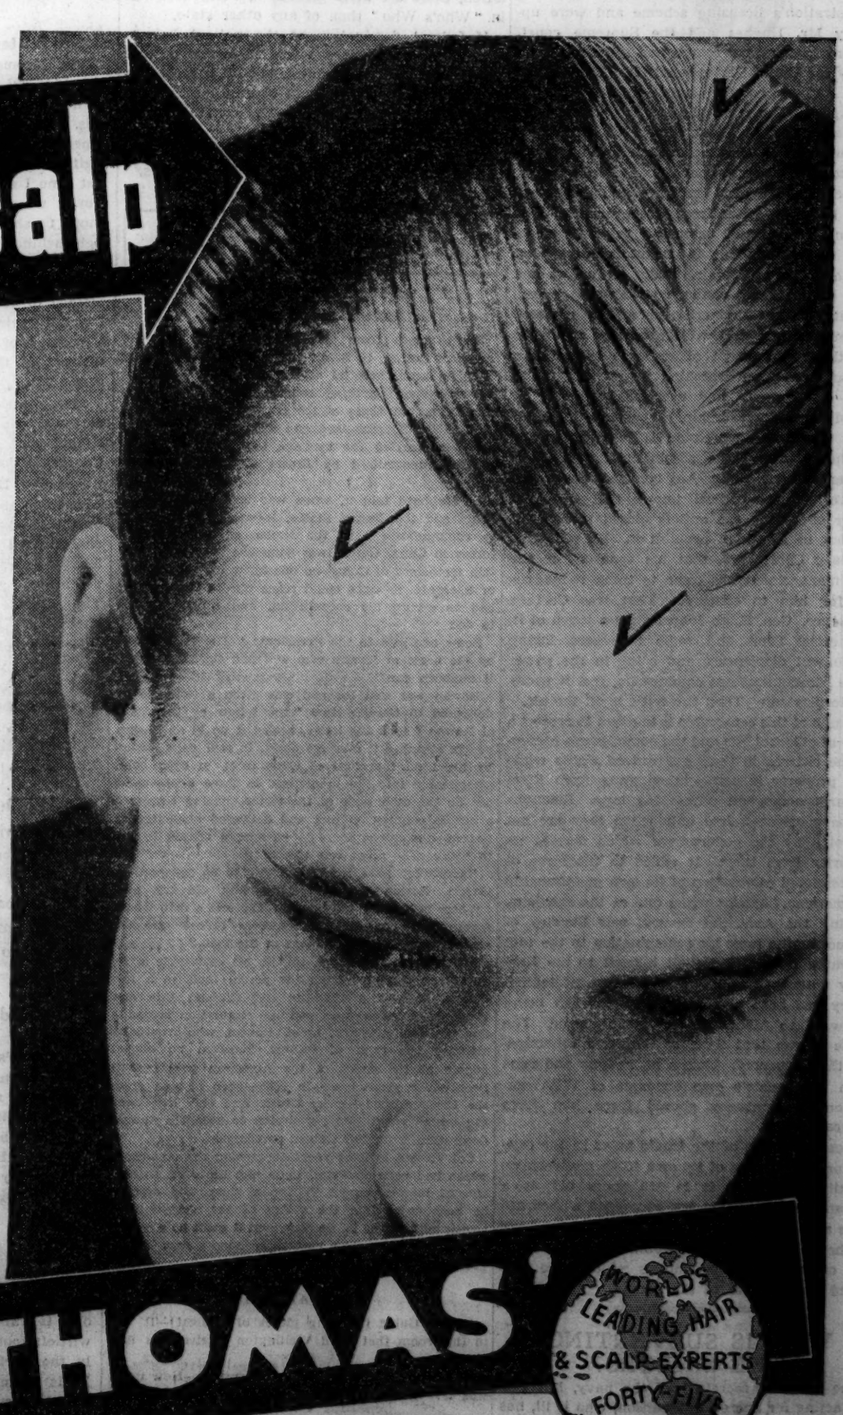
Wake Up That Lazy Scalp



GIVE YOUR HAIR A CHANCE TO GROW

YOUR Scalp becomes lazy and unable to continue its normal hair-growing function when any of the 14 local scalp ills, responsible for most cases of baldness, attacks your hair-growing structure. These 14 disorders cause the hair to fall abnormally, or to become too dry or too oily. They cause dandruff, scalp itch, and lead to baldness unless checked.

Save your hair and prevent baldness by turning your scalp problem over to a Thomas expert today. He'll carefully examine your scalp and will determine the exact causes of your hair-loss. He will then direct the reliable, proved Thomas treatment to overcome those causes. Your scalp itch will stop, dandruff will disappear. The dormant, lazy sources of hair growth will be gently stimulated so that hair can grow again on the thin and bald spots.

The Thomas' have helped more than a quarter-million persons to retain or regain hair during the past twenty years. They can help you, too. No charge is ever made in a Thomas office for a complete scalp examination.

CONGRESS AT 150.

Congress had a birthday anniversary Saturday, its 150th, and celebrated the occasion in a joint memorial session addressed by Mr. Roosevelt, Chief Justice Hughes, and several members of the national legislature itself. Mr. Roosevelt's admiration of the representative system and the liberties it safeguards was presented against a background of previously revealed thought that the national assembly should be merely the springboard from which the executive's orders take off. His idea of representative government was best realized in 1933 when, in the hundred dumb days, congress passed bills without reading them, and thus merely went through the motions of ratifying edicts.

Government by decree continued in this fashion until Mr. Roosevelt wanted to reduce the Supreme court to subserviency and rule in his own right. For a fateful period it seemed as if he must have his way. In the nick of time opposition recovered some of the congressional prerogatives and authority. The court was saved when congress itself had groped its way back to something like independence. Praise of the American system of government, with its independent branches, coming from Mr. Roosevelt was empty. He has offered no deeds to prove a faith.

Chief Justice Hughes could speak with sincerity. That is more than can be said of some of the prominent congressional leaders. They praise something they have not served. As representatives of the people they were willing to surrender not only their own rights but the rights of the people themselves.

We have freedom of the press because a majority of the newspapers vigorously fought the administration's licensing scheme and were upheld by Mr. Hughes and the Supreme court. Freedom from unjust search and seizure, threatened by the United States senate itself, was maintained in an equally hard combat by the newspapers. The man who led the attack upon this freedom, Hugo Black of the black hundred, was rewarded by Mr. Roosevelt with an appointment to the Supreme bench.

Speech in its most modern and important phase, by radio, is far from free even now. The licensing law, devised ostensibly to prevent confusion in broadcasting, is used to control what may go out over the air. Radio companies and public speakers not connected with the government live in fear that criticism will be resented and punishment follow. Everybody connected with the management of radio is aware of a governmental force watching for any excuse to reveal its hostility and exercise its power of prohibition and censorship.

The threat of suppression is inherent in the licensing law and the administration of it is partisan and autocratic. Any commentator whose observations are critical knows that he is in danger of having the outlets closed to him. It may not be by direct prohibition. He will find, as Boake Carter did, that his sponsors or the radio management has come to think it inadvisable for him to continue. That was Carter's experience. Gen. Hugh Johnson got a touch of it. Commercial firms and radio managers, facing government displeasure and being in the power of the communications commission, feel it necessary to play safe. Then the critic is off the air.

Enough of this censorship is in effect to protect a horde of officeholders and the commissions harassing the citizens in their guaranteed rights while their property is being taken away from them by burdensome and unjust tax laws. Elections can be considered free only when they are not controled by the government which derives its authority from them. It added to the farce of congressional celebration of its own guardianship of American liberties when one of the speakers, praising the American system, was Barkley of Kentucky, who owes his renomination to the fact presented by Mr. Roosevelt himself to the Kentucky voters, that 300 million dollars of federal money had been given the state, the gift being an award to Alban for services rendered. The public knows that Senator Barkley's renomination was thus procured. Unless he resigns and runs again the senate's own exposure of WPA corruption in Kentucky should force him from his seat.

These are some of the ironic notes in the celebration in congress of its own 150th anniversary. Luckily, now that it is 150 years old as a parliamentary body, it has recovered a measure of its authority. If it hadn't, it would never have another anniversary. It would have gone the way of other dead assemblies which once contained the liberties of the people.

WHO IS SUBVERTING THE SAILORS?

The assistant secretary of the navy, Mr. Edison, acting for Secretary Swanson, who is ill, has asked congress to pass a sedition act punishing persons who circulate communist propaganda on the warships and in the navy yards. He says that discipline and loyalty are endangered by these subversive approaches to the sailors.

Could it be that the political mind of the navy personnel is being tainted by pamphlets containing the thoughts of Mr. Amlie, Mr. Roosevelt's nominee to the interstate commerce commission, by speeches of Mr. Ickes on the sixty families, by certain remarks of Mr. Roosevelt against the cold blooded few and the expropriating class, by selected observations on capitalist degeneration by Mr. Saposs, the labor board's economic consultant, or by Mr. Browder of the communist party pleading for support of Mr. Roosevelt's domestic and foreign policy?

Before congress makes these remarks seditious it might be less embarrassing if the authors of the writings the sailors are not to read were discovered. The suspect literature may contain White House speeches and messages and departmental orders and proceedings. The sailors may be reading about the Roosevelt revolution. Or is the navy department proposal merely an attempt to sneak over a censorship?

FEDERAL AID FOR SCHOOLS.

A bill has been introduced in the senate to appropriate 70 million dollars this year to subsidize education in the various states. The 70 millions is only a starter. The bill recommends a gradual increase in the annual grant until in 1944 the distributive fund will amount to 199 million dollars. The program calls for appropriations totaling 800 million dollars in the next six years in addition to present federal aids to education.

Congressman Church of Evanston has attacked the bill at one of its more vulnerable points. The money is to be given to a state only after the office of education in Washington has approved the purposes for which the state intends to spend the grant. Mr. Church is alarmed lest this power be used to establish federal control over public education throughout the country. As he says, it is better that the educational authorities of the states make mistakes than that education fall into the hands of the central government as it has in the totalitarian states.

The bill discloses the federal burocracy already reaching out for the power to determine how the money shall be spent. Regulation of the curriculum is only one step further. The capture of the schools by political propagandists is clearly foreshadowed.

The administration in Washington prates of its devotion to democracy, but here again, as at so many other points, the influence of the administration is being exerted to undermine and destroy democratic institutions in this country. If the states and local governments had denied responsibility for education there might be some excuse for federal intervention. If the public schools were engaged in promoting disloyalty and disunion the federal government might be warranted in seeking to prevent such subversive activities. But nothing like that or remotely like that has happened or will happen. All that has happened is that the burocracy is lusting for power to dominate local governments and shape the minds of future citizens.

The excuse is the low standard of schools in some of the states and of some schools in all the states. It is said that certain states and certain school districts are too poor to provide better educational facilities. The argument will not bear examination. There is no state so poor that it cannot increase its school appropriations if it wants to. There are few if any localities in this country so poor that they cannot scrape up more money for education; and where such communities exist, the responsibility for improving their schools rests upon their state governments, not upon the federal government. Incidentally, it is not true that financially poor areas must have educationally poor schools. In proportion to population, there are more natives of Vermont listed in "Who's Who" than of any other state.

If federal domination of the nation's educational systems becomes a fact the worst schools may be somewhat improved, but all schools, the good and the bad alike, will become instruments for any propaganda which the commissars or fuehrers in Washington wish to disseminate. The possibilities of gain are small; the possibilities of damage to the cause of liberty are stupendous.

Editorial of the Day

"A MESSAGE TO GARCIA."

[Illinois State Register.]

Word comes from California that Col. Andrew Summers Rowan, U. S. A., retired, now lies critically ill in an army hospital at the age of 82. His name may not spell anything remarkable to the present generation, but those of the citizenry who can hark back to the Spanish-American war know him as the man who carried the message to Garcia, a famous exploit immortalized by Elbert Hubbard's thrilling story.

As Hubbard told it, when war broke out between Spain and the United States, it was very necessary to communicate with the leader of the insurgent forces in Cuba. Garcia was somewhere in the mountain fastnesses of Cuba—no one knew where. No mail or telegraph message could reach him. The President had to do? to secure his coöperation, and quickly. What

Some one said to the President: "There's a fellow by the name of Rowan who will find Garcia for you, if anybody can."

Rowan was sent for and was given a letter to be delivered to Garcia. How "the fellow by the name of Rowan" took the letter, sealed it up in an oilskin pouch, strapped it over his heart, in four days landed by night off the coast of Cuba from an open boat, disappeared into the jungle and in three weeks came out on the other side of the island, having traversed a hostile country on foot and delivered his letter to Garcia—are things there is no special reason to tell in detail. The point was this.

"McKinley gave Rowan a letter to be delivered to Garcia. Rowan took the letter and did not ask, 'Where is he?' By the eternal! There is a man whose form should be cast in deathless bronze and the statue placed in every college of the land."

While Hubbard's story, told in his inimitable style, may have departed from the actual facts in a few details, it was a thrilling inspirational tale and through its tremendous popular circulation served a fine purpose. However, Lieut. Rowan, who eventually attained the rank of colonel, received no official honors at the hands of the American people until twenty-four years later—in 1922—when he was given the Distinguished Service Cross. And only last week the senate voted him permission to accept a special decoration from the Cuban government.

Col. Rowan in later years deprecated the laudations which had been showered upon him for what he considered merely service in line of duty. But now as he goes down into the valley of the shadow such things bulk larger in memory, and it must be a source of satisfaction to him that these honors have finally been accorded him.

A City Boy Dreams of Spring.

Soon the spring literature will start pouring in. I, however, never walked the country lanes. I don't know what an early spring flower looks like. My springtime memories are of dirty, garbage smelling alleys; dusty playgrounds; freight trains being shifted in the yards.

Here is my best memory of spring—in Austin:

* * *

The rain washes the winter smoke from the sky. The water drips from the roofs, runs down the drain pipes into the gutter.

Leaves choke up the sewer. A pool of water spreads across the street. I sail a paper boat down the curb.

The sun comes out. The grass sparkles in the sunlight. I try to catch a gleam of light, but my hand never quite closes over it.

An automobile dashes past, capsizes my boat with a sheet of water. I run from the deluge. Wet, I scream at the driver, standing foolishly with fist clenched long after he has disappeared around the corner.

I make another boat from two leaves. It sails grandly down the gutter.

HORACE POURS HIS OWN.

(Odes: III., 21. "O nata mecum consule Manlio.")

Now shall I tap thee, my teen-age decanter,
Perhaps not of age, but thy spirit is bold
To make lovers grow mournful or given to banter,
To frenzy of gabbing or passing out cold.
Nobody cares when thou first wast fermented—
Corvinus, the lug, says thou art not au fait.
(For all of his learning he's somewhat demented; Corvy and Cato will drink thee some day.)

Many's the time thou hast prodded the nitwit,
Pitchforked him pleasantly, if from behind;
From ponderous foreheads brought forth a titbit;
Heartened the desperate; thou hast been kind
To men without money, given them gumption
To challenge the boss or to get in a fight.
The wine god and Venus (excuse my presumption)
The Graces themselves, those maids of delight—

With votive lamps burning, they'll be standing by,
Till Phœbus, the meany, puts pink in the sky.

Letter to Mr. Bakrak, Esq.

Deer Marmaduke: It is indeed gratifying to lern [2-17-'39] that you don't want to fight with me no more an' you want we should now be bosom pals, an' I think you should also make the same generous offer to a bunch of vitamins, my deer fugitive from a malnutrition remedy, because the last time I saw you it looked like you an' Rigor Mortis were running neck an' neck toward a photo finish at Skeleton Park, with Embalmer right behind youse an' coming up fast. In fact, old pal, I thought I saw you again on the street yesterday but I wasn't sure because whoever it was seemed to be breathing. If I was you, old deer, I would waste no time moving into a house with a wider door, as you know how the neighbors whisper if the pallbearers have to come out single file.

Also, you said in your letter that you was now ready to bury the old hatchet, from which I take it that your Aunt Sophie has kicked off at last. Congratulations.

However, Dookie, I sure am glad you changed your mind about suing me, because I checked up on that lawyer who wanted to defend me free of charge an' I discovered his fee was exhorbitant. The very first thing he does when he gits a job defending a guy is prepare to appeal the verdict. That hombre is just a short cut to the electric chair.

Nevertheless, old pal, it's just wonderful to realize that you an' me is now warm friends an' that you aint ever gonna call me a skunk no more, because I never even thought of ever calling you that. [Or was it because, when we met, the wind was always in the wrong direction?] So long, pal.

When Paderewski Surprised the Natives.

I wonder how many people can remember Paderewski's debut here so long ago [Dec. 31, 1891, at the Auditorium], when he first charmed us all?

An exotic figure, wrapped in a fur collared coat, a tiny top hat surmounting an aureole of orange hair, high heeled boots, and with those magical hands safe in a muff, he was a picturesque sight. But he played on our heartstrings then as now.

ALLOW CHILDREN SOME DAY DREAMING.

I DOUBT if there is any one, who as a child did not indulge in some day-dreaming. These episodes probably represented quite normal periods of mental relaxation in which fancy floated off on the wings of imagination. We may recall occasions when, stimulated by some fairy tale, we let the mind wander at will. Now and then we were actors in the drama while at other times we clothed some of our playmates with knightly armor or gowns of purple velvet and presented them at the court of make-believe.

But sometimes a worried mother will bring her son or daughter to the physician complaining of "spells" in which he or she will sit staring vacantly into space, the lips moving, the head nodding, or a smile breaking over the countenance at intervals. She may state that the youngster may be difficult to arouse to reality—even after being spoken to repeatedly.

Early recognition of this state of affairs, if it occurs frequently, is highly desirable, as it can become a dominant characteristic, possibly interfering with mental maturity. It is easy to dwell figuratively among elves and gnomes when one should be facing everyday tasks—a school lesson, for example. It then becomes the line of least resistance in which concentration of thought is shunned—a type of laziness that is anything but healthful. Danger may loom larger when Johnnie prefers to be alone, building air castles, rather than participating in natural play.

No single childhood habit needs to be watched more critically than the tendency to seek seclusion—all of which may be encouraged by routine or mechanical school assignments. Although at first the problem in arithmetic may demand attention, after a while—as the fingers work—the mind may go woolgathering. If the day is pleasant visions of the great out of doors may fill one's horizon. The brighter the lad, the more keenly alert, the more time will he have for such flights. One of the duties of the teacher is to make certain that these more brilliant little people have enough work to occupy every school hour. Should the inclination become obvious as a substitute for association with natural companions it may require correction.

Why will some children indulge to their own detriment? Because within the citadel of their designing they are always in command. There are no discouragements and praise comes to them on every hand. We must not blame them, if they are obliged to revert to an everyday home atmosphere of fault-finding, scolding, and criticism. The lonely lad is usually more prone to this method of escape. The remedies lie in companionship with those of his own age. It happens every now and then that the one who needs a brother or sister will—in self-defense—create for himself an imaginary friend.

The case is reported by Brillinger of a 9 year old girl who was brought to him because of a long record of classroom failures. The schedule of her grade appeared to be quite beyond her capacity. As a makeshift she spent her waking hours in a realm of "play life." A careful examination disclosed that she was of marked intelligence. It was found, however, that she was substantially underweight, had badly infected tonsils, and was somewhat anemic. Improvement of the physical condition—with transfer to another school more fitted to her abilities—completed the cure. The trouble clearly was an overly ambitious mother who was determined that her daughter should be "precocious." She had been pushed two grades ahead of others of her age and development. It is safe to assume that a permanent stamp of inferiority would have become fixed had not the cause been found.

I am sure that a great many lads and lassies alike profit by a reasonable amount of woolgathering through Elysium. But only harm will result when they are forced into wonderland in order to find comfort and satisfaction.

NO KNOWN REMEDY.

Mrs. D. S. writes: My 7 year old boy has nystagmus and hyperopic astigmatism. I have been taking him to an eye clinic since he was 3 months old. The only treatment suggested is glasses. Can anything else be done?

REPLY.

No remedial measures are known which will relieve nystagmus, since it is due—in most cases—to a congenital condition. Proper correction of the astigmatism with glasses will improve the vision, but little or no effect on the movements of the eyeball will be observed. There is a definite tendency for nystagmus to recede as age progresses, but unfortunately it seldom disappears until after middle life.

SMALLPOX SCARS.

M. S. writes:

1. Does smallpox always leave pits whether the patient scratches or not?

2. Should I have my son, who is graduating from grammar school this coming June, vaccinated against smallpox?

REPLY.

1. Not necessarily. When the pustules are single, i. e., when they do not run together, scars are not likely to remain. If other bacteria invade the lesions through scratching or rubbing, permanent reminders [scars] may result.

2. By all means.

ANTE-NUPTIAL AGREEMENT.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—At present I hold a quitclaim deed to a parcel of property [building].

1. Is there any way this property can remain only in my possession if I were to be married?

Also, at the death of certain party "certificate of deposit for bonds [2] were left to me, but no will was made and there are other heirs.

3. What procedure must be taken to make these salable? J. K.

1. Yes, by having your prospective wife enter into an ante-nuptial agreement. Employ an attorney to draft such an agreement.

2. It is not clear what you mean by this wording. Do you mean that the deceased wrote a letter or that he stated orally that you were to receive them, or that he delivered them to you, and if the latter were they so worded as to be payable to bearer or were they indorsed to you.

3. We suggest that you take the question up with the deposit committee.

A LITERACY TEST FOR VOTERS.

Chicago, March 1.—The Illinois law, for all practical purposes, sets up only three requirements for the exercise of the right of suffrage. First, the person must be a citizen of the United States; second, he must be above the age of 21; and third, he must have met certain residence requirements.

The ballot must, by law, be printed in the English language. Yet nowhere is there any requirement that the person who expresses himself through that ballot must be able to read and understand it, or that he must be able to sign his name to the ballot requisition. By failing to provide any conditions in regard to ability to read, write, and understand English, we have failed to set up the one standard having any tendency at all to assure an understanding of the issues involved in a particular election and an intelligent exercise of the right to vote.

Our suggestions are these:

1. Give United States citizens above the age of 21 years the privilege of remaining illiterate only at the price of losing their suffrage. Make a grammar school diploma conclusive evidence of the ability to read, write, and understand English, and require all persons unable to present such a diploma to present a certificate from the local school superintendent certifying that upon an examination such as the average eighth grade student is expected to pass, it is found that the individual is able to read, write, and understand English. Appropriate exceptions, of course, should be made for the physically handicapped.

2. In order to preclude the possibility of any one charging that the objective of this proposal is a wholesale disfranchisement of voters of foreign birth, and in order to give those sincerely interested in acquiring a knowledge of our language an opportunity to do so, a period of three years should elapse before such provision as that suggested is made an effective part of our law. During that time our adult education facilities should be extended and an intensive publicity campaign should be undertaken to inform every one interested as to where and when such instruction may be obtained.

We are not so naive as to believe that the adoption of the suggested program will affect a complete solution of the problem presented. It is merely a step in eliminating the feeling of kinship, either with the candidate or with his sponsors, as the sole reason for supporting that candidate or the principles he represents. When that feeling is eliminated as a motivating factor of casting one's vote, a long forward step has been taken in the process of assimilating a large portion of our foreign population.

JACOB MEYER SHAPIRO.

TREATMENT FOR SYPHILIS.

Chicago, March 2.—Since Chicago has done so much to control syphilis, I, as a citizen, would like to know how they determine if those whose test shows they need treatment are really getting this treatment after the test has been made.

Don't you think that many more would take the treatment if there was not so much investigating and red tape to this? Many do not want their families to know they need treatment.

Also, why not make it easier for those whose income is small but who are not on relief or WPA to get this treatment without any red tape? If syphilis is to be stamped out, give treatment to all who ask for it if they need it without any investigating to see if he needs free treatment. MRS. J. JENSON.

HE WONDERS.

Lima, O., March 2.—We wonder if the President has at last realized that the country cannot resume its normal prosperity without the help of business and business men.

We wonder if he has admitted to himself that his talk about the exploiting of labor was wrong, and an injury alike to business and labor.

We wonder if he has had any genuine change of heart or whether this talk of his and of his subordinates is serious or mere propaganda for political purposes.

We wonder if he will support any proposed legislation looking to lightening the restrictions on business and taking the heavy hand of governmental regulation and competition off those engaged in legitimate business and allow them to go ahead with a fair chance of a fair profit.

After six years we ought not to be afflicted with any doubts, but the grim and dismal record stands.

If the President has really come to feel that doing business at a reasonable profit is not an unpardonable sin, we rejoice. The President has often reminded us of the Roman hero who threw himself into the breech to save his country, except many times he has seemed ready to throw his country into the breech to save himself. V. T. ESTEN.

RAILWAY INCOME.

Chicago, March 2.—The graph appearing on the financial page on March 1 purporting to depict "Net Railway Operating Income of Class 1 Railroads" may create the false impression to the uninitiated that the railroads as a whole are making money.

It states that "net railway operating income" is what is left of the railway operating revenues after the operating expenses have been paid, therefore, your graph should have been headed, "Net Revenue from Railway Operation."

Now if you will print a supplementary graph deducting from "net revenue from railway operation" items such as taxes, uncollectible revenues, payment for use of other companies' equipment and facilities used jointly, you will have a true picture of "net railway operating income," if there is any.

Incidentally, nearly 10 cents of every dollar paid for a railroad ticket goes for taxes. ERWIN BAUMRUCK.

A TIMID POLITICIAN.

Chicago, March 2.—In our neighborhood there is a young man who goes around the streets cursing and swearing and generally making a nuisance of himself. All the mothers in the block are afraid to let their children out because one of them might just make a sassy remark to him, and then who knows what will happen?

Although we are Republicans, my mother took it up with the Democratic precinct captain. He knows this man, has heard him, and knows that he should be put away where he can't hurt any one. But, as the precinct captain told my mother, his hands are tied because in the man's family, living in the same house, are seven Democratic votes. Of course, we all realize that seven Democratic votes are much more important than a child's life, so it seems nothing can be done about it.

FRIGHTENED.

NOTE ON AUTO LICENSES.

Kankakee, Ill., March 3.—Notice the numbers on the 1938 auto licenses still being used a full two months after their expiration. Practically every one is numbered over the million mark. What does this indicate? That the same small percentage of law violators did not get their license plates last year until they had to; they are not going to get them this year until they have to, and the chances are that if the spineless administration of our state auto law continues they will not get them next year until they have to.

The remedy, since a political organization will not enforce the law, let us have a graduation scale of fees. Let the owner who will not buy when he should face a penalty and you will have every license applied for when it should be. And start this penalty this year by having the state arrest every person driving without a 1939 license and collect a fine that will teach him the law is made for every one. H. C. M.

AFTER SIX YEARS.

Chicago, March 1.—I submit we have done enough for Roosevelt. For six long years half of our daily news had to do with him until the country seemed to be saturated with Roosevelt, as France was with Napoleon.

Napoleon claimed to be a patriot, yet he impoverished the country; a Catholic, he imprisoned the pope. Not until 3,000,000 of the largest and finest Frenchmen had given up their lives for him did France see where he was leading them. Today, a hundred years after his death, Frenchmen are several inches shorter because of his wars. Yet this adventurer from Corsica was tremendously popular, winning a constitutional election 3,000,000 to 1,500.

So I say, let us pause and consider where Roosevelt has led us at the end of six years: 13,000,000 unemployed, $40,000,000,000 in debt, and a national income less than thirty years ago with 40,000,000 more people to share it.

CITIZEN.

THE MONROE DOCTRIN.

Mount Pulaski, Ill., March 2.—We have heard lately many references to the Monroe Doctrin. It is somewhat strange that during the world war this doctrin was mentioned very seldom. On the other hand, we heard so much about saving the world for democracy.

The protection of this hemisphere is more vital to us than the boundaries of Europe, or the open door policy in the far east. We have no desire for the doctrin to become a dead letter by taking an active part in European wars. George Washington, with a keen vision, warned his country of the danger in foreign entanglements, and this true idea has stood the test of time.

ARCH WARD.

Aurora, Ill., March 3.—I have read stories written by Arch Ward on the sport page and enjoyed them very much. I read the story from Vatican City written by him. Let me say it was a real piece of journalism and I enjoyed every word of it. Please allow Arch Ward to cover such stories from time to time, but I still say his work on the sport page is what every sport follower enjoys.

How much profit is in this carton?

THE answer depends on many things. For one, how fast will the goods inside this carton sell? How long before another will be ordered to take its place?

Let's see, for example, what would happen to a carton of mayonnaise or salad dressing shipped into New York City. A study just completed by The New York Times Market Research Department shows you that:

> A typical grocery store serving a high-income neighborhood sells nearly twice as many jars of mayonnaise and dressing per week as a representative store in an average-income district . . . and more than three times as many jars as a typical store in a lower-than-average-income section.

Other studies of widely advertised products show essentially the same thing. Regardless of price, all advertised goods sell faster where family incomes are high. And where goods sell quickly in volume, the lowered selling costs pave the way to higher profits.

Above-average-income families are plentiful enough in New York City to form a volume market of major proportions . . . the most profitably sold "mass market" in the entire city.

The New York Times concentrates its advertising influence among these families, and among the best of the average-income group. For that reason, The Times is your logical foundation medium for any advertising campaign designed to build profitable volume in New York City.

SALES OF MAYONNAISE AND SALAD DRESSING IN NEW YORK CITY

	High	Medium	Low
Number of Stores Surveyed	70	160	270
Number of Families Surveyed	10,010	21,600	25,650
Weekly Sales per Store	115 units	67 units	36 units
Total Weekly Sales	8,030 units	10,648 units	9,585 units
% Stores Serving (% city total)	14%	32%	54%
% of Sales (of city total)	28.4%	37.7%	33.9%
Weekly Sales per 1000 Families	802 units	493 units	374 units

Not shown in this table is the important fact that the proportion of large-size jars sold also increases in the medium and high income groups.

LABOR SHORTAGE FORCES NAZIS TO CONSCRIPT JEWS

Reverse Order Curtailing Their Public Life.

BERLIN, March 6.—(AP)—Jews as well as Aryans were under scrutiny by the German government today in attempts to tide over a labor shortage in rearmament and general speeding up of production.

An order by Dr. Friedrich Syrup, president of the unemployed insurance board and member of the labor department, recommended that Jews be employed in public and private businesses, reversing earlier decrees curtailing their business, professional, and public life.

The order, however, specified that Jews should work only where they were not likely to come in contact with Gentiles. Under its provisions, some 4,000 jobless Berlin Jews and an undetermined number scattered over Germany may soon find employment.

Won't Work on Forts.

It was stated that Jews would not be put to work on any project considered essential to the defense of the nation such as fortifications and canal building. Instead they will be used to fill the gap caused by transferring Gentiles to this task.

Road building, soil improvement, brick making, and harvesting will be some of the jobs assigned to Jews. Officials of the labor ministry said the order of Dr. Syrup still was in an early stage.

It was issued in the course of finding workers for necessary tasks and followed others under which "gigolos are considered unnecessary" and restaurant cigaret girls a luxury. The labor office on Feb. 16 was empowered to draft any worker who might be needed for tasks deemed urgent to the state.

Can't Let Jews Lie Idle.

Dr. Syrup's statement said Germany was "not interested in letting the working capacity of able bodied Jews lie idle and leave them to be supported by charity."

Those affected may be "German subjects or stateless Jews," who have citizenship in no country. Unemployed Jews generally are those who have lost their jobs because of racial reasons.

A labor department spokesman said the order had no connection with negotiations with the intergovernmental refugee committee.

[In London, Robert T. Pell, American vice director of the committee, planned to return to Berlin to submit to the German government a detailed list of proposed future homes for 150,000 active young German Jews. He was said to be prepared to describe a scheme under which experimental Jewish communities would be established in British Guiana, the Dominican republic, Northern Rhodesia, and the Philippines.]

FUGITIVE WARANT HEARING DELAYED PENDING INQUIRY

Hearing on a fugitive warant for the return of Alfred Cooper of Ohio was continued yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court until March 14, pending an investigation by the state's attorney's office.

Cooper, who is 34 years old and lives at 132 South Sacramento boulevard, was arrested on a charge of nonsupport. The complainant is Miss Anna Riggs of West Union, O., who alleged that Cooper is the father of her daughter, Genevieve, 4 years old.

Cooper said yesterday that he paid his debt to society by serving a prison term in 1934 for child abandonment. He was married after his release. His wife, Frances, was in court yesterday, holding their twins, Alfred and Alberta, 4 months old.

College Presidents Will Fill Presbyterian Pulpits

The Chicago presbytery yesterday announced plans for sermons on March 19 in 40 city pulpits by college presidents of the country. The program is in connection with the sesquicentennial observance of the founding of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A. The college presidents will attend an all day conference with pastors and college trustees and alumni officials on March 20 at the Palmer House.

Hefer Leads Dozen Police and Cowboy a 5 Hour Chase

A hefer led a stock yards cowboy and a dozen Woodlawn police a five hour chase on the south side yesterday. The hefer—all 900 pounds of her—finally was captured by James Quinn from the stock yards after she slipped on ice in a vacant lot near 6946 Cregier avenue. Quinn was on horseback. The hefer was returned to the stock yards in a truck.

Seek Funds to Rebuild City's New England Church

The Rev. Theodore C. Hume, pastor of New England Congregational church, has announced a campaign for $100,000 to rebuild the church at Dearborn and Delaware streets which was destroyed by fire on July 14, 1936. The first edifice of the church was destroyed during the Chicago fire of 1871 and was rebuilt six years later.

Fine Biscuit Company for Removing Jap Label

Minneapolis, Minn., March 6.—(AP)—The Loose-Wiles Biscuit company, St. Paul, today was fined $500 by Federal Judge Gunnar Nordbye for obliterating "Made in Japan" from salt and pepper shakers it used for premiums.

FINDS CUSTOMER LOCKED IN; HAS HIM LOCKED UP

Daniel R. Craven.

Peter Ellis, bartender in the tavern at 54 West Madison street, was surprised when he opened up yesterday. A customer was already waiting. He was even more surprised when he found the door to the manager's office smashed open, $13.10 missing from the cash register, a bottle of whisky and about 20 packs of cigarets out of their usual place, and a baked ham wrapped up and ready to go. Ellis called the police. The customer, Daniel R. Craven, 257 North Francisco avenue, had a dandy explanation. He was locked in when everybody else went home, he said, so he just decided to make the best of things. Police locked Craven in again—at the central station.

NAZIS OPEN DRIVE ON PROFITEERING IN VIENNA STORES

VIENNA, March 6.—(AP)—Joseph Buerckel, commissioner for Austria, today announced stringent anti-profiteering laws would become effective this week and advised storekeepers not to be slow in reducing prices even before the laws are posted.

Beginning today, the Vienna radio station is to announce regularly the names of firms which obey promptly. [A representative of Buerckel said on Feb. 27 that a 20 per cent reduction in living costs was planned for Austria.]

Meanwhile a columnist writing in the Vienna Voelkischer Beobachter criticized so-called "white Jews"—"Aryans" who acquired Jewish businesses cheaply but "wanted to get rich quick the same as the previous owners and therefore raised prices." The writer said that even some members of the Nazi party were included in this group.

NEW RUMANIAN PREMIER NAMED AS CRISTEA DIES

Patriarch, 71, Succumbs While in France.

BUCHAREST, March 7 [Tuesday]. —(AP)—King Carol today appointed Armand Calinescu as premier of a new government to succeed that of Patriarch Miron Cristea, who died yesterday at Cannes, France. The appointment was made at a midnight conference of the king's council.

Miron Cristea.

Calinescu, as vice premier, has been performing the functions of the premier during the illness of Cristea.

Cristea, who was 71 years old, died of bronchial pneumonia which developed after he contracted a chill while waiting in the Cannes railroad station for his niece, who was one of his nurses, on his arrival ten days ago. The niece, Mme. Antol; his nephew, who is a Rumanian bishop, and his two physicians were with him when he died.

A state funeral is being prepared to honor Cristea. Bodies of dignitaries of the Rumanian church are buried in a sitting position. If tradition is followed the body of Cristea, the crown of the church on his head and the golden garments of his office clothing his body, will be brought in a sitting position from Cannes on a special train to Bucharest.

Ruled as Dictator.

Cristea became premier of Rumania Feb. 11, 1938, succeeding the anti-Semitic premier, Octavian Goga, and for a time ruled the kingdom as a virtual dictator without parliament until King Carol promulgated a new constitution centralizing power in the crown.

The avowed purpose of his government was to reduce the national tension, in which rival political parties appeared to lack the necessary majorities to govern.

Under his premiership and King Carol's direction the pro-Nazi Iron Guard had been rigidly suppressed, many of its principal leaders imprisoned and shot while attempting to escape from their prisons.

Headed Regency.

Cristea had been head of a church with 13,300,000 members since 1925. He was born in humble circumstances in a small Transylvania village, which changed its sovereignty from the kingdom of Hungary to that of Rumania after the world war. He had served as the head of a three man regency which ruled Rumania for three years after the death of King Ferdinand in July, 1927. The son of Carol, young Prince Michael, was king during Cristea's regency.

He resigned in 1930, along with the other regents, when Carol suddenly returned to the country from exile and resumed his throne.

LAUNCH INQUIRY INTO SUMMIT'S $11,748 SHORTAGE

Assistant State's Attorney Alexander Napoli and John Byrne, an auditor, were assigned yesterday to investigate the $11,748 shortage in the accounts of the village of Summit. The shortage was formally reported to the village board last night by Charles N. Goodnow, village attorney. Goodnow told the board and eighty taxpayers present that efforts are being made to collect the shortage from sureties of former village officials. He said those responsible for the shortage are known, but that the village administration wishes to recover the money before attempting prosecution.

Britain to Equip Army with New Battle Uniform

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 6.—Great Britain's soldiers are to have a new battle uniform. Demonstrated recently at Aldershot for members of parliament, the new military dress consists of high waisted pants which bag at the knees like plus fours, and a short tailored jacket. The trousers also are equipped with huge patch pockets between the hip and knee. The outfit soon may be adopted for use throughout the service.

Chinese Theater Group Presents Evanston Program

The Evanston Committee for China Relief presented the Chinese Cultural theater group last night in a program at the Woman's Club of Evanston. Among those who took part were Averil Tong, wife of the counselor of the Kwangtun provincial government; Virginia Chang, who is called the most beautiful girl in Shanghai, and Ethel Chun, known as the modern girl of new China.

24 LAKE COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICTS BOOST TAX RATES

15 Others Announce Reductions.

An increase in tax rates for 1938 in twenty-four of the forty-one school districts in Lake county was announced last night by Walter Smith and Harold McNeill of the tax department in County Clerk Jay B. Morse's office.

Property owners in fifteen other districts, however, can look for lower bills. The rate remained the same as in 1937 in one district, while in Barrington the determination of the rate was held up pending word from Cook county, in which part of the district lies.

Winthrop Harbor Boost Largest.

Of the increases the greatest was in Winthrop Harbor [2] where there was a boost of 66 cents per $100 valuation. Most of this was accounted for by a bond levy for a new high school in Zion which Winthrop Harbor pupils attend.

Lake Zurich for the second year led the townships which decreased their rates. The 1937 rate was 29 cents under 1936 and the 1938 rate is off another 44 cents.

The highest rate, $7.47, will be paid in Waukegan township. This is 12 cents above the 1937 mark. Round Lake Beach again has the lowest rate in the county, $3.94.

Property Valuation Drops.

Total valuation of property for 1938 taxing purposes is $82,667,979, a decrease of $1,362,802. There was a slight increase in personal and real estate property valuations, McNeill explained, but the state tax commission reduced the valuation of railroad property by $1,423,297 and of capital stocks by $320,140.

The rates follow, with numbers of the school districts in parentheses:

School district.	1937.	1938.
Winthrop Harbor [1]	$5.69	$6.31
Winthrop Harbor [2]	4.94	5.60
Zion [6]	6.16	6.44
Zion [5]	6.16	6.44
Antioch [34]	6.13	5.90
Fox Lake [37]	5.68	5.70
Fox Lake [38]	4.83	4.87
Fox Lake [114]	5.59	5.65
Lake Villa [32]	5.07	5.37
Lake Villa [41]	4.62	5.16

Albert E. Moore, Midget Circus Clown, Dies in East

Philadelphia, Pa., March 6.—(AP)—Albert Edward Moore, midget clown, died today. He was the little fellow —3 feet 7 inches tall and weighing 85 pounds—who jumped daily from a burning building in Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus. He retired in 1937. Spinal meningitis caused his death.

OBITUARIES

Joseph A. Weiss.

Joseph A. Weiss, recently elected president of the Hammond city council, died yesterday at the age of 39 in St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond. He had been ill since November. Mr. Weiss was head clerk in the auditing department of the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad and had been with the line for twenty-five years. He is survived by his widow, Hattie; two daughters, Margaret and Vivienne, and a son, Joseph A. Weiss Jr. The funeral will be held at 9 a. m. Thursday from Emmerling's chapel, Hammond, to St. Joseph's church. Burial will be in St. Joseph cemetery.

Henry Bishop.

LONDON, March 6.—(AP)—Henry Bishop, 70 years old, a British painter, died here yesterday. He was elected a member of the Royal academy on Feb. 25. Born in London, Bishop lived and painted in Morocco for many years and exhibited pictures in Pittsburgh, Pa., London, Paris, and Venice.

Mrs. Bertha Clifton.

Mrs. Bertha Clifton, a retired west side florist, died yesterday at the age of 81 in her home at 4733 Hubbard street. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Fanny Kulp. Funeral services will be at 2:30 p. m. Thursday in the chapel at 5515 Chicago avenue.

Charles Taylor Demond.

San Diego, Cal., March 6.—(AP)—Charles Taylor Demond, 82 years old, an early correspondent for the Associated Press and a newspaper man in the east for many years, died here today.

William Staley.

William Staley, 90 years old, died yesterday in the County hospital. He had been ill since he fell at his home, 4151 Madison street, Congress Park, two weeks ago. Mr. Staley, a traveling salesman until his retirement twenty years ago, was born in Sharon Springs, N. Y., and moved to Wisconsin with his parents and other settlers when he was a child. The group founded Sharon, Wis. Mr. Staley was married to the late Addie Streeter, member of a pioneer Lake Geneva, Wis., family. He came to Chicago in 1899. He is survived by two sons, Carl O. and Harry A. Staley, four grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Rabbi Aaron Shefsky.

Rabbi Aaron Shefsky of Congregation Ahavis Achim was found dead yesterday, apparently from a heart attack, in his home at 1302 South Peoria street, near the synogogue. He was born in Poland 65 years ago, and came to this country in his early thirties. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. today in the chapel at 704 South Pulaski road. Burial will be in Jewish Waldheim cemetery.

Leroy W. Baldwin.

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Leroy W. Baldwin, 72 years old, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Empire Trust company, died today following an operation. He was vice president and a governor of the Bankers' Club of America, chairman of the board of the Equitable office building, and voting trustee of the Middle States Petroleum corporation.

Mrs. Ellen Boyle.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ellen Boyle, one of the oldest gold star mothers in Illinois, will be held today in the Sacred Heart church in Marengo, McHenry county. Mrs. Boyle died there Sunday in her home at the age of 99. She was born in Chicago on Oct. 21, 1839. Her first husband was James Loughberyin and her second was Daniel Boyle.

Emma Juch.

New York, March 6.—(AP)—Emma Juch, 78 years old, world famous opera singer of a half century ago, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at her home today. She retired in 1894 when she married Francis Wellman, internationally known New York lawyer, from whom she was divorced in 1911.

Henry Hathaway.

Chicago friends were informed yesterday of the death in Angmering-on-Sea, England, of Henry Hathaway, formerly of 7100 Yale avenue. Mr. Hathaway was a member of the Board of Trade from 1889 to 1925, when he retired and moved to England. He died on Feb. 16. His widow, Annie, survives.

Capt. Jeremiah J. Murphy.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 6.—[Special.]—Capt. Jeremiah J. Murphy, manager of the Buffalo division of the Great Lakes Dredge & Dock company, died here last night. He had been employed by the company in Chicago, Detroit, Toledo, and Cleveland, and was for twenty-five years division superintendent at Buffalo.

STATE POLICE SEIZE 4 YOUTHS IN STOLEN AUTO

Four youths riding in a stolen car were seized last night by Sergt. Wilbur Kennedy of the state police, Blue Island, at 141st street and Cicero avenue, Bremen township. They were Carl Milton Gershman, 18 years old, 1605 South Homan avenue; Russell Bausome, also 18, of 4210 Van Buren street; William King, 17, of 4150 Harrison street, and Patsy Benedetto, 18, of 4148 Harrison street.

Sergt. Kennedy said that Gershman admitted stealing the automobile from a used car lot at Ogden and Homan avenues last week. The boys were to be turned over to the state's attorney's office.

SEEK 2 BRIDEWELL PRISONERS WHO STROLLED AWAY

Two young prisoners, serving one year sentences, escaped from the Bridewell last night. The fugitives are Stanley Budkins, 23 years old, last living at 4537 South Halsted street, and Frank Calindo, 17, whose last known address is 2904 Lexington street. Budkins was sentenced last October and Calindo last August on charges of violating the automobile laws. They established a record as good prisoners, and were made trusties. As such they enjoyed certain privileges, and apparently took advantage of them to walk out the gates past unsuspecting guards.

Justice Hughes Has Cold; Spoils Attendance Record

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—A "slight cold" prevented Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes today from attending the session of the Supreme court. This was the first time since he was appointed chief justice in 1930 that Hughes has missed a day because of illness. Attachés said he probably would return to the bench tomorrow or Wednesday. In the absence of the chief justice the ranking member in point of service —77 year old Justice James C. McReynolds—presided.

De Kalb, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—Word was received here today of the death last Saturday in Havana, Cuba, of Patrick Coffey, 79 years old, retired De Kalb county farmer. Mr. and Mrs. Coffey left last December for a winter vacation in the south. Mr. Coffey was touring Havana when he was struck and fatally injured by a street car.

INDIANA DOCTOR SHOT TO DEATH IN HOME AT PAOLI

Paoli, Ind., March 6.—(AP)—Dr. Harry C. Peffer, 33 years old, son of the late Dr. Harry Peffer, former head of Purdue university's chemical engineering school, was shot to death in his home at nearby Orleans today. John Cunningham, furniture factory worker, was taken into custody for questioning.

Coroner George Dillinger said he was informed Peffer was shot in a struggle with Cunningham for possession of a gun.

Mrs. Betty Peffer, the slain man's wife, told Sherif Noble Ellis that Cunningham accompanied her husband on a professional call in Mitchell last night. She said the men had several drinks and that Cunningham refused to leave the Peffer home at her husband's request. Her husband got a gun, she told the sherif, and was shot in a fight with Cunningham.

INVENTOR SLAYS FIANCEE; CAN'T EXPLAIN REASON

Cincinnati, O., March 6.—[(AP)—George J. Pownall, 42 years old, an inventor, who told police he formerly was engineering instructor in three technological schools, was charged today with the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Bertha King, 43, his fiancée and housekeeper.

Pownall told Clermont county authorities he could recall nothing concerning the shooting except a struggle for possession of the gun.

"I was planning to marry her," he said. "I was just holding off until March 31, the second anniversary of my first wife's death . . . then this happened."

Pownall summoned a doctor to attend Mrs. King and accompanied her in an ambulance to a Cincinnati hospital where she died shortly after midnight.

GIANT'S MOTHER TELLS COURT HE IS OBEDIENT SON

St. Joseph, Mo., March 6.—(AP)—Robert Wadlow, 8 foot 8 inch giant of Alton, Ill., was described by his mother, Mrs. Addie Wadlow, in federal court here tonight as a friendly, congenial youth and the most obedient of her five children.

Mrs. Wadlow, the first witness called in the youth's $100,000 libel suit against Dr. Charles Humberd of Barnard, Mo., denied assertions by Dr. Humberd contained in an article for the Journal of the American Medical association that her son is surly, indifferent, or otherwise unpleasant in his relations with others.

Wadlow was in the courtroom seated on a chair made especially for his comfort.

Urban Album.

Zorina, star of I Married an Angel, that opens tonight at the Grand, formerly of the Russian ballet, in the first row at the Ballet Russe Sunday night, Husband George Balanchine beside her. The first thing they did, after getting themselves and their German police dog settled at the Ambassador, was to get ballet tickets. Zorina, her hair parted in the middle and worn in a long bob, was gowned in blue with a row of little gold buttons down the front. As soon as they could get away from autograph seekers she and Balanchine went backstage to gossip with old friends. . . . Scrublady's Letter.

A scrub woman who worked at the Oriental theater ten years ago read in THE TRIBUNE about the workman who was paid last month for some soldering and cutting work he did on Abraham Lincoln's coffin when a small section of it was opened in 1887. She herself had two days' pay coming on a job she held for a short time in 1928. She clipped the item and attached it to a letter to the theater management which read:

Enclosed with my letter you find a slip which has given me courage and hope writing you. In the year 1928 I have been employed by you people as a janitress. I have worked for a few weeks, then forced to leave account of my small children, the last week of June 1928 I have left working only two days that week. The check for those two days was promised to be sent. I have never received it. . . . At that time I did not have enough courage to come down and ask for such as I have not known then to speak the English language very good. I would make me very happy to hear from you. Mrs. Victorial K——."

The theater is now under different management than it was in 1928, and the letter was forwarded to the former management.

Maternal Influence.

Lucia Lull, whose s'uth'n accent is the hit of Kiss the Boys Goodbye, couldn't get a job on Broadway because of that accent which typed her too conspicuously. Now, after some weeks among no'th'n's, she began to be afraid she was losing it. She wired her mother to come north for a spell. Mrs. Ida Bell Lull, who has a drawl as thick as molasses, is here, and Miss Lull's "you alls" and "honey chiles" are flowing freely again.

Travelers Bring Great Tales of Fair at Frisco

BY JUDITH CASS.

RETURNED vacationists usually are full of enthusiasm for the sights they have seen and the Chauncey McCormicks and the Herbert E. Bradleys are no exception. They have returned home singing the praises of the San Francisco exposition.

"The most beautiful fair I've ever seen and an extraordinary art exhibit," said Mr. McCormick, who was one of the eight original founders and trustees of our own Century of Progress and chairman of the committee that assembled our splendid art exhibition at the Art institute during our fair.

"It is worth traveling across the continent just to see the Italian masterpieces," continued Mr. McCormick. He went on to say how interested he was to see that modern architecture can be beautiful as well as functional. The McCormicks and Bradleys did not travel all the way across the continent to see the fair, however, for they went to the Pacific coast by rail from New Orleans, where they landed after a cruise to Guatemala.

Dr. Walter Heil, who collected San Francisco's art show, undoubtedly welcomed Mr. McCormick as one of the early guests at the Art palace, for the Chicagoan suggested changes in the hanging of some of the Italian works that show them to better advantage. It was not Mr. McCormick, but Mr. Bradley, who brought back this information, however.

The Art palace is one of the three permanent buildings on Treasure Island and when the fair is over it will be a hangar. So, it is not the ideal place in which to show art works, but it is a fireproof structure, something it must be to house a 30 million dollar exhibit.

Famous Italian Works Shown.

Raphael's "Madonna of the Chair" and Botticelli's "Birth of Venus" are two of the paintings in the collection of the Italian school. Among the other artists and sculptors represented are Titian, Tintoretto, Bellini, Michelangelo, Donatello, and Della Robbia. Since loaning these works to San Francisco the Italian government has decided never again to allow such rare pieces to be taken out of the country.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne's thirty exquisite miniature rooms also are housed in the Art palace, for it is for decorative as well as fine arts. Mrs. Thorne and her sister, Mrs. Alden B. Swift, who were in San Francisco for several weeks before the fair opened, later visited Southern California, but now are at home.

Numerous Chicagoans are planning spring and summer trips to include visits to the fair on the Pacific coast. Although the fair has been open only a little over two weeks, quite a few returned winter vacationists already have visited it. Among them are the George A. Kellys, who went west especially for the opening on Feb. 18. Mrs. Kelly and Miss Kathleen Kelly plan to spend some time in San Francisco this summer after Miss Kelly is out of Vassar.

The Robert N. McCrearys are back in Lake Forest after a visit with Mrs. Edward L. Doheny in Los Angeles and a brief stay in San Francisco.

Junior Plamondons Motor to West Coast.

The junior Alfred D. Plamondons left last week to motor to San Francisco. They will return the end of this month. The Orville Taylors are planning to go to San Francisco later this month. Mrs. Granger Farwell of Lake Forest and her daughter, Mrs. Henry G. Boston of England, left last week for California, especially so that the latter could see the fair before returning to her English home.

Many foreigners who are visiting this country are including San Francisco in their itineraries, among them Claude Leigh and his daughter, who went to California from their home in England by way of the Panama canal. They will be in Chicago the middle of this month. Lady Lister Kaye of Lon-

Good Morning!

"Café Society" depicts shrew taming with a modern accent, presenting in Madeleine Carroll, the loveliest virago imaginable, and in Mr. MacMurray, a tamer after a woman's own heart.

Besides this Shakespearean influence, the piece goes mildly "fourth estate"—for the hero is a newspaper man, and it has a "Carmen" tinge—see encounter between the blonde termagant Mr. MacMurray loves and a fiery fair one with whom he's been reared since a pup, but who does NOT think of him as a brother.

I may as well say here that the tamer's tactics are heartily approved of by Miss Carroll's screen granddad, Claude Gillingwater, who has realized away too late that if Christopher had been smacked down when she was a little brat, she wouldn't have grown up into a big brat who deserved to be mown down.

The road to marital bliss is indeed a rocky one for Christopher and Chick, but the goal is reached finally and safely with the warring factions sustaining nothing worse than a few dents here and there.

Lovely Miss Carroll was never lovelier than as selfish, spoiled but intrinsically okey Christopher. Mr. MacMurray seems to enjoy his rôle . . . as what man wouldn't? Claude Gillingwater, that fine veteran player, is aces as Grandfather—and all other parts are brightly handled. You'll like Shirley Ross a lot, I'm thinking.

The action spins along amusingly under clever directorial guidance.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

[During Ed Sullivan's absence from Hollywood on vacation prominent residents of the motion picture colony are filling his usual space.]

Unaccustomed as I Am—

BY BOB HOPE.

Hollywood, March 6.

This Sullivan is a one-man firing squad. He has me backed against the wall, asking me to dish out some autobiography. And when you start telling the story of your life it sounds like you're being closed out on a short market. You're licked before you start, like signing to fight Henry Armstrong. At that, Henry and I have a lot in common. We both started as fighters. Lots of guys have used boxing as a stepping stone to success, and I still think somebody tripped me. But I'm in the movies now, so I can always punch a clock.

This reminds me of a funny mistake a friend of mine made the other day. He said, "Hope, why were you born?" He meant "when," of course. I merely laughed as if he had made a joke. As a matter of fact, I WAS born. It was in a peaceful little English village called London. I was hardly more than an infant when the Hopes migrated to the American frontier at Cleveland, O. One of my earliest recollections is playing cowboy at the village drugstore.

My father was the Bing Crosby of his day. He and mother raised a family of boys. It was before Cantor's time. I was the fifth of seven Hope boys—and we all feel great, thanks. We are named Fred, Jack, Ivor, James, George, Sidney, and Bob, respectively. George, the youngest, still rides half-fare, being barely 20. Before her marriage my mother was a concert singer, so it was only natural that I should become a choir boy. [Go ahead, I've been heckled before.] I became quite famous, but am best remembered for my final performance. I was in the middle of a lovely solo number when my voice changed. Then I took up tap dancing.

About this time I joined an amateur boxing group and discovered how little future there was for me in the ring. I had two fights and by a coincidence both ended the same way. My opponents were credited with victories by a knockout. But I always say a comedian has to start somewhere. Fatty Arbuckle was coming to town, and with a friend named George Byrne I worked out a dancing act. Arbuckle hired us for two weeks, and we were an instant success. Almost every night we would proudly bring home great baskets of fruit and vegetables to our happy parents—apples, carrots, cabbages, and onions given us by the grateful audiences.

Arbuckle got us a job in a musical road show. We danced and did a blackface act, and on the side I played saxophone and contributed my ex-soprano to a quartet. We had a screamingly funny gag in the blackface routine. George said, "I was sho glad to see yuh at prayer meetin' last night," and I came back, "So that's where I was!" Tears come to my eyes even now as I remember that joke. When the show closed [I never could understand why it did], we went into vaudeville. We actually got to New York, hired a hall bedroom and looked for work. At the end of the first week the guy in the room next to ours fainted from hunger. We were strongly tempted to lie down beside him and wait for the ambulance.

At last we got a job in a show, "The Sidewalks of New York," and soon afterward found ourselves in Newcastle, Ind. From there I worked out a single routine and polished it in theaters and night clubs throughout Cleveland and a small part of Detroit. One triumph led to another, and soon I found myself only $4,000 in debt. But my motto has always been "Never Say Die." I kept on, hitting the Interstate circuit and finally New York again. They just couldn't keep the town away from me.

Back in New York, I took a screen test for Pathe, after which the company went out of business. I got into musical shows—"Ballyhoo," "Roberta," "Say When," "Ziegfeld Follies" and "Red, Hot and Blue." Then came the radio, and I was able to send even more vegetables back home. My family never knew want.

8,000 in City Will Get Their Hair Dye Today

BY MARCIA WINN.

Eight thousand heads of hair are dyed in Chicago daily. This was the estimate yesterday by Emil Rohde, veteran Chicago hairdresser.

Dyed hair once was a matter of shameful secrecy, Mr. Rohde said at the sixteenth annual Midwest Beauty Trade show in the Hotel Sherman. But with the depression the dyepot became a necessity for the graying man or woman trying to hold or obtain a job.

"To get or keep a job one has to look as young as possible, and so he resorted to dye. It was a case of self-preservation, but not a bad one, for hair dyeing may be done so perfectly that not even an expert can detect it."

Prematurely gray hair is much more common now than formerly, he said. It may come from undue worry, from the tumultuous era or from congenital lack of pigment in the hair, but to one and all he advocates dye.

"I recommend it to any woman who is prematurely gray and not married," he said, "because to the average young man that woman is old. I recommend it to any one who is married to a young man, because his stenographer may not have gray hair. I recommend it to any one who is in business."

Mr. Rohde says he has little use for artificiality. He advocates only natural dyes; that is, restoring the original color. The bleached blonde and the hennaed matron both look "extremely foolish," he said, with complexions that by nature are olive or dark. Color harmony, he said, is lacking. He declared "it is better to be natural."

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Notes from the midwest beauty trade show:

The manufacturers are practically turning handsprings to improve waving lotions. This year there seems to be a flock of new ones, each claiming to cut the drying time down to nearly nothing. The shop owners are greatly interested in the problem; they know, to their sorrow, that women hate spending a long time under the dryer and often postpone a beauty shop session rather than endure it.

Reports on a couple of the new lotions are that they're miraculously fast drying. Incidentally, a lot of hair stylists, who favor the short, casual looking coiffure are using nothing but plain water for the "set." The hair dries quickly and the hair wave is smartly soft.

Today hair stylists get their chance at the gold cup offered each year by the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association for the best coiffure. All the work of cutting and setting is done on a platform in the presence of the audience and judges; skill, speed, and artistic merit are what count in the contest. The fashion of the winning hairdress is usually indicative of the new trends. This year there is every reason to expect the hairdresses to be shorter than any we've seen in the last few years.

In the trade exhibits there is much stress on methods and preparations for hair conditioning before and in between permanents, with special emphasis on the correct choice of a prepermanent shampoo.

Lots of new gadgets: Atomizers, unbreakable, for spraying on lacker; magnets for pulling out hair pins without disturbing the freshly set wave; really lovely rubber aprons, in charming colors, to be worn by both operator and patron during the shampoo. The beauty shop equipment is handsomer than we've ever remembered it to be. Cabinets, manicure tables, dryers, facial chairs, and other fixtures are now beautiful pieces of streamlined furniture.

The Blind Side

SYNOPSIS.

Ross Craddock's father, now dead, turned Craddock House into flats, and had installed his old maid cousins, Mary and Lucy Craddock, in a flat apiece, on either side of the one occupied by Ross. After Mary's death Lucy prepares to leave for a change of scene. Their cousin, Peter Renshaw, is staying in Mary's flat while he settles her estate. A cruel note from Ross orders Lucy to vacate her flat. Confronting Ross she learns it is because she objects to his attentions to her foolish young niece, Mavis Grey. Lucy tells Peter she wishes Ross were dead. He advises her to take the trip she'd planned. Just as she is leaving Lucy gets a phone call from her cousin, Lee Fenton. Lee, who is in love with Peter, has just escaped an unpleasant experience with a married man. Lucy gives Lee the keys to use her flat while she is away. Rush, the porter, admits Lee. He mutters belligerently against Ross. After Rush, Lee has a time dismissing Mrs. Green, the charwoman, who says she is ill and needs a drink of brandy. That evening Peter prevents Bobby Foster, Mavis' suitor, from making a scene in a cabaret where Mavis is with Ross. Peter is awakened in the night by a crash. He sees Mavis running from Ross' flat and Ross cut and bleeding. Mavis had thrown a decanter at him. Peter lets Mavis stay the rest of the night and he sleeps on a couch. Later he is again awakened.

INSTALMENT VIII.

BLOODY FOOTPRINTS.

Peter got up and stretched himself, and as he did so he heard the latch of the outer door click home. Peter could move very quickly. He was hot, stiff, and sticky, but he reached the hall and had the light on all in a flash.

There was a scurry and a scream, and there was Mavis at the bedroom door. But she wasn't coming out. She was trying to get in and hide. She was still in her silver dress and her silver shoes. She had one hand at her throat, and in the other she clapsed the little silver bag which he had seen lying beside her on a table at the Ducks and Drakes. Her eyes stared with fright and all her color had gone.

"What do you think you're doing?" said Peter in a rasping voice.

She said in a whisper, "N-nothing."

"Why did you go out of the flat?"

"I didn't."

"Have it your own way, but I heard you come in."

She let go of her throat and caught at the door jamb.

"I dropped my bag. It's got all my money. I went to look for it." Mavis shut the door with alacrity. She put the silver bag down on Aunt Mary's bow fronted chest of drawers with the ivory escutcheons. Then, as she turned away, she caught sight of herself in the long mirror on the opposite wall.

She looked down, and began to tremble. It wasn't a trick of the light. It was really there—a red soaked patch just under her left knee. How horrible!

She caught up the silver stuff and held it away from her. The stain was about two inches across.

She went over to the dressing table. There would be nail scissors—Peter was bound to have a pair of nail scissors—and she could cut the stain out and nobody would know. Unless Peter . . . but the jamb had been on her left and she had been leaning up against it.

She had to cut away more than she expected, because the blood had smeared and spread. Then she stood with the piece of stuff in her hand and wondered what she was going to do with it. She didn't dare open her door again in case Peter was listening.

She found matches on the mantelpiece and used the whole box before she could persuade the heavy, wet stuff to burn. Even so, some of the little tinsel threads were left, but she pushed them right away under the grate and felt sure that no one would notice them there. Then she stripped off the ruined dress and rolled it into a ball. There were still some of Aunt Mary's clothes in the flat, and she would just have to find something that would cover her up until she could get to Isabel. It didn't matter now. Nothing mattered except that she was here and she was safe.

She kicked off her shoes, lay down on the bed, and went fast asleep.

The Dresden china clock on the sitting room mantelpiece struck three.

. . . . . .

Lee Fenton opened her eyes with a sense of coming back from a very long way off. She had been so deeply asleep that just for a moment her mental focus was out and she did not know where she was. There was an open window on her left, with the morning light streaming in, the light of another hot and airless day. There was a fireplace straight in front of her, and over the mantelpiece the enormously enlarged photograph of old Cousin Andrew Craddock, Cousin Lucy's father.

With that it came back to her that she was in Lucy's bed, in Lucy's room, in Lucy's flat. She became a little wider awake and pushed away the sheet, which had got tucked up under her chin. There was a most extraordinary weight upon her spirits—a horrid sense that something had happened, and that in about half a minute she was going to remember what it was. It wasn't the Merville man. She had got away from him.

She sat up frowning. A dream—that was what it was. She had had a perfect beast of a dream, and some of the nightmare feeling was still hanging around. She couldn't remember the dream, but it must have been a particularly bad one for her to feel like this. She threw the sheet right off, swung her legs over the edge of the bed, and stayed there staring, with a hand on either side of her, pressing down hard upon the mattress and the old linen sheet which covered it. The hem of her pale pink nightgown was stained a handsbreath deep with blood, and her right foot, too.

Just for a moment the black curtain which hid her dream trembled and grew thin. From behind it came somebody's voice crying out in a frightened way.

The curtain thickened and darkened again. She was looking at the blood on the hem of her nightgown and at her blood stained foot. All at once she jumped up. The nightgown fell around her to her feet. The stain ran right across the front of the hem, but broader on the right hand side, as if she had stepped on it with that stained right foot.

She made a little sound of disgust and ran out of the room and across the hall to the bathroom. She washed her foot and threw the nightdress into cold water to soak.

It was when she was coming back that she saw the blurred print of her foot on the threshold of the room where she had slept. She found her dressing gown and put it on, and then went back to switch on the hall light. The prints ran all across the hall from the front door to the threshold of Cousin Lucy's room. When she stooped down and looked closely she could trace them across the carpet to the bed.

She stood by the front door for a long time before she opened it. There were the prints again, running straight from the door of No. 8 to the door of No. 7—straight from Ross Craddock's flat to the one where she had slept—and dreamed a horrible dream.

She went back into the flat, took a pail of water and a swab, and washed the prints away, first the ones on the landing, and then, very carefully, the ones inside the flat. She poured the water away, and rinsed the bucket, and washed the swab quite clean before hanging it up to dry.

The sheets were stained. She wondered what she should do about them. Rush was an early riser. If he came stumping up the stairs. . . . Well, let him come—she had washed the landing clean. But behind the door of No. 8—behind Ross Craddock's door. She cut her thoughts short. The door was shut, the door was locked. There was nothing to do about it. Get on with the things which have to be done here.

She took the sheets into the bathroom and sponged out all the stains. She hung them over a couple of chairs by the open windows to dry. They wouldn't take long on such a hot morning. While they were drying she had a bath and dressed herself.

All this time she hadn't let herself think. When there wasn't anything more to do she found that her knees were shaking. She sat down on the edge of the bed, and all the things which she had been trying not to think about came rushing into her mind. Something dreadful had happened. It would come back to her out of that dream which she couldn't remember. She had wandered in a horror of darkness, and in that darkness something dreadful had happened. She did not know what it was. The black curtains hid it, but presently she would know.

The thought terrified her. She tried to think how much longer that shut door of No. 8 would remain shut. Ross employed a man to valet him and keep his flat. He came in by the day. She began to wonder how soon he would come. Not before 7, she thought. She supposed he would have a key. Well, then, he would open the door and go in. . . . She got no farther than that. Her mind felt numb and blank.

Feet That Are in Pain Require Physician's Aid

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

There's a small volume that bears recommendation to every sufferer from foot ills. We gather from the volume, "O, Doctor! My Feet" by Dr. Dudley J. Morton [Appleton-Century] that a very large percentage of our citizens are victims of some form of foot ill, with women more often afflicted.

Dr. Morton, who is professor of anatomy at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia university, gives the foot-sufferer a few surprises, chief among which is that the oft-blamed metatarsal arch is a myth; that rest off the feet is more often the required remedy than exercises, since muscular weakness is not responsible for all pedal ailments.

The appeal of Dr. Morton's book, however, is to influence people with foot ailments to put themselves in the hands of medical men. He admits it is a field in which medical men have not shown the right amount of interest to date.

"The feet deserve professional care just as much as any other part of our bodies," Dr. Morton challenges. "And the prevalence of foot trouble is so extensive that the general practitioner, or physician, is the most logical person, qualified by professional training and sufficient in number to meet the situation promptly."

There are metatarsal bones, five of them, long bones that lie just behind each toe. In the normal foot the first and second metatarsal bones [behind the first and second toes] are the same length. The first is twice as thick as the second, but the second is the same thickness as the third, fourth and fifth metatarsals. In faulty feet the big toe is much shorter. In general, a short big toe is evidence of a short first metatarsal bone. In such an instance the second metatarsal bone is made to do the work the first should perform.

Nature designed the first metatarsal to cary a double load. But when women stand and walk on their second metatarsals alone, as they do in high heeled shoes, they put such strain on these second bones as to produce inflammation of the joint tissues and irritation of the adjacent nerves, and the subsequent "O, doctor! My feet!"

Dr. Morton knows women will continue to wear high heeled shoes, and indicates there is no harm in so doing if such footgear is restricted to dress wear.

'Out of Sight' Need Not Mean 'Out of Mind'

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

When you've gone through high school with a boy and he goes away to college, leaving you not altogether heart whole on account of his charms, what can you do about not letting him forget?

It's Maribel's query and a fairly common one.

Maribel doesn't want to appear bold, having been brought up a little on the old fashioned side, she explains. She and the young man never went about steadily, but there was a definite feeling of attraction between them. Maribel feels that he will get away, however, meet frequently girls in the same school, and if he never hears from her there would be no reason for him not to forget her in the other fair ones' presence. He came to tell her good-by before leaving, but nothing was said about correspondence.

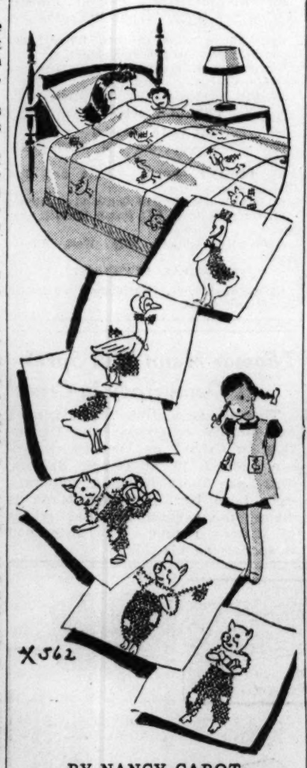
It would seem to us that certain incidents would arise in the careers of one or more of the students the boy and girl knew before their parting. Such incidents could very well be used as an excuse upon which to write the youth away at school. The girl might write a brief letter telling her John or Bill, or whatever his name, that she thought he would be interested to hear so and so.

It would be better to pin the interesting incident on a mutual school acquaintance than for the girl to sit down and tell what she was doing. That is too plain a bid for interest. Nor would it be clever to write and ask him how he is getting along himself, explaining that you are interested. If he is not in the correspondence mood, he just might interpret it as a reprimand for not having written.

However, we do not think that modern technique ever would suggest it bold to dash off a note of any character, regardless of how it might be received, as long as it were not too personal in tone. And if a girl likes a boy, why shouldn't she try to hold on to him as a friend by showing that she has not forgotten him? His mind, away at school, would likely be operating to the effect that out of sight he would be out of her mind.

The issue really is to know when to stop in the correspondence attempt. A second letter were better not sent if no answer arrives to the first. With this as a sound operating basis, there could be no harm done in dashing off an informal note any time.

Pigs and Ducks in Cross-Stitch Are Versatile Motifs



BY NANCY CABOT.

Six inch cross-stitch figures, embroidered on eight inch quilt blocks, create a fascinating coverlet for any child's crib. Three busy pigs, not members of the well known fairy tale family, and three fetching ducks add an atmosphere of joviality to any article they adorn, whether it be the pockets of dresses or pinafores, pillows, bibs, or a wall hanging.

For the hot transfer pattern of the cross-stitch pigs and ducks, No. X-562, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

CAN A DOCTOR WIN BOTH LOVE AND SUCCESS?

What is young Dr. Malone's private life really like? What are his personal relations with his patients . . . with his nurse? Can he win both success and love? Listen to the moving story of "Young Doctor Malone"!

don also plans to visit Chicago on her way east to New York after a visit to the fair on the west coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Scott and Mrs. Arch W. Shaw left recently for a glimpse of the fair, after which they will join Mr. Shaw in Chandler, Ariz. They will remain there until about April 1. Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm left last week to visit her father, Edward A. Cudahy, in Pasadena. Before returning to Chicago on March 16 she will visit the fair. The Gustavus F. Swifts are now in San Francisco after a stay at Sun Valley.

Miss Harriet Stuart has returned from a flying trip to New York, Bermuda, Nassau, Haiti, Jamaica, Miami, and San Francisco, that took three weeks to make. Needless to say, she did not spend very long seeing the fair, so she and her brother, Harold, plan to return to San Francisco at the end of this month to spend a week there.

Mrs. Robert Carr Jr. to Visit in West.

Mrs. Robert F. Carr Jr. is leaving next Monday for Santa Barbara to visit her mother, Mrs. Wallace F. Kirk, and Mr. Kirk. Mrs. Carr expects to see the San Francisco fair before returning to Chicago.

Mrs. Talcott Griswold and her small daughter left yesterday for a month in Santa Barbara. Then they will visit Mrs. Griswold's mother in Pasadena, and before returning home they will go to San Francisco.

Mrs. James H. Hopkins and her sister, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, will return to Chicago in about a week from a trip west which included about four days in San Francisco.

Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. and her sister, Mrs. Alice H. Patterson, who are at Santa Barbara, plan to spend a week in San Francisco before they return to Chicago the last of this month.

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey is leaving Monday for Death Valley in California. Mrs. Harvey will visit the fair before returning to Chicago. Her sister, Miss Maud Daggett of Pasadena, will join her at Death Valley for two weeks.

Ellis-Winston Nuptials April 11.

The marriage of Miss Anne Winston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Farwell Winston of Lake Forest, to Carleton Ellis Jr. of Toledo has been set for Tuesday, April 11. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock at Fairlawn, the Lake Forest home of Miss Winston's grandmother, Mrs. Robert G. McGann, and Mr. McGann.

The wedding is to be a small one. Miss Winston's younger sister, Dudley, who is a student at Miss Hall's in Pittsfield, will be her only attendant. Mr. Ellis' younger brother, Bertram Ellis of Montclair, N. J., will be the best man. They are sons of Carleton Ellis, the distinguished chemist, and Mrs. Ellis of Montclair, N. J.

Mr. Ellis will take his bride to Honolulu on their wedding trip. They will make their home in Toledo. Miss Winston recently returned from a visit at the Ellises' winter home in Nassau. Their summer home is on Cape Cod.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes O'Brien [Rosalie Smyth] are receiving congratulations on the birth of their first child, a daughter, on Thursday at the Passavant hospital. The baby has been named Brigid. Her paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. O'Brien of Highland Park.

Reveal Engagement of Mina Ballard Breaux.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Locke Breaux Jr. of San Francisco announce the engagement of their daughter, Mina Ballard Breaux of Chicago, to Karin Joseph Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karin Elmer Walsh of Oak Park. The announcement was made at a tea yesterday at the Evanston home of Miss Breaux's sister, Mrs. C. Hunter Lindsay, and at a luncheon at the Breaux home in San Francisco. The wedding will take place here in June.

Miss Breaux attended the Sarah Dix Hamlin School for Girls in San Francisco, Leland Stanford university, and the University of Chattanooga, Tennessee. Mr. Walsh is a graduate of Northwestern university.

A number of luncheon parties have been planned to follow a concert by the Russian Trio at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Arts club. Mrs. Stephen Plummer is entertaining for Mrs. Leander McCormick, and Mrs. George Wilkinson has planned a luncheon for Miss Harriet Vittum.

Mrs. Donald R. Wegg is entertaining at luncheon today for her daughter, Mrs. Samuel Frothingham of Boston, who will be here two weeks.

Among those entertaining before the first of two performances of the Chinese Cultural group tonight and tomorrow at International house are Mrs. Tiffany Blake and Russell Tyson, who are giving a joint dinner at Mr. Tyson's; Mrs. John P. Welling, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Price. Dr. Price, director of International house, and Mrs. Price will have the consul general of China and Mrs. Lu Tzechin, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Compton among their guests.

Mrs. Compton is chairman of the committee in charge of the two performances of "An Evening in Cathay." The Chicago branch of the church committee for China relief and International house are sponsoring the appearances of the troup.

Bolero Teamed with Frock

FROCK FOR MISSES.

It's almost a rule in fashion this spring that every frock should have a jacket of some kind to keep it company. One of the loveliest ideas is to give the dress a jacket to match it, one designed primarily for it. The pattern today gives credence to this style principle and furnishes the simple dress with a brief but jaunty bolero of its own.

The frock is a simple one, with shirtwaist top and flared skirt. It may have a collar or not, as you please, and either buttons or a slide fastener may do duty down the front. A belt encircles the waist, and it may contrast or match in lether, or it may be made of the material of the dress itself. On the bodice may be two pockets, if you like them, one dressed up with your personal monogram. A pattern to assist you in monogramming is No. E-11012, available for 10 cents extra.

The bolero has lapels which might well be of the same material as the frock. In fact, line the contrasting jacket with the material of the dress and you'll have a well integrated costume.

Style No. 2566 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Basic Batter Used to Make All Fritters

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1939: By the Chicago Tribune.]

Fritters come two ways—plain and sweet. Plain fritters are the meat, fish, and vegetable kind; sweet fritters sprinkled with confectioners' sugar, as dessert.

The basic principle is the same. A piece of meat, a shrimp, or a cooked carrot, a "stick" of canned pineapple or a peach half, is dipped in a batter, sweet or nonsweet, and cooked in deep fat until brown. Meat and vegetable fritters usually are accompanied by a sauce; fruit fritters are sprinkled with confectioners' sugar, as a rule, but sometimes a dessert sauce accompanies them.

Basic Fritter Batter.

1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt [¼ teaspoon for fruit fritters]
1½ teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar [for fruit fritters only]
1 egg, slightly beaten
⅔ cup milk [approximately]
1 tablespoon melted butter

Sift dry ingredients together. Combine egg, milk, and melted butter, and add to dry ingredients, stirring enough to mix thoroughly. Dip meat, fish, vegetables, or pieces of fruit in the batter and fry at once in deep fat. If the batter seems too thin to coat the food, add a little more flour; if too thick, thin a little with milk.

TO FRY FRITTERS.

Have a deep, heavy pan of fat heating as the batter is mixed. The temperature of the fat should be 350-365 degrees. It will take only from three to five minutes to cook fritters. As soon as they are well browned, they should have finished cooking. Drain them on absorbent paper and serve at once. If it is necessary to keep them hot or reheat them, place on a pan in a moderate oven.

Although most fritters consist of rather large pieces of food dipped in batter and fried, it's possible also to make them by folding chopped food or certain small fruits and vegetables into the batter and dropping the mixture by spoonfuls into the hot fat.

NONSWEET FRITTERS.

Sliced or diced cooked meats, whole fresh or canned shrimp, whole oysters, chopped shrimp or oysters or flaked salmon, tuna or other cooked fish, sliced tomatoes, cooked whole carrots or parsnips, cauliflower sections, drained whole kernel corn, cooked or canned peas.

DESSERT FRITTERS.

Sliced apples, sliced pineapple or wedges of pineapple, drained, crushed pineapple, blueberries, fresh or canned peach halves, fresh or canned apricots, cherries, bananas.

When banana fritters are made, the bananas are cut into fourths by a lengthwise and a crosswise cut, and marinated in lemon or orange juice for fifteen minutes or so before coating with the batter.

Canned or juicy fruits should be well drained before they are added to the batter. This is particularly true of berries, which are folded into the batter rather than coated with it.

For meat fritters, chili sauce or catsup is a good accompaniment. Soy sauce or tartar sauce is good with fish fritters; vegetable fritters are served alone, with one or two exceptions [corn fritters and maple sirup, for example]; and if dessert fritters aren't to be served with a springling of confectioners' sugar, lemon or orange sauce is very good with them.

Lenten menus do require extra planning. You'll find Mary Meade's "Pleasant Meals for Lent" a help. The booklet is on sale for 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, or will be mailed for 5 cents in stamps. Address mail requests to Mary Meade.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Some of the letters I receive point out that many of the players in my published hands must be "awful dubs."

Granted! But now I want to do some pointing out on my own behalf. To begin, it is fortunate for me and other bridge writers that mistakes do occur in a large proportion of deals; otherwise we would have nothing to write about. Next, I have a sneaking suspicion that at least a few of my correspondents are better analysts away from the bridge table than they are at it. Many times in my bridge career have I had players regale me with the most cogent, even profound, discussion of a bridge hand, only to find that the same individuals flounder around like fish when they actually have to play such a hand in competition. The fact is that all of us, every one, makes stupid mistakes at the bridge table and we must be very careful about "casting that stone."

I must admit, however, that I would have liked to have thrown a small pebble at my partner in the following deal:

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	NORTH ♠ K 7 5 ♥ 7 ♦ K Q 10 6 ♣ K Q 10 6 3
WEST ♠ None ♥ Q J 9 8 5 4 ♦ J 9 8 3 ♣ A 9 5		EAST ♠ Q J 4 3 2 ♥ 10 6 3 ♦ A 5 4 ♣ 8 2
	SOUTH ♠ A 10 9 8 6 ♥ A K 2 ♦ 7 2 ♣ J 7 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 hearts	3 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Double
Pass	Pass	Redouble	Pass
Pass	Pass

Sitting North, I felt that we were set for a killing at four spades redoubled. With all the honor strength and good distribution in my hand, and with a rebid spade suit in my partner's, it did not seem possible that the opponents could take more than three tricks, if that many. I learned!

West opened the heart queen and declarer won with the ace. The spade six was led to the king and the trump situation was revealed. The 5-0 break probably frightened my partner so badly that he never recovered. On the return lead of the spade seven East split his honors, playing the jack, and declarer won with the ace. A diamond now was led toward dummy and the queen was taken by East. A hold-up of the ace might have given declarer a small amount of "guessing trouble" at least.

The heart ten was returned and won by the king. Declarer led a low club. West ducked and the queen won. Declarer now cashed the diamond king; then, when the jack still remained at large, ruffed a low diamond with the spade eight. On another club lead West hopped up and played a third round of clubs, his partner having high-lowed with the eight and deuce. East ruffed and now a spade return killed the dummy and made it impossible for declarer to ruff his losing heart. In all, he lost one spade, one heart, one diamond, and one club.

I need hardly point out that the contract could have been fulfilled. A low club opening originally, with a subsequent club ruff by East, would have been a different story, but after the heart opening nothing should have saved the defenders. Admittedly, declarer would have had to risk a finesse against the jack of diamonds, but surely this was preferable to risking the play of three rounds of clubs. Note the vast difference if the play had gone as follows: At the second trick declarer leads a diamond to the queen and presumably loses to the ace; the heart return is ruffed in dummy and now a low club is led to the jack; if West holds up the ace declarer plays a low spade to the king and returns a spade, capturing East's jack. At this point it becomes obvious that declarer cannot afford to lead another round of clubs; hence, after cashing his remaining high heart, he must risk a diamond finesse to the ten spot. When it holds he discards a club on the diamond king and thereby prevents a third round club ruff. East can make only one trump trick and the only other losers are the two aces.

If, on declarer's lead to the club jack, West wins, he can make no return to embarrass the declarer and the danger of a club ruff is avoided completely.

Tomorrow's Hand

Obedience Not End in Itself; Merely a Tool

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Sometimes just getting things straight in your mind will clear, as if by magic, your difficulties with the children. I could give you a dozen examples right on the spot, such as knowing that the baby doesn't pull at the tablecloth because he's naughty, but because he's so little that he's below the line of vision of the fascinating objects [food and silver and little salt cellars] on the table, and is eager to see them, and such as knowing that your 5 year old doesn't use "bad" words because they're "bad," but because they're new and he's got to try out most new things. Getting a line on reasoning and purposes helps a lot.

Today let's take up that important matter of obedience.

How do you think of obedience? Do you think it isn't important while your children are little, or do you? And if you do, why? And, more to the point, have you been successful in gaining obedience? Perhaps you'll be interested in my own theory and [I may say] successful practice as a mother in this direction. Here it is:

Obedience is not an end in itself. It is a tool, a means to an end.

If you will think of it in that way, it will have the effect of revolutionizing your management of your children, especially if you are having trouble with them. It will keep you from the mistake of thinking in a way that made one mother write me: "I cannot conquer my 5 year old boy. I am harassed to death."

We don't want to conquer children. Far from it. We want so to train them that eventually they will be masters of themselves. They must be guided so that in time they will know how to direct their own energies, thoughts, and emotions. We do not want to conquer them.

Therefore, we do not want to teach them to obey simply because subjugation is good. We want to gain obedience because it is not possible without it for us to protect them, to guard their health, to train them, and to make them happy and useful members of society.

For instance, one of our aims is to help them to form regular habits of eating, sleeping, and bathing. Our aim is not obedience, but without obedience how can we build up a healthful routine in these three essentials? We can't.

Another aim is physical protection, especially of the younger child. If he learns to come when he's called, for example, or in general to do as he's told, you can guard him.

A similar aim with the older child applies to protecting him from the world at large, mentally and socially, and as far as his health is concerned. A boy or girl who has learned to come straight home from school when he or she is told, later comes home from a party at the designated time, and generally falls in with a way of living which is planned lovingly and intelligently for his or her good.

Obedience is essential, but only as a tool. Thought of so, it will be gained in the right way.

"How To Gain Obedience" is the name of a booklet sent on request. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

The Housewife

If you're one of those meticulous housewives who has a place for everything and keeps everything in its place you'll go for the stunning new quilted satin boxes that are made to bring order out of chaos in dresser drawers. There are square boxes for handkerchiefs and long, narrow ones for silk hosiery. The latter have places for six and for a dozen pairs of stockings.

These pretty affairs come in turquoise blue, in peach, in wine, and in other colors. And they're wrapped in cellophane so they reach you spotlessly clean.

ART REVIEW

Four Openings Held on Single Day

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Four openings in one day speak well for the activity of art in Chicago. Among the exhibitions, which opened yesterday, one finds a variety of execution. At the Quest galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue, are stunning water colors by Antimo Beneduce, great decorative flower pieces painted in the grand manner.

There is nothing complicated about Beneduce's technique, he merely makes the most of each blossom and furnishes us with paintings of beauty that need neither apology nor explanation. His color is clear; his purpose definite.

In direct contrast is the exhibit of sculpture by Archipenko at the Katharine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue. Archipenko is a modern and has long been devoted to the cubist and abstract forms of modernism. His earliest works show his trend as clearly as does his most recent, the enormous statue of Moses.

This Moses is done in a new material, weather-proof, impervious to blow or shock, solid and heavy to the eye, and yet light enough to be moved with comparative ease. The figure shows Moses striding forward, the laws on the tablet of stone under his arm. Up to the point where you realize this master figure is headless, the effect of the masses of stone is superb. Naturally the limiting of a head to the merest suggestion is in keeping with the sculptor's way of thought, but it comes to the casual visitor as something of a shock.

What a gorgeous statue this would be had it a broad browed, deep eyed, massive nosed, firm lipped countenance to lend a benign dignity to the determination and virile power of the body!

The Chicago Galleries association, 215 North Michigan avenue, opened a memorial exhibit of the paintings of Pauline Palmer, paintings of Chicago by Richard Chase, and landscapes of the west by Alfred J. Wands. Mr. Wands' pictures are pleasant without being great. He uses orange freely and gives us a very fair idea of the trees and mountains "out west."

Richard Chase presents Chicago in more striking form. His paintings are vivid and restless, persuasive, too, in some aspects, as, for instance, the steps of "Soldiers' Field" and the beauty of the Buckingham fountain.

Pauline Palmer we all know; her work recalls vividly her vivacious personality. There are landscapes, interiors, still life, and portraits. The show illustrates fully her great powers as a painter.

Carl Austen, a very young but extremely talented painter, is introduced to us in a one man show of pastels of the ballet in the Leo Buntman gallery, 17 North Wabash avenue. The studies of the ballet dancers are delightful, exquisite in color, composition, and handling. It is one of the most fascinating exhibits in town and will run to April 2.

ASK LAW MAKING APRIL 1 COUNTY TAX PENALTY DAY

Daley to Submit Bill in Springfield Today.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

A bill fixing April 1 as the first penalty date for 1939 and all future property tax levies in Cook county will be introduced in the general assembly at Springfield today, State Senator Richard J. Daley [D., Chicago] said yesterday. Daley, who is deputy controler for Cook county, said he would introduce the measure.

Daley added that Cook county, after nine years of delayed tax billings, is now on a normal schedule. The law he will propose would put a full year between the first penalty dates on 1938 and 1939 taxes. April 1 is the first penalty date on 1938 taxes.

Allow 30 Days of Grace.

Although the legal deadline, or penalty date, is April 1, tax bills are not overdue until thirty days after they have been mailed out. If the bills are not issued until April 1, the taxpayer has thirty days more in which to pay. But if he does not pay the bill within the thirty day limit after issuance, then he must pay penalties accruing from the legal deadline of April 1.

Bills for 1938 have not yet been issued. Therefore, taxpayers will get an extension beyond the legal deadline. It is expected the bills will be mailed by April 1 and be payable May 1.

Cook county in 1933 was fourteen months behind on tax billings due to the 1928 tax muddle. Corrective legislation adopted that year provided for the billing of taxes approximately every ten months to take up the lag.

Date in Doubt After 1939.

Under that schedule, the first penalty date on 1939 taxes will be March 1, 1940. Then for 1940 taxes, the county would revert either to a May 1 or a June 1 penalty date, depending upon interpretation of existing statutes.

Daley said the rest of the state is now on a June 1 penalty date for personal property taxes and the first installment of real estate taxes. He said that by adopting a regular April 1 date, Cook county governments will be able to effect large savings in interest on tax anticipation warants, as the tax paper would be outstanding two months less than if a June penalty date were used.

Daley has another tax bill pending in the senate providing for the court confirmation of tax levies before tax bills are sent out. It would become effective with 1940 taxes.

A similar act was held invalid by the Illinois Supreme court last year on the ground that it did not provide adequate notice to taxpayers. The pending bill makes specific provision for giving notice.

RED CROSS TO HONOR FIRST NURSING CHIEF IN MEMORIAL EXERCISES

Miss Mary Beard.

Miss Mary Beard, national director of Red Cross nursing, will be the principal speaker at memorial exercises for Jane A. Delano, world war nursing heroine, next Sunday afternoon in Murphy Memorial hall at the American College of Surgeons. Miss Delano was the first director of the Red Cross nursing service.

Miss Beard will speak on "Why Nurses Enroll in the Red Cross Nursing Service." Her appearance will launch the Chicago committee's participation in the national campaign to raise the first reserve enrollment from 15,000 to 25,000. The Red Cross now has 42,000 nurses of the first, second and third reserves enrolled for service in disasters and other national emergencies.

Budapest Police Charge Nazis with Swinging Sabers

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 6.—(AP)—A detachment of police swinging sabers charged on Budapest's west railway station tonight to disperse Nazi sympathizers who were distributing leaflets and shouting slogans. It marked the first serious disorder in the Hungarian capital since martial law was declared three weeks ago following the bombing of a synagogue.

FIGHT ON WASTE INQUIRY MAY TIE UP LEGISLATURE

Democrats Renew Efforts to Hamper G. O. P.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—The Illinois legislature is facing the busiest week of its sixty-fifty general session. How much will be accomplished when it reconvenes tomorrow depends largely upon the persistence of Democratic efforts to upset a Republican economy investigation.

Reports today were that Democrats in the house again will attempt to pass a resolution calling for a joint senate-house inquiry into state spending. Since there already is a house committee for this purpose, sponsored by the G. O. P., the Republicans regard the move as an attempt to smother their investigation.

Road Program Pending.

The Democratic resolution was sent to the house executive committee before the two weeks' primary election recess began. Some Democrats today claimed to have enough votes of G. O. P. house members to give the seventy-seven needed to take the measure from committee.

Following are other important matters scheduled for action by the legislature, barring a protracted battle over economy:

ROADS—Bills will be introduced for a $100,000,000 outlay for Chicago superhighways and a $40,000,000 fund for farm-to-market roads throughout downstate counties. If these financing measures are passed it is believed that five routes for the Chicago projects will be proposed.

The proposed superhighways will parallel the Chicago and North Western railroad embankment, use the Illinois and Michigan canal for a depressed thoroughfare, widen Congress street, make changes to convert the Lake street elevated line into a highway or utilize various other streets not heavily traveled at present.

RELIEF—Plans supported by Acting Governor John Stelle, calling for unified administration of relief, old age assistance, and aid to the blind, dependent children, and mothers will be prepared for the legislature tomorrow. Stelle will confer with heads of citizens' commissions which studied these problems, with relief officials, and with leaders of both parties in the general assembly.

Seek Higher School Levy.

SCHOOLS—Harold G. Ward of Chicago, senate majority leader, will introduce bills tomorrow to raise the pegged levy for Chicago schools from $47,500,000 to $50,275,000. The purpose is to enable the school board to restore the ten month [forty week] school year. [The term now is thirty-eight weeks.]

CITY MANAGER—A public hearing on bills to give cities the right to submit the city manager plan of government to a referendum will be held tomorrow. Many proponents of the measure, including representatives of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will attend.

WOMEN JURORS—Bill to make it possible for women to sit on juries, now on third reading in the senate, may be called for passage.

In addition, officials of the University of Illinois may have introduced a bill giving them police powers within five miles of the campus. Such a bill has been drafted as a result of the fatal shooting of a student at a Champaign vice resort recently.

Dies at 69; Never Spent Night Outside HomeCounty

Herrin, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—Edgar Stearns, 69 years old, a farmer, died in his home near here yesterday. He never spent a night outside of Williamson county in all his life. About two years ago he went to Fairfield, about 75 miles away, the longest trip he ever made.

BILL TO OUST RACING COMMISSION READY FOR SENATE

LANTZ URGES NEW TURF PLAN FOR ILLINOIS

Flays Tardiness in Assigning Dates.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Illinois State Racing commission, which has been under criticism for many weeks because of tardiness in allotting 1939 dates to Chicago area tracks, will face an attack from a new source during the legislative session which convenes today in Springfield.

Senator Simon E. Lantz of Congerville, chairman of a senate committee which has been investigating the racing situation, announced yesterday that he will submit a report recommending the abolition of the present commission and the institution of a board which would be selected and operated on new terms. Senator Lantz plans to make this report as soon as the order of business permits—probably today. With it will go a bill providing for the new board.

Mikel Case Starts Trouble.

The Lantz committee was formed following the commission's action in barring John D. Mikel of Carlock. Carlock is located near Lantz' home, Congerville. Mikel was ruled off the turf for life on Aug. 15, 1935, when the commission decided one of his horses, My Bane, was 3 years old when entered in a race for 2 year olds.

The other members of the Lantz committee are W. J. Connors and J. A. Mendel of Chicago; Richard J. Barr of Joliet, and Melvin Thomas of Charleston.

According to reports from Congerville, Senator Lantz stated yesterday his committee concluded the commission had "aggrandized power it did not have in ordering the suspension. The witnesses were overwhelmingly in favor of Mikel in credibility."

He went on to say "there has been great dissatisfaction among horse racing sportsmen in the manner in which the commission has administered the horse racing act."

Suggests Yearly Salary.

Peter B. Carey was chairman of the commission at the time of the Mikel case. The present commission is made up of Chairman Leo Spitz, Walter C. Peacock, and William Schlake.

All these men serve without pay. The bill which Senator Lantz plans to offer will provide for a board of three men named by the governor with the "advice and consent of the senate." They would receive salaries of $2,500 annually. In addition, there would be an appropriation of $4,800 a year for a secretary. The present secretary, George Foster, receives this sum, out of which he pays all office expenses.

The terms of the new board members would be staggered, according to the bill, one serving until 1941, another until 1943, and a third until 1945. No more than two members could be selected from one political party.

Report Touches Everything.

The bill also would provide for the abolition of the $15,000 a year steward's job. This position is now occupied by Christopher J. Fitzgerald.

The committee's report also will criticize the commission for failure to comply with the state law on the allotment of racing dates. This law provides that the dates must be fixed by Dec. 15 of the preceding year. The commission has not yet announced dates for the coming season, which normally would begin May 1.

Peacock, the only member of the commission who is in Chicago now, declined to make a statement last night. Secretary Foster said no statement was forthcoming from the commission office at the present time but that the dates probably would be announced in a few days.

Horsemen Can't Make Plans.

Meanwhile Chicago race track operators are growing more and more restless because they say they cannot make plans or commitments for the coming season unless they have definite assurance of the days on which they are to run. Dates for major tracks in New York, Kentucky, Maryland, and other states were announced many weeks ago. Chicago operators contend that horsemen will be inclined to leave tracks of this area out of consideration when they make their plans for the coming season unless the local situation is cleared up quickly.

It is understood that Washington Park and Hawthorne have applied for Labor day, the former wishing to end its meeting and the latter hoping to open on the disputed date.

APPLING BRINGS SOX GOOD NEWS; HE'S READY TO GO

Star Shortstop Fills Big Gap in Infield.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 6.—You can take it from Shortstop Luke Appling, and he swears it's the truth, that there is no reason to be concerned about the right ankle he shattered during an exhibition game with the Cubs last March. The prize possession of the J. Louis Comiskey forces arrived in the White Sox camp this morning, late as usual, and not only claimed complete recovery, but went on to the field and proved it by keeping pace with the fellows who have been here since camp opened.

There was some basis for fearing that the 1936 league batting champion might not be as good as he was before he made his disastrous slide in Los Angeles. He played the last few months of the 1938 campaign, but even when the party broke up in early October he still was guilty of an occasional stumble. He now says that was due to favoring the injured foot, a practice he forgot about while engaged in winter hunting in Georgia. As a result of his exertions he is three pounds lighter than when he reported a year ago.

Clint Is Optimistic.

Not to be outdone by Appling's professed confidence, the other surviving members of the 1938 wars in which the White Sox casualty list was as heavy as that of a soviet purge, went into a huddle from which came similar boasts of physical perfection.

Clint Brown, whose elbow underwent a bone removal job last summer, issued a bulletin to the effect that he feels better about his case than he did after the first few days of throwing. Bill Dietrich, another elbow case, said Brown's report covered his present prospects.

The only other present member of the Cripples club, Monty Stratton, being absent because of the tragic hunting accident which cost him his right leg, was Jack Hayes. His tone was as cheerful as the day's weather but he didn't make any unwaranted claims. The right knee, on which an operation was performed last November, is growing stronger by the minute. The regular second sacker has been running, batting, and playing in the bunting games, but he has made no attempt to field at his position and for a couple more weeks will resist the temptation to do so.

Weather Man Coöperates.

Last week-end, when Manager Dykes announced that today would mark the start of serious training he must have had an advance tip from the weather guesser. The sun actually was hot enough to bring on laziness, so the boss, instead of cautioning against overdoing, as he had been forced to do previously, had to remind his charges that the club wasn't paying $7 a day merely to afford them a free vacation.

The balmy weather inspired the pitchers to give their arms a thorough test. John Whitehead and Johnny Rigney were among the participants in this form of labor. This pair is mentioned only because they put so much on the ball that a lot of the batting athletes found excuses for not indulging in their favorite activity.

Merv Is Kept Busy.

Merv Connors, the 24 year old rookie who made a fleeting name for himself with his three homers in one game with the Athletics late last season, is being given a lot of attention, but not because he has done anything impressive. They had him working at first base today while the pitchers were taking another lesson in the art of covering the bag; they had him chasing fungoes and in other ways kept him moving until he was in a sort of daze. He didn't feel so badly about being overworked after batting practice had given him a chance to show he could knock three or four pitches over the distant hedge.

The Great Man Suffers Another Defeat

For a Young Man Gone Wrong.

Just yesterday he still was quick and young,
About him clung an untried youthfulness—
Although he was not prone to truthfulness,
Yet how the bright quips rippled from his tongue.
Within his cheek a dimple lingering,
Lent him a roguishness both bold and gay—
One could not picture him as old and gray.
Now that he's gone, I am remembering
The things about him that I like the best:
The inward charm; the boy he used to be;
The bright blue eyes that twinkled merrily—
All these do I recall from memory's chest.
Before decadence marked him, is the way
I shall remember him from day to day.

Mungo Sighs, Signs, and Says He'll Be Good

Clearwater, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—Van Lingle Mungo today signed his contract with the Brooklyn Dodgers. The amount of salary, which Vice President Larry MacPhail repeatedly said Mungo would have to take or remain out of baseball, represents a cut of $10,000 from the $15,000 he received in 1937 and 1938 and is the most drastic reduction a Brooklyn ball player ever has been forced to accept.

To establish that Mungo actually signed for $5,000, Secretary John A. MacDonald displayed the document signed by Mungo and MacPhail.

There were no bonus clauses in the agreement. However, it is believed that if Mungo wins most of his games during the early weeks of the season, MacPhail will destroy the contract and give him a new one.

It was believed that Commissioner Kennesaw M. Landis forced the moody pitcher's capitulation at Belleaire on Friday when MacPhail aired his grievances to the commissioner in Mungo's presence. According to accounts, Landis told Mungo his drinking, brawling and sulking would not be tolerated and advised him to sign at the offered price and re-establish himself as a winning pitcher.

"I'm satisfied to take my licking like a man," Mungo said when he emerged from the final conference with MacPhail.

16 WIN TITLES IN NEW YORK GOLDEN GLOVES

Bid Next Week for Places on Intercity Team.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—Sixteen youths fought their way to titles tonight in the New York-Brooklyn finals of the New York Daily News Athletic association Golden Gloves boxing tournament. A sellout crowd of 18,231 jammed Madison Square Garden for the bouts.

Winners in the open and subnovice classes in eight weight divisions qualified for next week's Carnival of Champions, from which will come the New York team which will oppose the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., squad March 29 in Chicago Stadium in the annual intercity bouts. Boxers from fifteen cities from Maine to Florida will compete in the Carnival of Champions.

Outstanding tonight was Buddy Moore, a 19 year old colored high school student who looks and punches like Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis. Moore knocked out Enzo Avonaglio, 22 year old iron worker, with a left hook in less than two minutes of the first round to win the heavyweight open title.

Other open class champions, all of whom won by decisions, follow:

175 POUNDS—Henry Jones.
160 POUNDS—Warren Jones.
147 POUNDS—Tami Mauriello.
135 POUNDS—Willie Smith.
126 POUNDS—Ray Robinson.
118 POUNDS—Edward Forsner.
112 POUNDS—Basil Jones.

BOXERS TAPER OFF

Thirty-two Golden Gloves boxers, survivors of the Tournament of Champions, maneuvered carefully through light workouts yesterday in gymnasiums scattered through fourteen cities from Cleveland to Kansas City. Ever wary of last minute injuries, trainers prepared their charges for the last big test Friday when the boys will fight for Golden Gloves championships before a capacity crowd of 21,000 in the Stadium.

Paddy Kane, coach of the C. Y. O. team, reported that Al Noto, Joe Dupont, Frank Bausone, Willie Moon, and Curtis McDaniels will be in top form for the big show if they keep going at their present pace. These boys boxed two rounds yesterday in addition to floor work.

Chicago's other two survivors, Johnny Pleasant and Homer Williams, worked in the Savoy A. C.

Although all reserved seats for Friday's bouts have been sold, 4,000 general admission tickets will be placed on sale at gates 1, 3, and 6 at the Stadium at 8 o'clock on the evening of the bouts.

Friday's program will consist of twenty-four bouts—sixteen semi-finals and eight finals. The champions who emerge will be the greatest amateur boxers of a field of 23,000 boys who started on the quest for Golden Gloves several weeks ago.

NOW ON SALE—

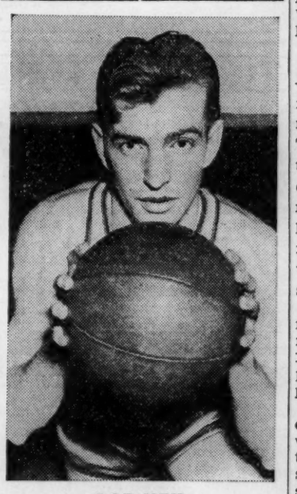
Tickets for the twelfth annual Golden Gloves fights between Chicago and New York in Chicago Stadium on March 29.

PRICES ARE:
$3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, and ~~55 cents~~

Tickets are available in The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in the lobby of Tribune Tower.

If you prefer to order by mail, make checks or money orders payable to The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and send to the Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Flashy Exit



BOB NEU.

Neu Makes His Night DePaul's Night, 39 to 32

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A fellow named Bob Neu night in the De Paul university auditorium last evening by scoring seventeen points in the Blue Demons' 39 to 32 victory over Hamline university of St. Paul, Minnesota conference champions. It was fitting that the slender forward who was the object of the pre-game ceremonies also should be the hero of the contest itself, for it was his last game as a collegian and the final one of the season for De Paul. The Demons ended their schedule with a creditable record of fifteen triumphs and seven defeats.

Prior to the game Neu was honored by university officials and was the recipient of a trophy donated by Judge John Sbarbaro, sponsor of the double-header program in which De Paul and its north side neighbor, Loyola, met the country's leading teams this season.

Neu Makes Shaky Start.

This was all very fine and deserved by Neu, the former St. Mel High school boy who developed into the greatest scoring player in De Paul basketball history. But the first few minutes of the game resembled one of those baseball contests in which the pitcher, after having been given a sports roadster, two radios, and a gold watch by his home town compatriots, is tapped for four triples and three walks in the first inning.

Neu and his associates couldn't seem to find the hoop while Hamline, a smart aggressive team, was taking an 8 to 0 lead. Then Ed Norris, star of De Paul's farewell football team, connected on a free throw, which presently was duplicated by Neu, who already had missed two. Bob then hit on a basket and a free throw, but that concluded his first half scoring, although Norris and Stan Szukala were giving the Demons a 15 to 13 intermission advantage.

Bob Finally Starts Hitting.

The second half found Hamline, led by Jack Campbell, a speedy little guard, in the game to such an extent that the score was tied four times. In the meantime, Neu was repaying the honors of the night by dropping in six field goals and a free throw for the thirteen points that helped the Demons win. It also gave Bob a total of 332 points for the season, an average of 15 points.

Neu, a substitute in his sophomore year, didn't really pick up steam until last season, when he scored 250 points to establish a new university record and thereby join the roster of such De Paul immortals as Sticks Powers, Barney Varnes, Ed Campion, Ray Adams, and Nick Yost. His two year total was 582 points.

Lafayette, Ind., March 6.—[Special.]—Chicago climaxed the Western conference basketball season tonight by upsetting Purdue, 28 to 26. The winning shot was in the air as the final gun cracked. Practically all of the excitement of an otherwise ragged game was concentrated in the last five minutes as the Maroons came from behind to score their fourth victory of the season and finish the season in a tie for seventh place.

It was the first time Chicago has failed to finish in the Western conference cellar since the season of 1931-'32, when it tied for seventh place, although it did share tenth position with Minnesota in 1933-'34.

Both teams committed frequent errors in the first half, which ended with the Boilermakers in front, 17 to 11. The first five minutes of the second half were the calm before storm, Chicago drawing up as the Boilermakers were halted by the Maroon defense.

Then The Fun Started.

With five minutes left to play, Chicago tied it up, 24 to 24, when Bob Meyer scored on Elwood Yeagor's foul.

Purdue, trying to draw out Chicago's zone defense, which was massed under the basket throughout the game, finally counted, Dan Fisher firing in an overhead shot from under the basket. Meyer came right back with a field goal to tie it at 26 to 26.

With seconds remaining, Chicago finally obtained the ball, and Bob Cassels tried a shot from the side as the timekeeper started to raise his gun. Cassels missed, but Meyer batted in the rebound just before the gun cracked.

The Maroons made twelve free shots out of thirteen attempts. Score:

MICHIGAN BEATS N. U.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 6.—[Special.]—Michigan's basketball team ended its season with a 32 to 26 victory over Northwestern tonight. With Center Jim Rae dominating play, the Wolverines went into a lead after five minutes of play and never were headed.

While Northwestern was unable to connect consistently from the field it was its poor marksmanship from the foul line that provided Michigan with its winning margin. Both teams made ten field goals, but Michigan got twelve of fifteen free throws while Northwestern made only six out of sixteen.

IOWA LANDS IN CELLAR

Iowa City, Ia., March 6.—[Special.]—Minnesota did an about face in the Western conference tonight by reaching its early season form to defeat Iowa, 54 to 43, and drop the Hawkeyes into the conference cellar.

The Gophers lost little time in grabbing a 2 point lead on Bill Warhol's field goal and they were never headed. They led, 29 to 18, at the half and midway in the second period had run the score to 40 to 19. This lead was the signal for the Minnesota second team to replace the regulars.

MUSTO MUST BE GOOD; MANAGERS FIGHT OVER HIM

Fists Fly as Commission Sets Tony Free.

An argument which has been brewing for the last year and a half between Michael W. Kutscher, also known as Billy Williams, and Robert Capocy over the right to manage Tony Musto, Blue Island heavyweight, ended in a fist fight yesterday in the offices of the Illinois boxing commission.

"Get him out of here," ordered Joe Triner, commission chairman, after Capocy cracked Kutscher with a right to the back of the head which made a noise every one in the building must have heard. "He must think this is a fight arena."

It Does Seem Tough.

While Capocy was being hustled out of the room, Kutscher regained his feet and shouted, "See what I have to contend with?"

Musto, standing close by, refused to interfere, but he indicated he thought Kutscher got what was coming to him.

"We'll suspend Capocy at our next meeting March 20," Sheldon Clark, a member of the commission, remarked.

The brawl followed Kutscher's appearance before the commission with a demand that he be given a third of Musto's earnings for a ten round victory scored over Henry Wacker in the Coliseum last Thursday because he was the bona fide manager of Tony. After the Coliseum fight the commission withheld $350 of Musto's share at the instance of Kutscher.

Bring Out Contract.

Contracts were displayed to prove Kutscher's point, but Capocy, who has been handling Musto's campaign since the document between the fighter and Kutscher was signed Oct. 22, 1937, disputes the claim with the charge that "it is invalid because it was obtained through trickery."

Musto supported Capocy's argument, as did Irving Schoenwald, Jack Hurley, Sam Abruscato and others who have had occasion to use Musto.

Kutscher, a bold, clever little fellow with a flair for oratory, said Capocy had been hired by him merely as trainer of Musto but that Capocy took it upon himself to assume the management of the boxer.

The commission rendered a verdict which seemed to favor both sides. It was decided to permit Musto to sign his own contract for a proposed bout in the Coliseum April 13 under the joint promotion of Irving Schoenwald and James C. Mullen, "because Kutscher has no standing as a manager, due to the fact that he failed to meet requirements laid down by the commission."

Kutscher Gets a Cut.

The commission then released Musto's $350 when the fighter agreed to pay Kutscher $64.50, a third of the amount after expenses had been deducted. This move on the part of the commissioners showed they recognized the Musto-Kutscher contract. Immediately afterward, however, they suggested that the matter be thrashed out in a court of equity.

Promoter Schoenwald, who applied for the April 13 date, said efforts are being made to match Tony Canzoneri with Milt Aron as a co-feature on the next card.

The state commission yesterday approved Chicago Stadium's application to conduct a show March 31, but refused to sanction Bob Pastor for a ten round contest with Maurice Strickland, heavyweight from New Zealand. Pastor was rejected because he is under suspension in New Jersey, which is a member of the National Boxing association. Illinois also belongs to the N. B. A. and recognizes the ban.

Joe Louis left for California yesterday for a heavyweight championship defense against Jack Roper in Los Angeles April 18. The champion will go direct to Victorville, where he will train until April 1. . . . Ellis Smith and Teto Pope will meet in a five round amateur headliner tonight in Savoy arena, 47th street and South Park way. . . . Johnny Paychek, 1933 Chicago Golden Gloves heavyweight title holder, worked out in Kid Howard's gymnasium at 73 West Randolph street yesterday for a ten round event with Stan Savoldi of Minneapolis in Cedar Rapids, Ia., Thursday. Paychek also is signed to head a show in Des Moines March 20, probably against Art Oliver. F. M.

GULDAHL, SNEAD WIN IN 4 BALL ON 3D EXTRA HOLE

Coral Gables, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Ralph Guldahl sank a 15 foot putt for a birdie on the third extra hole today as he and Sam Snead eliminated Craig Wood and Billie Burke in the second round of the $5,000 international four ball golf tournament.

Horton Smith and Paul Runyan beat Denny Shute and Ben Hogan, 1 up. On the final green Smith rolled a 40 footer into the cup for an eagle three.

Johnny Revolta and Henry Picard, three time winners of this tournament, turned in a 4 and 3 victory over E. J. Harrison and Ray Mangrum.

Lawson Little and Tony Manero won, 7 and 6, from Johnny Farrell and Willie Klein.

Tomorrow Manero and Little will meet Snead and Guldahl while Smith and Runyan play Picard and Revolta.

FRICK, WHO LIKES A PARADE, SEES HOT TITLE RACE

He Praises Cubs, Then Tells Centennial Plans.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 6.—President Ford Frick of the National league and his predecessor, John A. Heydler, viewed the practice of the champion Cubs today. They predicted the Cubs would be a potent factor in another red hot National league race, a stock executive prophecy, but logical enough in this instance, no doubt.

After viewing the workout of the best team in his league as standings go, Mr. Frick discussed plans for baseball's centennial this year. Ever since he succeeded Mr. Heydler as head of the older major league, Mr. Frick has been an enthusiastic promoter of pageants based on historical events, especially those involving the lavish impersonation of great characters who have done so much to build this great nation of ours, including Abraham Lincoln, Gen. Grant, and others involving the use of false whiskers.

Bigger and Better Beards.

The National league prexy first became known as a friend of the pseudo beard in 1936, when the National league celebrated its sixtieth birthday. Tableaux were staged in every National league park, with false whiskers a dominant note in every spectacle. In the Chicago pageant hair had become such a rampant factor that an actress made up like Phineas T. Barnum's bearded lady participated in the parade around Wrigley field.

Charley Drake, personal representative of Owner P. K. Wrigley, headed the delegation which met the Heydler. Frick party at the boat. Mr. Drake has been a warm supporter of the false whisker school of baseball pageantry and said he would have dressed a reception committee in historical costume but for being surprised. He did not know the league president was en route until after the boat had sailed from the mainland.

Postpone Camp Games.

Manager Gabby Hartnett expressed elation over the progress of the first two drills of the entire squad but postponed the start of the intramural games. He previously said the regular-yannigan games would start on Wednesday. With many of the boys overweight and eager for tonnage reduction, Gabby decided not to begin the series of camp games until Friday.

The practice today was broadened in scope with the Yannigans getting a bit more batting practice. Simultaneously, Coach Johnny Corriden conducted an infield drill, working out Phil Cavarretta at first, Bill Herman at second, Dick Bartell at short, and Stan Hack at third. Bartell and Herman, who are expected to burn up the National league as a double play combination, according to the boast of the fresh young man from the Giants, practiced at length on joint maneuvers around second base.

Early "Line" on Pitchers.

Dizzy Dean pitched to Manager Hartnett today. Diz started modestly but after warming up, slammed over a couple of world series pitches, whereupon Gabby threw down his glove and sighed:

"There's only one thing I can do to hold that guy down, I guess I'll have to put him in a strait-jacket."

Hartnett rated his pitchers as to physical readiness following today's, the eleventh battery practice.

Gene Lillard, up with the Cubs two years ago as a third baseman, who won sixteen as a Los Angeles pitcher last year, was rated as in best shape, due to winter ball playing, perhaps. Bill Lee was rated No. 1 among the first stringers and Jack Russell was given a slight rating over Charley Root and Earl Whitehill among the oldsters.

Terry Learns How It Feels to Be Snubbed

Baton Rouge, La., March 6.—[Special.]—Bill Terry was ready tonight to give up on Burgess Whitehead. The Giants' second baseman, most prominent figure in the New York club's attempt to regain the National league championship, still is at home in Lewiston, N. C. He has failed to answer Terry's phone calls and his mother has told the New York manager only that: "Burgess is out. He'll start for training camp Tuesday or Wednesday."

Terry, irritated at the delay, said: "He was due to work out today—and I mean today. If I know what the trouble was it might make some difference. But I left word with his mother last night to have Whitehead call me, no matter what time of night. He didn't.

"I paid him a full salary last year and was ready to pay him the same this season if he showed me he could play ball again after being out last year with that nervous breakdown. I've done everything possible for the kid. All reports say he was ready to go and in shape. I've got to start making plans for the season and I can't tolerate that attitude."

Three second basemen, Lou Chiozza, Alex Kampouris, and Alban Glossup, are working out in camp.

DI MAGGIO HAS NEW SPIRIT.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—A new Di Maggio arrived in the New York Yankees' camp today, a happy, smiling kid, eager for a strenuous grind, with none of the sullen sulks and dead-pan depressions of the old Di Mag.

"I'm a changed fellow," he remarked. "I wanted to get down here early and start the season in good shape. I'm going to hustle as I never have before, and I think I can make this my best year."

He patiently went through circus stunts for photographers, doing anything anybody asked with a smile. Other newcomers were Pitchers Red Ruffing, Walt Judnich, and Bill Matheson, Kansas City rookies; Babe Dahlgren, and Bill Knickerbocker. Ruffing was in his usual fine condition.

PHILLIES HAVE A HOLDOUT.

New Braunfels, Tex., March 6.—(AP)—Hershel Martin, the Phillies' hard hitting outfielder, became a holdout today by failing to report for spring practice. Manager Doc Prothro said he had received no word of any disagreement with Martin. A teammate disclosed, however, the center fielder had written from his Vienna, Mo., home saying he had been bickering over salary with President Gerald Nugent.

ROOKIES PLEASE HANEY.

San Antonio, Tex., March 6.—(AP)—The excellent showing of John Berardino and Sigmund Gryska, Texas league rookie infielders now with the St. Louis Browns, pleased Manager Fred Haney after workouts today. Indications were that Holdout Don Heffner was about to sign his contract.

BLADES LIKES ORENGO.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Ray Blades, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, believes Joe Orengo will make a major league infielder.

"He looks like Tommy Thevenow [the great shortstop who helped the Cards win the 1926 pennant and world series] did when he broke in," said Biades today. "Yes, Orengo looks like a fine fielder. I'm waiting to see whether he can hit."

Orengo, 22, batted .277 with Sacramento in 1938.

INDIANS STILL 11 SHORT.

New Orleans, La., March 6.—(AP)—Outfielder Bruce Campbell and Henry Helf, third string catcher, turned up at the Cleveland camp today for workouts of the regulars. Eleven players remained absent, including five unsigned players, and Hal Trosky, executed because of a new arrival in the family.

YORK STARTS SLUGGING.

Lakeland, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Rudy York, the Detroit Tigers' No. 2 slugger, hit several balls over the distant left field wall in batting practice today. Frank Croucher, bidding for Bill Rogell's shortstop job, showed well in the field and at bat.

GARMS GOES TO 3D PLACE.

Bradenton, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Casey Stengel's decision to shift Debs Garms, the Boston Bees' only .300 hitter last season, from left field to third base shaped up as a master stroke today. Garms held down third base during both of the day's practice sessions, and appeared to have a decided edge on the other candidates—Johnny Hill, Bob Kahle, and Henry Majeski. Al Simmons continued his long range hitting.

Central Handball Meet Opens; Platak Plays Tonight

Two opening matches were played last night in Central A. A. U. state doubles handball tournament in the Madison A. C. Lou Englestein and John Garvey of the Hyde Park "Y" defeated Jack McElligott and Bill Quigley of the home club, 20-21, 21-18, 21-7, and John Cannon and Michael Doyle, Madison A. C., defeated Jerry Torbeck and Ray Rakowski, Madison A. C., 21-12, 21-16.

Tonight Joe Platak, four time national singles champion, will team with July Borella against Tony D'Alberti and John O'Connor in one of three matches that will complete the first round.

Lincoln-Belmont Leads Qualifiers in Y.M.C.A. Swim

Lincoln-Belmont qualified fifteen men in the intermediate class to lead the north section in the preliminaries of the city Y. M. C. A. swimming meet in the Irving Park "Y" last night. Wilson Avenue was second with seven and Irving Park third with six. In the south division in the South Chicago "Y" Englewood led with eight qualifiers and 111th Street was second with seven. Central paced the west zone in the Duncan pool with eight men and Division was second with three.

What a Brain!

Since I have been throwing my clever contribs into the waste basket myself, I filled out my income tax report and put the money saved on stamps down as government savings. And, what do you think? They sent it back and said it should be listed under Charitable Contributions to the Needy. But I fixed 'em—I slipped this letter into the box when no one was looking and got a refund on the stamp. You can't corner me—I'm a blockhead.

Can You Stand It, Men?

While Phinney Shing has been doing such a swell job of research work in the matter of what men call their hats, I, too, have been busy. Don't look now, girls, but the way they wear their socks!! Draped artfully and coyly about their shapely ankles—without button, hook, or zipper for anchor. And they are the wretches who worry about the seams in OUR stockings being straight. Down with their protests, or up with their socks, say I. — Aretha Hunt.

Time Out.

Time moves fast. It whizzes by,
And so we never tarry
To think of why we live and die
Or why we ever marry.

So calm yourself and take a look
At you and those around you;
And never let the city's rush
And noise and din confound you.

Just take a minute now and then,
To judge what winds are blowing;
To ponder o'er your future life—
Just whither ARE you going?

William Niesen Is Named Illinois Semi-Pro Chief

William C. Niesen of Chicago was named Illinois state commissioner of semi-pro baseball yesterday by Ray Dumont, president of the National semi-pro congress. Dumont said Niesen would have charge of the 1939 state championship tournament. Niesen said the annual Illinois meet would be held in Chicago or Peoria July 10 to 28 with a minimum first prize of $1,000 for the winning team.

Pitt Accepts Sutherland's Resignation

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 6.—[Special.]—The resignation of Dr. John Bain Sutherland as head football coach at the University of Pittsburgh, revealed yesterday, became official today when it was accepted by Chancellor John G. Bowman.

Bowman said, in announcing the acceptance, that Sutherland, who had produced some of the nation's outstanding football teams in his fifteen years at his alma mater, has "our high respect, good will, and good wishes for continued success."

Sutherland's letter of resignation, which climaxed two years of misunderstanding and disputes with the administration, repeated the opinion that the wave of idealism which had swept over the football situation at the university was a case of going too far. Sutherland would not announce his plans for the future, but said he would not accept an offer to coach at Mississippi State college.

It was disclosed tonight that Sutherland's resignation has resulted in the automatic dismissal of his four assistant coaches, Mike Nicksick, half back coach; Johnny Michelosen, quarter back coach; Don Hensley, center coach, and Frank Souchak, signed two weeks ago to handle ends.

Students Are Aroused.

Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National league, who paid Half Back Whizzer White $15,000 last season, said he was prepared to pay Sutherland more than he had received at Pitt to coach the Pirates. Informed of the offer, Sutherland said he was not considering coaching offers at present.

The reaction of the student body to the official announcement was immediate, vociferous, and unfavorable. Students leaders called massmeetings of protest and there were unconfirmed rumors of a strike.

Sutherland's letter to Bowman, who a year ago instituted a code restricting athletics at the school to a strict amateur basis, said, in part:

"As you know my resignation has nothing to do with the ideals and objectives of the code for the conduct of athletics. I am in favor of good standards. However, the present system of athletic administration has resulted in conditions which, for me, are intolerable.

Cites "Unhappiness."

"I know from our conversations that you have no desire to have me stay on under conditions which cause me great worry and unhappiness."

Dr. Bowman, in his letter of acceptance, said:

"I had thought that by our recent talks, both between ourselves and also with other members of the department present, we had ironed out differences of opinions. These differences are evidently more deeply rooted with yourself than you stated in any of our talks."

Acceptance of the resignation cancels a clause in Sutherland's contract requiring either party to give two years notice of a change, Bowman said.

YACHT WAKIVA TAKES FLORIDA TO HAVANA RACE

HAVANA, Cuba, March 6.—(AP)—Led by Harkness Edwards' Wakiva, three of the eleven boats in the tenth annual St. Petersburg to Havana yacht race crossed the finish line today.

The Wakiva, a 70 foot yawl, arrived at 11:13.08 a. m. Edwards, a New Yorker, thus won the cup given by President Federico Laredo Bru for finishing first in the field. Being the only entry in the yawls and ketch division, the Wakiva automatically won class honors. Her elapsed time was 47 hours, 13 minutes, 8 seconds and her corrected fleet time 45 hours, 15 minutes, 8 seconds.

The 55 foot cutter Blitzen, owned by R. J. Reynolds of Winston-Salem, N. C., second to finish, crossed the line at 11:36.32 a. m. She took first place in the sloop and cutter class.

Al Fay of Houston, Tex., brought his 44 foot cruiser Stralight across the finish at 3:30.54 p. m.

Both the Wakiva and Blitzen are scratch boats in their respective classes.

32 Quintets Seek to Advance in C. Y. O. Playoffs

Thirty-two quintets will fight it out tonight for the right to advance to the quarter-final round of the ninth annual Catholic Youth organization basketball playoffs. The quarter-finals will be held Thursday.

Outstanding among the games tonight is that between the heavyweight defending champions, St. Elizabeth's colored team which won the title the last two seasons, and St. Anthony of Cicero, winner of the title in 1936 and runner-up to St. Elizabeth in 1937. St. Anthony has one of the best teams in its history.

BUDGE WINS FINAL FROM VINES TO TAKE SERIES, 22-17

MONTREAL, Que., March 6.—(AP)—Donald Budge whipped Ellsworth Vines, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3, tonight in the final match of their professional tour. Budge won twenty-two of the thirty-nine matches.

MEETS PERRY FRIDAY.

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Don Budge will arrive here tomorrow to begin preparations for his match with Fred Perry in Madison Square Garden Friday night, which will start a cross-country series.

Budge and Perry will play March 19 in the Chicago Stadium.

Von Steuben Juniors Beat Crane, 28 to 23

Von Steuben's junior basketball team reached the semi-finals in the Chicago public high school playoffs by defeating Crane, 28 to 23, yesterday in the Marshall gymnasium.

The teams were tied at the end of the first quarter and at the half, but in the final two quarters Von Steuben stepped out to take the lead as Crane's shooting fell off. Silberberg led the winners' attack with five baskets.

Set Crane-Lane Site.

The site of the senior semi-final between Lane and Crane was set yesterday by a coin flip—via telephone. A. H. Pritzlaff, league athletic director, flipped the coin in his office, and advised Bill Robinson, representing Crane, that he had won, which meant that the Marshall gymnasium would be the scene of the game. It will be played tomorrow.

The other senior division semi-final, matching Phillips and Hirsch, will be played at the same time on the Englewood floor.

Two Games Today.

There will be two junior quarter-final games this afternoon. Manley meets Hyde Park at Crane, and Hirsch opposes Harrison at Englewood. Both games will start at 3:30 o'clock. The Von Steuben-Crane lineups:

LANDER DEFEATS HUERTA IN EIGHT ROUND WINDUP

Eddie Lander, west side featherweight, defeated Henry Huerta of Washington, D. C., in an eight round bout before 840 in Marigold Gardens last night. The decision of Referee Tommy Thomas and Judges Harold Marovitz and Carl Witt was unanimous. It was Lander's eighth triumph in his last ten starts.

A right opened a cut over Huerta's left eye in the sixth. Before the round ended a left hook to the jaw dropped him for a two count. Each fighter weighed 128 pounds.

In the six round semi-windup, Tommy Pallatin, South Bend welterweight, pounded out a decision over Lorenzo Lovings. Cliff Durnett, Rock Island welterweight, knocked out Eddie Garlow of Kenosha, in the third round of a preliminary bout.

In other matches of four rounds, Willie Kline beat Jimmy Richards and Herman Hayes whipped Danny Shaw.

ALLEN HALL AND M'COURT DIVIDE IN CUE MATCHES

Cleveland, O., March 6.—(AP)—Charles McCourt of Cleveland and Allen Hall of Chicago split today in national three cushion billiard tournament matches. McCourt won the afternoon contest, 50 to 45 in 53 innings, but lost to the Chicagoan at night, 50 to 37 in 52 innings. Hall had a high run of nine and McCourt's best was eight.

REISELT WINS TWICE.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 6.—(AP)—Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, defeated Jay Bozeman of Chicago, twice today. Reiselt won tonight, 50 to 43 in 59 innings after taking the afternoon match, 50 to 34 in 47 innings. Bozeman's high run tonight was ten against Reiselt's five.

CHAMACO WINS TWO.

New York, March 6.—(AP)—Joe Chamaco of Mexico City, New York representative in the national billiards tournament, beat Arthur Thurnblad of Kenosha, Wis., twice today. After winning the afternoon game, 50 to 31, in 38 innings, Chamaco pulled out a 50 to 48 decision in 42 innings tonight.

Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., twelve times winner of the title, earned an even break with Tiff Denton of Kansas City in their two matches. Denton won the afternoon game, 50 to 49, in 53 innings after Layton had missed two chances for the winning point. Layton came back in a long night match to win, 50 to 46, in 62 innings.

LOYOLA BEATS TOLEDO, 51-38; 19TH STRAIGHT

Novak Scores 13 Points, Stars on Defense.

Toledo, O., March 6.—[Special.]—Loyola university's basketball team, the smoothest working quintet seen in Toledo this year, maintained its unbeaten pace tonight, winning its nineteenth consecutive victory, walloping the University of Toledo, 51 to 38.

It was the first time in three years the Ramblers had been able to best Toledo in the local arena. A crowd of 5,500 fans watched the teams battle on even terms until the final minute of the first half when Loyola made four consecutive shots to run up a 27 to 18 half time lead.

The Rockets rallied several times in the second half, but Big Mike Novak and Wibs Kautz teamed to shoot the Ramblers far ahead on every occasion.

Novak, leading the Loyola scoring with thirteen points, was the main defensive man. He picked an even dozen shots out of the Toledo basket. Chuck Chuckovits, Toledo's ace scorer, performed for the last time before a home crowd, making six field goals and six foul shots for eighteen points. His total for the season is 437 and for three seasons 1,177.

The teams will close their respective seasons Saturday night in Chicago.

Meister Bräu Beer
First Choice 138 to 32

When 170 members of the largest fraternal bowling league in the United States, at the Lakeview Bowling Alleys, 3239 N. Clark Street, Chicago, were asked to taste Meister Bräu bottled beer and compare it with other brands, 138 said "I prefer Meister Bräu to any other bottled beer."

In the picture, Julius M. Altenhofen, loop tailor, is marking up the score while some of his bowling companions taste and compare Meister Bräu Beer.

WE COULD SAVE TIME AND MONEY BY ADDING THEM BUT WE WON'T USE SUGARS OR SYRUPS
by RICHARD SEIBOLD, Master Bräu Brewmaster

Independent Investigator sets out to make Showdown Tests on Beer Flavor Preference

When Chicago Newspapers asked beer retailers what brand of bottled beer leads in sales, reports ranged from 2 to 1 as high as 10 to 1. The Reuben H. Donnelley Corporation was asked to check on this amazing popularity by holding taste-and-compare tests where groups of men and women congregate.

These tests bring out that Chicagoans are conscious of the care used by Richard Seibold, Meister Bräu brewmaster, to assure true old-time beer flavor, and that they appreciate his refusal to change his method of bottling with only natural draft beer carbonation. 'PENNSY' ROAD'S CONTROL IS KEPT IN PHILADELPHIA

Chicago Lines Directed from New York.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Chicago financial leaders interested in bringing control of Chicago railroads from New York to this city yesterday cited the Pennsylvania railroad as a good example of a road that has been able to maintain its control in its home city, Philadelphia. Of the Pennsylvania's sixteen directors, twelve give Philadelphia or its suburbs for their addresses. The meetings of the directors and of the stockholders are held in Philadelphia.

The Pennsylvania railroad has had a remarkable earnings record. Incorporated in Pennsylvania in 1846, it has earned a profit ever since it started operations. It has paid a cash return to its stockholders in every year since 1847.

In contrast, six of the nine major railroads that have their headquarters in Chicago hold their directors' meetings in New York, and many directors live in New York. This is true despite the fact that none of these roads goes within many hundreds of miles of New York.

New York Gets the Business.

Chicago bankers and financial leaders say that the absentee control of the Chicago roads results in New York getting a large amount of the business that might well go to Chicago financial institutions, particularly with respect to trustees and registrars for security issues.

There are nine railroads undergoing reorganization that either have their headquarters in Chicago or have Chicago for one of their principal terminals. These roads have 1 billion 709 millions, par amount, of bonds outstanding. But not one trustee or one registrar for any of these issues is located in Chicago. All except one are in New York.

Location of the trustee and registrar for a corporation in a city brings business to that city, Chicago financial leaders say. New York gets the benefit of the Chicago operations.

Trustees in Philadelphia.

The Pennsylvania railroad has 33 bond issues outstanding. The trustee for every one of them is a Philadelphia financial house. Registrars are located in Philadelphia and New York. This situation prevails despite the fact that the underwriting of the Pennsylvania's security issues has been handled by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and other New York houses.

The Pennsylvania has transfer agents and registrars for its stock in a number of cities besides Philadelphia. Chicago has both a transfer agent and a registrar.

Chicago financial houses have been striving to get a fair share of the trusteeships and the registrarships for the security issues that will have to be issued in connection with the reorganization of the Chicago railroads. One prominent La Salle street man declared that the best way for Chicago to get this business would be to organize.

Investors' Guide

Tuesday, March 7, 1939.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THEY MOVE TOGETHER.

Investors' Guide: What is the relation, if any, between the Nassau Electric Railroad company and the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit corporation? It seems that when the price of Brooklyn-Manhattan bonds goes up the price of Nassau's 4 per cent bonds goes up, too, and when one goes down the other goes down. How do you rate Nassau bonds?—M. R. I.

Answer: Nassau Electric was formerly controled directly by Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit. In 1929, however, Nassau and some other electric railways in Greater New York were consolidated to form the Brooklyn and Queens Transit corporation. Brooklyn and Queens is a subsidiary of Brooklyn-Manhattan and Nassau is a subsidiary of Brooklyn and Queens, so the control of Nassau is now indirect.

Nassau's 4s of 1951 are speculative. There are $10,300,000 outstanding. They have a claim on the assets of the old Nassau company that is junior to the claim of $660,000 of Nassau 5s of 1944.

UNLUCKY STOCKHOLDER.

Investors' Guide: I had five shares of stock in the Midland National Bank of Chicago, which has been liquidated. When the bank closed I was stuck for $500 under the double liability provision on bank shareholders. Now I find the bank has not only paid depositors 100 per cent of claims but has added 10 per cent interest for good measure. What justice to stockholders is there in that, when depositors would only have received 1.5 per cent if they had had their money in a bank that didn't close?—R. C. C.

Answer: The interest distribution to depositors was actually equivalent to slightly less than 5 per cent on deposits for the average time that the depositors' money was tied up. The state law calls for payment of 5 per cent on deposits in bank receiverships if the funds are available to pay this much. You were unlucky and the depositors were lucky.

STOCK DELISTED.

Investors' Guide: What has happened to the stock of the Cusi-Mexicana Mining company? I do not find it listed in the tables any more.—D.K.

Answer: The common stock of this Mexican mining company was stricken from the New York Curb's trading list on May 6, 1938. It is a purely speculative stock.

DOUGLAS SALES, PROFIT SOAR TO NEW RECORDS

Big Aircraft Firm Reports for 1938.

Both sales and earnings of the Douglas Aircraft company reached record heights last year, Donald W. Douglas, president, disclosed yesterday in his annual report to stockholders.

Donald W. Douglas.

Sales amounted to $28,347,474 in the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1938, an increase of 35 per cent over the preceding twelve months' total of $20,950,361.

Net income rose to $2,147,392 after all charges, equal to $3.76 a share on the 570,683 capital shares outstanding. The preceding year's total was $1,081,513, or $1.90 a share.

Last year's earnings record was achieved despite a sharp increase in the charge against income for experimental costs.

Incomes Rises Late in Year.

Comparison of the annual report with previously published quarterly figures indicates that the company experienced a sharp increase in earnings for the three months ended Nov. 30 Net income for the period amounted to $425,428, compared with $228,716 in the final quarter of the preceding fiscal year.

The company during the year paid a dividend of $3 a share, the first return to stockholders since 1935. Experimental expenditures in 1938 totaled $1,797,000 and included completion of the Douglas DC-4, a 42 passenger plane representing an investment in construction and engineering of more than $2,363,000.

Douglas said this craft will be delivered to air lines for final service tests as soon as qualifying certificates are received from the Civil Aeronautics authority.

Receives Big Foreign Orders.

One of the largest producers of commercial and military aircraft in the world, with a big plant at Santa Monica, Cal., the Douglas company has received a heavy volume of business from foreign countries which are strengthening their defenses.

It was the crash of one of the Douglas company's experimental bombers last January that revealed to this country that President Roosevelt had ignored the war department's advice and released one of the latest type planes to France.

The plane, it was disclosed later, embodied developments in aviation construction which had not yet been utilized by this country, and to which American military forces had a prior right. The French air mission subsequently ordered 100 planes of this type.

Company Now Employs 6,000.

Douglas told stockholders the company is now employing about 6,000 persons. Las. October a pay increase was granted which boosted by $300,000 annually the wages of 5,500 then employed.

The company closed its 1938 fiscal year entirely free of bank loans, which at the end of the 1937 period had totaled $5,230,000. Cash of $3,558,093 at Nov. 30 compared with $1,420,560 a year earlier. Inventories at Nov. 30 dropped to $4,084,055, from $12,240,568 at the end of 1937.

The sharp decline in inventories was explained by the fact that there was a much larger quantity of materials in process of conversion into finished products at the end of 1937 than at the close of the 1938 fiscal period.

Against 1938 net income, the company wrote off $1,444,077 in experimental costs, against $789,530 written off in 1937.

PLEADS 'L' LINES LACK REVENUES FOR IMPROVING

The Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated lines] does not have sufficient revenues to equip the system with automatic safety devices and steel cars, Harley A. Johnson, general manager, testified yesterday before the Illinois commerce commission. The commission is holding hearings on its citation for the company to show cause why the improvements should not be made.

Johnson said a reorganization of the company, which is in bankruptcy, will be necessary before money can be raised to finance the betterments. He estimated it would cost $24,625,000 to replace 985 existing wooden and combination wood and steel cars with all metal cars. An additional $6,157,900 would be required, he said, to install a complete system of automatic block signals and controls.

Germans Order $500,000 of American Machinery

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—German steel interests have placed an order for $500,000 of excavating machinery with the Bucyrus-Monighan company, subsidiary of the Bucyrus-Erie company, for open cut mining of iron ore, it was learned today. An irrevocable letter of credit for the full amount was deposited in a New York bank. Ninety per cent of the amount will be paid at the time of shipment.

Corn Products Refining's '38 Earnings Rise

The Corn Products Refining company yesterday reported that its net income in 1938 increased to $9,753,669, after taxes and other charges from $8,100,521 in 1937. The 1938 earnings were equal to $3.17 a share on the $25 par common stock, against $2.52 in the preceding year.

The company's annual report, made public by George M. Moffett, president, said gross sales in 1938 aggregated $53,301,490. This is the first report in which the company has given the dollar amount of gross sales in the income account to conform with a request from the New York Stock exchange. Moffett said that heretofore the company felt it unwise to furnish this figure "as the amount consistently varies with the price of corn and therefore is misleading as an index of the company's prosperity and sales."

The balance sheet as of last Dec. 31, shows current assets of $43,239,254 and current liabilities of $7,334,551, compared with $41,722,800 and $6,180,105, respectively, at the close of 1937.

Schenley's Net Drops.

The Schenley Distillers corporation's net earnings fell sharply last year, but sales began improving in the final quarter, Lester E. Jacobi, president, told stockholders. He said the upward trend has continued into this year.

Net income in 1938 was $4,050,173, equal to $2.44 a share on common stock, compared with $7,320,902 in 1937, or $5.04 a share.

Among other corporations reporting their 1938 results yesterday, there were but few exceptions to the general downward trend.

One of the exceptions was General Shoe corporation. Its sales and earnings last month set a new February peak, Maxey Jarman, president, reported. The company's factories are operating at capacity and unfilled orders are double those of the corresponding date last year, he said.

Twelve Month Net $707,863.

Net earnings of General Shoe for the twelve months ended Jan. 31 totaled $707,863, compared with $680,408 in the preceding twelve months, Jarman said. He predicted that shoe production by the entire industry will establish a new record this year at about 420,000,000 pairs.

Consolidated net profits of the Burroughs Adding Machine company fell to $2,706,965 in 1938, from $8,163,404 in 1937, representing 54 cents and $1.63 a share on capital stock in the respective years. The company is one of the largest producers of mechanical office equipment.

A net loss of $1,169,778 for 1938 was shown by the Pressed Steel Car company and subsidiaries, which operate in the Chicago and Pittsburgh areas. The loss, which reflects the derth of railway equipment business, compared with net profits in 1937 of $717,648, or $1.05 a share on common stock.

PREPARE ILLINOIS PARLEY ON OIL PROPERTY TAXES

Springfield, Ill., March 6.—(AP)—The state tax commission today completed plans for a two-day conference this week at which procedure for taxing Illinois oil properties will be discussed with county tax officials.

Approximately 250 treasurers, clerks, and county judges are expected for the conference Thursday and Friday. Later the state commission will hold district meetings with township tax assessors, who actually will make assessments of oil lands, leases, and royalties. County treasurers are supervisors of assessments.

Oil holdings are scheduled to be generally assessed in Illinois for the first time this spring, under a recent opinion of Attorney General John E. Cassidy, who held leases and royalties are taxable property.

INCREASE IN FEDERAL SPENDING IS NEEDED, SAYS RESERVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—The federal reserve board said today that "greater public expenditures" are needed to start a business upturn.

The board, headed by Marriner S. Eccles, a leading advocate of government spending, said in its monthly bulletin that industrial production now is about even with national consumption.

"A further growth in activity," the bulletin said, "appears to depend on an increase in consumption arising out of such factors as further growth in private residential building, larger outlays for plant and equipment, and greater public expenditures for construction or other purposes."

The board estimated that the February rate of industrial production was about 99 per cent of the 1923-'25 average, compared with 101 in January and 104 in December.

Analyzing the business improvements of the last half of 1938, the board said that work weeks in industry had been increased and that any further substantial gain in activity would necessitate additional workers.

URGES 'GET ALL YOU CAN' PRICE BASIS FOR STEEL

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—The monopoly investigating committee today heard a plea that a free competitive system, in which those who were able would make "a good fat profit," be substituted for the present "basing point" pricing system in the iron and steel industry. Eugene W. Burr, a federal trade commission attorney, made the proposal when he testified before the committee.

In answer to Senator Joseph O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], committee chairman, as to what he would substitute for the "basing point" system, Burr said that what is desired is a competitive system under which the philosophy of "get all you can" would apply.

The witness lectured the committee on the evils of the "basing point" system. His only reference to the current situation in the steel industry was a statement that the modifications in the basing point system made last June did not fundamentally alter the noncompetitive status of the industry so far as prices were concerned.

RAILS TO CONFER ON OBJECTION TO FAST NEW TRAIN

A conference will be held tomorrow in the office of C. E. Johnston, new chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, on the plan to put a new train in operation between Chicago and San Francisco, Cal., early in June. The train will be run jointly by the Burlington, the Denver and Rio Grande Western, and the Western Pacific railroads.

An objection to the new train has been raised because it will not be an extra fare train, although it will make the run in fifty-seven hours. It is said that there has been a tacit agreement among roads that any train making the run in less than sixty hours should be an extra fare train.

The Southern Pacific is reported to have brought the subject formally to the attention of Johnston. Robert Thomson, passenger trafic manager of the North Western, and W. S. Basinger, passenger trafic manager of the Union Pacific, said they did not join the Southern Pacific in asking the conference.

Steel Production to Slip Slightly During This Week

Slight contraction of steel making this week was indicated yesterday by the weekly survey of the industry's operating schedules issued by the American Iron and Steel Institute. It reported that the production rate for the nation will slip 0.7 point from last week to 55.1 per cent of capacity.

Railroads Find Light Cars Are Profit Makers

Use of lightweight cars, both passenger and freight, has proved highly profitable to the railroads, W. H. Mussey, research engineer for the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, said last night. He spoke before the Western Society of Engineers in the Engineers building.

Mussey said the popular streamlined trains have been so profitable that they have paid for themselves in a relatively short time. Discussing freight cars, he cited the larger revenue producing capacity of the lighter cars and showed how they made operating economies possible.

So striking have results been from the use of lightweight equipment, he said, that only recently Pullman-Standard has had a request from one of the large automobile manufacturers for information. Hitherto the railroads have been going to the automobile industry for innovations.

Tells Growing Demand.

"Since the first streamlined train was put into operation it is rather amazing how rapidly the number of lightweight streamlined trains and lightweight cars has grown," he said. "There are now in operation or on order for early delivery 80 lightweight trains comprised of 682 cars. In addition, there are a large number of lightweight cars built for use either in solid trains or mixed with conventional cars, so that the total number of lightweight passenger cars built or on order is 1,339.

This is the type of light weight cars found profitable.

"Time saving combined with hitherto unheard of luxury and improved riding have attracted the traveling public to such an extent that, although the new type cars have cost considerably more than the car of six or seven years ago, they produce revenues which repay the investment in a relatively short time. One train on the west coast paid for itself in about a year."

History of One Train Cited.

Mussey cited a high speed six car train running out of Chicago that traveled about 4,500 miles a week. The weight of the cars when empty was 1,050,000 pounds. In place of these cars nine lightweight cars were substituted which weighed about 950,000 pounds when empty. The same fast schedule with the same power equipment was used. It added in effect two and a half revenue cars, as some additional lounged space was provided.

On a basis of the regular fares, adding of two and a half revenue cars increased potential revenue for the train by $476,500 a year, leaving a sizable profit after deductions for various items, including investment and depreciation. This train often has a waiting list.

Means Faster Freight.

Although the freight car does not offer the appeal to the public that the streamlined passenger car does, he said "it does offer to the railroads great possibilities. It permits higher speed of freight trains with the same revenue tonnage when compared with trains made up of heavier cars, which means expedited handling of commodities from shipper to the consumer."

DOUBTS CORPORATION BALANCE SHEETS CAN REVEAL FRAUD CASES

New York, March 6.—(AP)—Hiram T. Scoville, dean of accounting at the University of Illinois, today told investigators for the Securities and Exchange commission that he did not believe a balance sheet examination by an accounting firm would disclose fraud in a company.

The commission is inquiring into accounting practices generally, and particularly those involved in the case of McKesson & Robbins, Inc.

Scoville said additional power for the auditor "may come about through education of the public by commercial and investment bankers, and through the SEC and auditors themselves."

In saying that balance sheet examination might not disclose fraud he took the same position as Price, Waterhouse & Co., auditors for McKesson & Robbins for a number of years.

Scoville is the author of a number of textbooks on auditing.

CLARK DEMANDS VAST NEW ISSUE OF SILVER BILLS

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—Senator Clark [D., Idaho], called on Secretary Morgenthau today to issue up to $1,333,000,000 in additional silver certificates on the basis of unused bullion in the treasury "as a means of curtailing, in some measure, the country's mounting public debt."

The silver state senator said in a statement he could not condone the "inexcusability of the accumulation" in the face of the vast expenditures by the government for relief, armaments and public works.

"By his own testimony," Clark asserted, "the secretary said currency issued on this accumulated silver would be as sound as the silver certificates now in general use—the same silver certificates which the public today uses to pay its debts and the same silver certificates which the government itself uses in the payment of its obligations."

U. S. SPENDS MORE THAN SIX BILLIONS IN EIGHT MONTHS

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—Treasury figures showed today that the last eight months cost the federal government more than $6,000,000,000.

The daily treasury statement disclosed that on March 3 expenses of the fiscal year, which began last July 1, totaled $6,029,286,657. This was $2,333,287,866 more than the treasury's income in the same period, and resultant borrowing pushed the federal debt to a new high of $39,927,798,705. WPA, which used $1,547,586,756 during the period, was the major spender.

In the comparable fiscal period to March 3 last year treasury expenditures totaled $4,906,032,976, and the deficit was $1,003,945,887. The debt was about $2,200,000,000 less than it is now.

Treasury's Weekly Bills Sell at 99.999 and 100

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau announced tonight that the treasury's weekly offer of $100,000,000 of 91 day bills was sold today at either $99.999 or $100 per $100 unit. In recent weeks the average price has been $99,999.

STOCKS RELAPSE ON ROOSEVELT'S SPENDING PLEA

Early Gains Vanish; Aviations Fall.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—Stocks turned lower this afternoon on selling which observers attributed to reports that President Roosevelt had renewed his demand for restoration of the $150,000,000 recently lopped from the Works Progress administration appropriation.

Leading issues showed losses ranging from fractions to one point after registering similar gains in early dealings. Volume was 842,540 shares.

The President's demand came in the face of the revolt in congress for economy and was considered the primary cause of the decline inasmuch as the list had displayed a strong tone before the news reached Wall street. There were other factors, however, among them the decline in the steel operating rate.

Market "Average" Crosses 150.

Market analysts also came forward with the suggestion that a note of caution was called for inasmuch as the Dow-Jones industrial average was near the 150 level. They were reported to believe that level represents a "supply area." Today the average touched 150.23, but closed at 148.84, off 0.65 point.

Aviations were conspicuous in the selloff. Douglas, Boeing, and Glenn Martin dropped a point or more each. North American Aviation slumped ¾.

Bethlehem was weak in the steels, declining 1¾ points. United States Steel and Youngstown each lost about one point. Motors showed losses running to one point in Chrysler.

Copper shares attracted buying for a time on reports of improved consumer interest. However, early firmness gave way to softness. Oils also did better for a time, but active issues followed the general trend at the close.

Rails Turn Downward.

Rails started higher on more activity, but backed away later. New York Central, off ½ point, was the volume leader in the section. Most other pivotals lost similar amounts. Southern Pacific declined 1¼ point, however.

Several common stocks in the public utility section were popular for a time, turning over in large blocks. Modest improvements were short-lived, however, and either were erased or replaced by minor fractional losses.

Volume honors went to Radio Corporation, which closed unchanged after selling higher. Loft gained ¼ point on revived demand.

STRIKE RESULTS IN LARGER LOSS TO NORTH SHORE

The Chicago, North Shore, and Milwaukee railroad, whose trains were halted for fifty-one days by a strike late in the year, yesterday reported a net loss of $1,452,885 for 1938. There was a net loss of $1,179,766 in 1937.

The report, issued by A. A. Sprague, receiver for the line, showed expenses exceeded operating revenues by $135,484. Revenues totaled $3,222,295 last year, against $4,091,723 in 1937, when there was net operating income of $30,766. The year's net loss brought the road's accumulated deficit to $9,616,523 as of Dec. 31, 1938.

Charles R. Mahan and Lincoln C. Torrey were elected directors of the road at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday. They replace Bernard J. Fallon and Charles T. Thompson, whose terms expired. Joseph E. Otis was reëlected to the board. Mahan was appointed vice president to succeed Thompson.

Salary Report Law Backfires on New Deal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—An unpopular piece of New Deal legislation, since partly repealed, has come back to haunt members of congress and heckle business men. It is the 1934 revenue act, permitting publication of corporation salaries, which has bloomed into a new crop of "sucker" lists.

Representative Doughton would limit publicity.

As a part of the Roosevelt campaign against big business, a provision was placed in the 1934 revenue act that salaries of $15,000 or more a year should be reported by the treasury. They were obtained from corporation income tax returns and given the house ways and means committee, after which the list was available for public inspection.

Targets for Supersalesmen.

This resulted in profiteering by professional list makers, who sold the salary figures to any one interested in knowing who had large incomes. The business men listed soon become the targets of supersalesmanship.

Protests against these nuisances were so loud that congress last year, against the wishes of President Roosevelt, raised the salary report limit to apply only to incomes of $75,000 a year or more, beginning with the 1938 income returns. It also made the treasury responsible for public release rather than congress, in an effort to shift responsibility.

There is now a bill pending before the house which would also raise the limit on 1937 salary reporting from $15,000 to $75,000. It was introduced by Representative Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.], chairman of the ways and means committee, which reported favorably on the bill. The treasury has compiled the 1937 salary list but is holding up release until action is taken on Doughton's bill.

Protests Pouring In.

The professional list makers, finding other business dull, have dragged out the old salary reports of 1935 and are conducting a nation-wide campaign to sell their motheaten wares. The ways and means committee has been flooded with protests, as have newspaper offices.

Both the ways and means committee and the treasury say there is nothing illegal about the practice and they cannot blame any one for making a legitimate profit on what they consider an unfortunate piece of legislation.

When the first lists appeared in 1936 and 1937 there was no restraint on making the lists available. But the resulting sucker list campaigns became so bothersome that aids of the house ways and means committee had to supervise public inspection of lists and forbid any one to copy more than a dozen of the individuals listed at a time.

Woman Sells Big List.

The list which is receiving most attention now is that compiled by Miss Helen Lewis of Washington, D. C. It covers 1935 salaries and is claimed to be the most complete of its kind.

Miss Lewis recently distributed form letters, offering the complete national list for 1935, consisting of 1,000 pages and approximately 23,000 names for $50. The cost of the state lists range from 50 cents to $17.50, the latter for New York. The Illinois list, with 2,300 names, sells for $10.

Interviewed today, Miss Lewis, who runs a letter and mimeographing service, said she merely has resurrected the old reports because business has been dull.

The returns from the circularization campaign have hardly made it worth while, she said, despite the fancy prices.

BANKS SHOCKED AT SHARP TERMS IN U. S. OFFERING

Federal Bond Prices Shoot Higher.

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—The banking community was shocked and disappointed today at the sharp terms of the treasury's March 15 refunding operation. The program called for the highest premiums placed on a treasury issue in recent years.

Unprepared for this, bankers and dealers in government bonds engaged in large scale switching operations to readjust their positions. The result was that trading today in government issues, both on the New York Stock exchange and in the over-the counter market, reached the largest volume in many months. Prices of many outstanding obligations climbed, with seventeen treasury issues reaching record high levels.

Three Choices for Holders.

The treasury's refinancing involved the offering of three issues in exchange for $1,293,714,200 of 2⅛ per cent treasury notes of series A maturing next June 15. Under the terms announced, holders may take either 1¼ per cent treasury notes of series B-1943, 2½ per cent treasury bonds of 1950-'52, or 2¾ per cent treasury bonds of 1960-'65. The 1⅛ per cent notes of series B-1943 will be issued at $101 and accrued interest per $100 unit. The 2½ per cent bonds of 1950-'52 will be issued at $102.50 per $100 unit, and the 2¾ per cent bonds of 1960-'65 will be issued at 102.37½ and accrued interest per $100 unit.

Wall street had anticipated that a substantial premium would be placed by the treasury on the two bond issues, and that there possibly would be a small premium on the 1⅛ per cent notes. All three issues are currently selling at large premiums.

Prices Unexpectedly High.

However, the prices actually demanded were more than the market was prepared for.

The immediate effect of the announcement was a sharp depreciation in the value of the rights" [that is, the securities which may be exchanged under the offer] and a pronounced advance in long term notes—the 1⅛s of June 15 and Dec. 15, 1943. The "rights" dropped 12-32 point to 101 15-32-17-32, while the 1⅛s of Dec. 15, 1943, soared 15-32 to 102 7-32-9-32.

The outstanding treasury bonds reached their new high levels on gains ranging from 1-32 to 10-32 point. The 3⅛s of 1952-49, which did not sell last Saturday, showed a gain of 23-32d. The turnover in treasury issues on the stock exchange reached $1,053,500, the largest since last Sept. 29. Volume was $327,500 last Friday.

In the long term market there were conflicting movements in the 2½s of 1952-50 and the 2¾s of 1965-60 as a result of the exchange offer. The 2¾s sagged 4-32 to 103 29-32, while the 2½s rose 10-32 to a new record high at 104. Both of these outstanding issues will be augmented by the refunding.

Held Success for Treasury.

Despite the widespread disappointment found in trading circles over the high premiums, it was conceded that the operation would be successful from the point of view of the government.

It was apparent that a great many dealers had been speculating in the "rights" and were caught unawares by the unexpected high premiums on the issues offered in exchange. The resentment, however, was not confined to especially these interests, and many of the more conservative elements in the trade were disappointed at the meager "inducement" granted by the treasury.

REPORT WHEAT PEGGING ENDED BY ARGENTINA

World Trading Is Dull; Prices Easier.

Reports that a crisis was approaching in the Argentine wheat situation brought international trade in that grain almost to a standstill yesterday. Prices on the Chicago Board of Trade and other leading exchanges held within a range of ½ cent a bushel, closing ¼ to ½ cent lower.

The Argentine government was reported yesterday to have been forced to refuse to purchase further amounts of grain from farmers at its guaranteed minimum price of 7 pesos per quintal [59½ cents a bushel at current rates of exchange], because of lack of storage facilities. The Argentine wheat crop this season is officially estimated at 320,000,000 bushels, the second largest on record.

Argentine Surplus Large.

Argentina is estimated to have an exportable surplus of more than 200,000,000 bushels of wheat at for which there is a slow European demand. This has resulted in severe congestion at ports and country loading points.

Although Argentina is one of the leading wheat and corn producing countries in the world its storage facilities are very small. An official report recently said there were elevator facilities at ports and interior terminals for about 61,000,000 bushels.

Other Grains Weaken.

Trading in corn, oats, and rye was limited and closing trades were small fractions of a cent lower. Liverpool corn futures closed ¾ to ½ cent a bushel higher.

Lard futures declined 10 to 15 cents per 100 pounds in sympathy with cottonseed oil. The latter declined sharply following the appearance of Secretary of State Hull before a senate committee. He opposed a move to place a processing tax on imported vegetable and fish oils, holding that this would conflict with reciprocal trade agreements.

BUSINESS DONE BY CHECK GAINS IN MIDDLE WEST

Checks written against individual deposit accounts in banks in the 7th federal reserve district [Chicago] totaled $1,204,492,000, an increase of 41.8 per cent over the preceding week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. The report covers 159 banks in 41 leading cities of the district.

As compared with the corresponding week of last year, when the total was $1,223,983,000, there was a decrease of 1.6 per cent.

Checks written against accounts in Chicago banks alone totaled $655,594,000, against $740,682,000 in the like 1938 week.

SOUTH AND WEST SEEK AGREEMENT ON RAIL RATES

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—Southern congressmen moved quickly today to avert a split with western members over proposals to equalize railroad freight rates throughout the country.

Noting expressions of fear from westerners that the rate schemes were "too drastic and dangerous," the southerners indicated they were willing to support a more moderate plan.

Chief objection, apparently, centered around provisions seeking to prohibit the interstate commerce commission from fixing a higher rate from one territory to another than the charges applying to similar shipments for the same distance within the territory of destination.

The house judiciary committee received a suggestion from Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation today that railroads be permitted to postpone the maturity date of their securities if two-thirds of the holders approve.

CARGILL BLAMES BOARD OF TRADE FOR '36 CORN DIP

Responsibility for a sharp decline in the price of corn futures in December, 1936, was charged to the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday by John H. MacMillan Jr. of Minneapolis, president of Cargill, Inc., a large grain company.

He told S. Abbott Maginnis, referee for the Commodity Exchange administration at a hearing in the Hotel Sherman that the price fell 2 cents after Cargill had complied in part with a board order to reduce its "long" line of 6,606,000 bushels of corn to 4,746,000 bushels.

Howard Ellis, attorney for the grain exchange, denied the order was responsible for the price reaction.

This was one of the "unfair" rulings of which the board was accused by Cargill. Another involves dealings in corn futures in September, 1937, when the grain company's alleged "corner" on the market led to its expulsion from Board of Trade membership.

Predicts Travel in 1939 Will Set Six Year Record

Travel of all kinds in 1939 will break records for the last six years, W. C. Morrissey, traveling passenger agent of the American President Lines, predicted last night. He addressed 200 members of the Bon Vivants club, a national organization of travel representatives, at the Great Northern hotel. The New York and San Francisco fairs are expected to stimulate business, travel agents said.

German Cotton Companies Unite to Handle Exports

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, March 6.—[Special.]—A holding company for all German cotton concerns was formed in Bremen today under the name of Bremen Bauwolle A. G., with capital of 10 million marks [the mark is about 40 cents]. Germany's cotton imports are to be centralized and orders are being placed in those countries which are ready to buy German industrial products.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Hog prices advanced sharply on extremely light receipts yesterday as snowdrifts and muddy roads checked the movement to market from various sections of the corn belt. Gains ranged from 10 to 15 cents. The sale of yesterday's large supply of lambs at strong to 10 cents higher prices emphasized the strong position of the current lamb trade.
